At Twenty-seventh street the Mariners Wave was being pounded to pieces fifty yards from shore. Three wrecks were resting in the breakers at Eighty-fifth street. Half a mile from shore, off Twenty-second street, two vessels were labouring in the sea. On one, thought to be the D. S. Austin, four men were seen in the rigging. The twenty-seven mile on the south side and the mile at the waterworks crib all right.

The schooner Goodwin, adrift off Thirteenth street, succeeded in clearing the beach. When rescued by the life-savers the crew refused to go ashore.

Sharrock, land commissioner of the Burlington railroad system, arrived in the city in search of Dalton, who he had followed ten thousand miles to get his signature to a deed for a valuable piece of land in Edgemont, South Dakota. The clerks were authorized to send fraternal greetings to the southern Presbyterian convention at Nashville, the Cumberland church, Eagle, Oregon, and the United Presbyterian church, Albany, Ore. Elder John McCook, of New York, was appointed moderator.

The subject of a theological seminary was taken up. Dr. William C. Young, chairman of the committee, explained the provisions of the majority report, which he claimed gave the widest liberty to the seminaries and still secured the right of the assembly to direct and control them. The legal questions involved were discussed by Thomas McDougal of Cincinnati. He said there was no reason why a church may not prescribe the terms upon which the seminaries should be directed.

Dr. William E. Moore explained the report of the minority. Previous decisions of the assembly, he said, have been quite the opposite of that now proposed. The minority did not wish to bring in the civil power where one was power is sufficient to meet the requirements. Further consideration of the subject was postponed until Monday.

DELEGATE RAWLINS.

He Returned From Washington With His Family This Morning.

HIS TALK WITH A NEWS REPORTER

The Utah Statehood Bill, He Says, Will Pass This Session—Free Silver Sentiment Growing.

Among the Ultonians who came in from the East on this morning's Union Pacific passenger train were Hon. Joseph L. Rawlins, Utah's Delegate in Congress, and his family. Mr. Rawlins's arrival this time was not surprised as is usually the case when he takes occasion to cut loose from his official duties at the Nation's capital and run home for a few days to attend to private business matters. The announcement of his coming, however, was not given publicity by himself but was rather the work of Washington newspaper men, who are very alert in securing information that will interest everyone.

Mr. Rawlins says that he stay will be brief and that he will return to Washington in a week or two days. He was found at his office by a representative of the News early in the day and in the absence of his partner, Mr. Critchlow, who is on a visit to California, he was working away as though he had some important legal case in hand. He readily and pleasantly yielded to an interview.

STATEHOOD THIS SESSION.

Concerning the Utah statehood question Mr. Rawlins said: "All things considered it is in a very promising and satisfactory condition.

"How did it happen that such unexpected action as that which occurred a few days ago was taken?" in regard to it asked the newspaperman.

Mr. Rawlins smiled as he responded:

"There was nothing unexpected or surprising about it as far as I was concerned, as I have been assured all along that the bill would pass the Senate this session. Four weeks ago I talked with Senator Faulkner, chairman of the Senate committee on territories, and he informed me at that time that the measure would be reported in three weeks, and it was. I have no reason whatever to doubt its passage before Congress adjourns. In fact I am sure that it will pass as is indicated in the amendment providing for the election of delegates to the constitutional convention in November next. The report upon it was unanimous. No senator claims to have any objection to early statehood for Utah. Very many urge that there should be no delay and will shape their efforts accordingly."

"When, in your opinion, Mr. Rawlins," asked the reporter, "will the bill receive attention again?"

"At the earliest possible moment after the tariff question has been disposed of."

"And when is that likely to be?"

"Not later, I think, than the first of July next. Positive and unqualified promises have been made to me that it will receive consideration at that time."

"What has caused the delay thus far and why have you been dependent and depending over the statehood matter?" was the next query.

Again Mr. Rawlins smiled. He answered the latter part of the query in the following language: "I have had no doubts or misgivings nor have I been in despair or any state of feeling approaching that condition. I have already told you that I had assurances all the time that the bill would be taken up. I was urged in getting it on the calendar and I am very glad it is there."

Concerning further upon it Mr. Rawlins said that no substantial change had been made in the bill as it passed the House, except as to the date for holding elections. The House bill left those indefinite. Now they are fixed. The delegates to the constitutional convention will meet in February or March.

THE RESERVATION BILLS.

