FACE, HAND AND HIP.

Attorney D. J. Frew of Salt Lake Meets With a Severe Accident.

HE IS THROWN FROM HIS BUGGY

By the Breaking of a Buggy Shaft—His Hand Badly Cut, Left Side and Thigh Torn.

MANTI, Utah, Aug. 5, 1896, 10 p.m.

To the Editor:

Attorney D. J. Frew of Salt Lake City, met with a serious accident this afternoon.

It appears he left Manti for the Crystal mine in Centerville canyon near here, at about 1:30 p.m. on horseback, taking with him another animal. When descending the steep hill to the mine, one of the horses took the wrong path, and in reaching over, the subject got in Frew's horse, axle way, hurling him with terrific force on the rocks, breaking his leg near the thigh, also dislocating his right hand and badly bruising his face. He lay several hours, until discovered by some person cutting timber. News was immediately sent to the mine and he was brought to his home at Manti. Dr. Holmes of Fangsbrn has made the patient as comfortable as circumstances will permit and a messenger has gone to Nephi for assistance, when an effort will be made to set the injured leg and hand. Mr. Frew is well known here, and has the sympathy of the whole community.

From the Hawaiian Islands.

Elder M. M. Harmon and wife, and two children, of St. George, Washington county, and Walter Schriver and wife and child, of this city, made a call at the NEWS today. They returned yesterday from the Hawaiian Islands, where they have been laboring as missionaries. Elder Harmon and wife left this city on April 16, 1895, he was engaged most of the time in teaching the Lele school, while she spent much of her time in keeping the store.

Elder Schriver left this city July 2, 1895, and held the position of assistant manager of the Laie plantation. His wife joined him two months later, and assisted in missionary labors as circumstances required. They report the Hawaiian mission to be in a prosperous condition, and much good is being done among the natives. The return voyage was a pleasant one, though marred somewhat by seasickness.