As to the Indian reservation bill Mr. Rawlins said it would also pass and become law this session of Congress. It will be taken up for consideration as soon as the appropriation bill has been got out of the way. He expected to get them through before he came home the time but the chairman of the committee on appropriations objected to their consideration by unanimous consent. He is not, however, opposed to its passage, but on the contrary, is favorable when in his opinion the time comes. It was introduced simultaneously in the Senate and House. There are 1,021 Indians on the Uncompahgre reservation and 955 on the Uintah. In the latter there are 2,100 acres of land to each Indian in the tribe or 10,000 acres to each head of a family of four persons. Under the general allotment act each head of a family will get 160 acres of land. Other members of the tribe will get 80 acres.

THE UNIVERSITY BILL.

The bill granting a sale of 60 acres from the Fort Douglas reservation for the Utah University will be taken up and passed by Monday or Tuesday next. Mr. Rawlins considers it very sure that the tariff bill has been disposed of.

THE COLORADO CIS QUESTION.

As to the Colorado Cis question Mr. Rawlins says Utah will have to do its fighting with itself. The Colorado people have decided that it would be worse than useless to press the matter further. The Colorado senators and representatives met and prepared a bill which provides for the repeal of the treaty under which they sought to have the Indians removed to this Territory. It likewise adds to the Utes and set apart, for the Indians, forty fifty fifteen miles are set apart for each as are not able to take land otherwise.

THE TARIFF PROBLEM.

"As to the Wilson tariff bill," said Mr. Rawlins, "it is not such a measure as I would have made it. But it is a step in the right direction and a great improvement on the McKinley bill, and the country will be much better off by its passage."

SILVER SENTIMENT GROWING.

"The sentiment of the people of the east is becoming very favorable to the free coinage of silver. Blandism has now many stanch friends there for six months. I think the next general Democratic convention will declare in favor of the free coinage of silver in clear and unmistakable terms. The state conventions so far held have done so. Illinois conventions have done so. Indiana will do so and the Northern states can be relied upon to do the same thing."

HEARD FOR PRESIDENT.

Speaking of Presidential possibilities Mr. Rawlins said that although it was a little early to do any speculating it would not surprise him to see his party nominate Senator Bland from Missouri.

Asked as to whether he did not think Mr. Bland was too far south and west to hope for that, he replied in the negative, and added that that kind of a feeling was fast disappearing.

NOT A CANDIDATE FOR RE-ELECTION.

As the time for Utah to elect another delegate to Congress is rapidly drawing near and as Mr. Rawlins's name has been mentioned quietly in the contests of his party as their candidate to succeed himself, he was asked what he had to say in regard to the matter. His reply emphatic and emphatic. It was, "I am not a candidate for re-election."

"Not in case it forced upon you?"

"No, sir! I am not in the race. I have felt all along that justice now and had served out my term I would return to my law office and resume the practice of my profession."

With the meeting of that question the interview ended, Mr. Rawlins saying that he would watch the action of Congress very close while here and be ready to leave for Washington at a moment's notice.

Territorial News.

There are probably one hundred half civilized Indians composing the unique little village of Washakie, which is situated about 30 miles north of Brigham, says the Bugle. Most of the families have good, warm houses, but they use them for storerooms, preferring to live outside in their tents. "Sleep better outside, health," they claim. "White man sleep in bedroom and catch cold—get lots like chickens." The Washakie Indians own and till many good farms. But for several years they have been unfortunate with their crops. The grasshoppers seem to have a special pica at the harvests of these unfortunates. The grasshoppers' work of destruction has been so effectual for several seasons that the natives are pretty well discouraged. The prospects this year are as gloomy as ever.

Gunnison is to have a roller mill, says the Ephraim Enterprise. Messrs. Nels Thompson and J. F. Funsen of that city have purchased a site and will commence the erection of the building this week. The intention is to have the mill completed to grind this year's crop.

Dr. W. J. Hosford was mixing arsenic soap one day last week, says the Manti Messenger, when his small child crawled up and began eating the poisonous compound. Immediate work in clearing the stomach prevented any serious effects from the poison, for which the doctor and family were very thankful. * * * W. A. Cox Jr. met with what might have been a very serious accident on Tuesday afternoon. He was cutting timbers in the canyon and by an unlucky stroke of the axe came near severing all the toes from one foot. One toe was cut entirely and all of them severely cut. Dr. Morrey was called and assures the bruised foot, which is doing as well as could be expected. * * * The high waters of city creek have played somewhat in unkindness to the railroad companies, several culverts have washed out, and delayed trains especially on the Sanpete Valley line. The Western union telegraph wires have suffered, and careful examinations are made before crossing some of the ditches.

W. Riter and Mrs. Bogden will all appear in their particular lines.

ROUND THE COURTS.

A Light Day for Judge Merritt after the Storm.

THE SMITH-McKENNA SQUABBLE.

Money Raised Over Another Supposed Sensation at the Thirds Reviewed.

It must have been a welcome relief to Chief Justice Merritt, after the excitement in his court of the four preceding days, to find that he had so little to engage his attention today in the legal sense. Two or three short orders were made, then a case specially set down for hearing was taken up to an almost empty courtroom and continued until the hour for adjournment for the day had arrived—12:30 p. m.

TO FILE AMENDED ANSWER.

In the case of Mrs. L. Jones vs the Tonnie Mining company, limited, defendants were allowed till Monday, the 21st inst., to file amended answer.

FT ADJOURNMENT.

York Mining company vs Patterson. Order made for witnesses for the defendant to be subpoenaed to attend before Stenographer Frank McMurrin on Friday, May 25, to testify. This by agreement and stipulation of parties.

A CONTEMPT MATTER.

About two weeks ago the case of Sarah J. Pendrick vs J. F. Donnelly et al was heard before Judge Merritt at some length and reported in the News in detail at the time. On that occasion an order was made restraining the defendant from interfering with the collection by the sheriff of certain rents, but last evening an affidavit was filed setting forth that Donnelly had been attempting to prevent certain tenants from paying their rents, and on this representation the defendant was now called to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt. Argument was first had on demurrer to complaint, the plaintiff being represented by Attorneys Williamson & Waite and J. H. Sutherland, and the defendant by J. M. Dewey and Richards and Richards.

The demurrer was overruled and five days given to file answer, the other matter went over for two weeks.

SETTLED OUT OF COURT.

In the case against J. S. McKenna (a warrant for whose arrest was issued yesterday afternoon, as stated in that day's News) had been gone into before Commissioner McNally this morning, as arranged. It is probable that some "nasty" developments would have attended it. The charge against the defendant was that of throwing a revolver in the face of Sanner B. Smith, in an angry and threatening manner, thereby being the complainant. McKenna, it seems, has been paying his addresses to Smith's sister for some time, and his attention in this regard evidently did not meet with the unqualified approval of the young lady's family. It was out of this that the trouble spring.

When the case was called on today the announcement was made that a settlement had been effected out of court, and the breach having been to the extent thought, the commissioner dismissed the charge.

ANOTHER SIDE AT MURRAY.

It is the intention of Sheriff McGinn to go to Murray this evening or on Monday next, take one or more of the fighting with Mike, and make a match which may or may not be attended with sensational results. It is suspected that the dead body of a man named Miller has buried somewhere beneath the saloon premises until lately kept by Charles Thiede, where he was so brutally butchered a few weeks ago. It is now remembered by Murray residents that some months since Miller, who has just before returned from Butte, Mont., mysteriously disappeared. It is said he possessed considerable money and was a frequent caller at Thiede's place of "business." His sudden disappearance, though talked about at the time, did not excite any suspicion of foul play until Mrs. Thiede's murder, but since then people begin to call to mind certain strange remarks dropped by Thiede now and then, among others his assertion that he had buried his horse, "Old Dick," underneath the billiard room, and his asking some of the callers whether they would need anything offensive. These circumstances having been brought to the notice of Sheriff McQueen, an investigation will be set on foot immediately and the belief of Murray residents is that it will result in the discovery of Miller's remains. Until the digging around the spot has taken place, however, nothing can be ascertained.

SUICIDE ASHTON.

His Body was Taken from Its Grave a Second Time and Buried at the Fort.

The second exhumation of the body of the man Ashton, who threw himself under the wheels of a Union Pacific train near Layton a few days ago, took place at Farmington this morning. It was stated with a sign of relief on the part of the people of that place that the remains were taken away from there, as the constant opening of a grave was not a pleasant idea to contemplate.

A full identification of the body was made and after it arrived in this city was conveyed to Fort Douglas and buried in the post cemetery with military honors. Ashton was at one time a well known member of the Fort Douglas band. But he took to drinking heavily and constant disputes soon ended his career.

Keeping a Disorderly House.

P. T. Nystrom, the saloon keeper, is under arrest for keeping a disorderly house. The case will be investigated in the police court on Monday.
