Terrible Plot to Blow Up the British House of Parliament.

VICTORIA AND WILHELM FRIENDS.

Home for John Brown's Nephew—Talkativ and Defender—Miscellaneous Topics.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—(Copyrighted 1895, by the Associated Press.)—Ever since November 4, 1605, when a certain Guy Fawkes and others attempted such a scheme not were discovered and hanged, the possibility of a plot to blow up the Houses of Parliament has been one of the pet scares of the British officials, and regularly year after year, ever since, the vaults of the Houses of Parliament, given to the housekeeping of the lords are formally searched for powder barrels with old time ceremony and minuteness. This year, however, there was some tight show of reason for the apparently unnecessary precautions taken, for with the opening of Parliament comes the necessity, real or imaginary, of the police to send the Commissary and Guy Fawkes nearly skyward in a mode decidedly skyward in a mode decidedly unpleasant to the occupants. Whether the story in full of the afternoon papers yesterday was quite a sensation out of the other side of the Atlantic of the great metropolis have yet demulcing about it, I cannot down to cold facts, it appears that there was some foundation for the report and it seemed for the report and it seemed from the following side of facts: Some weeks ago the manager of a local printing and lithographing company was asked by a foreigner described as a "dark looking and mysterious" (of course) to lithograph a weekly paper for a Turkish company. As no knowledge of the Turkish language was necessary in the job, the manager of the English concern undertook the contract and lithographed thousands of copies of the Turkish weekly, the paper being mostly cut strips. A few days ago however, two detectives came into the establishment and asked to see the manager. The latter appeared, whereupon, sending some new business out to his office boy, he hurried very quite as he became aware that he was suspected of being implicated in a plot to blow up the House of Parliament and that his visitors hailed from Scotland Yard. In reply to his unfortunate manager's pieces of information, the detectives explained that he had been printing a paper for the guidance lacking Turkish weekly, a so-but scarlatinic sheet, frequently calling upon anarchists and others to assist in the work of blowing up the House of Parliament when the occasion of the opening session. One article actually stated that there was never a day passed on their way to England from various points it was necessary arrangements for sending the members of Parliament and the peace of the realm skyward. Despite of his protests the terrified manager was carted to Scotland Yard by the detectives, where he was collared and examined by the chief detectives and a police commissioner. All these officials the thoroughly frightened manager explained all the circumstances of the commissary "dark and mysterious looking" stranger and confided his innocence of any complicity in the treasonable plot. Satisfied at least on his way much relieved, but probably not to lithograph any more Turkish weeklies without first ascertaining the nature of their contents.

According to the Globe the police got wind of the affair owing to the breaking of some London anarchists. But the story of this latest "gunpowder plot" is far from being as thrilling as a half dime yarn, and there is a strong suspicion in more than one quarter that Scotland Yards authorities have scented a mare's nest of the latest description.

QUEEN AND EMPEROR RECONCILED.

Tale which have now leaked out respecting the meeting of Queen Victoria and Emperor William at the luncheon at private parties given by her society at Osborne during the Cowes regatta would seem to show that the cordial relations which had been in doubt of the emperor's failure to consult the queen regarding the present czarina's engagement to the czar, have again been settled and the coolness has quite vanished.

Queen Victoria has long been known to have a great liking for the emperor of Russia. While at Coburg with the queen and prince in April of last year, (the occasion of the marriage of Princess Victoria Melita of Coburg and Prince Alexander of Hesse) she spoke almost without consulting anybody to long to a hand the long pending but finally broken engagement of Princess Alix of Hesse to the then Czarevitch of Russia, and her majesty in her very much put out, as she fancied she was left out in the cold, and had nothing to such matters. This caused a coolness between himself and her imperial grandson, but during the Cowes celebration the conversations of the emperor were most animated and affectionate, those present noticing especially the great tenderness with which the emperor displayed in speaking to queen to rise after the dinner and the greater a manner in which she urged his help.

A SHOW OF FAMOUS JOHN BROWN.

Considerable comment has been caused in certain circles by the announcement that Wm. Brown, a nephew of the famous John Brown, who was of many years in Highland attendant of her majesty and her whom she has a high regard, has been appointed to the emperor's personal attendant. Wm. Brown, besides is a certain degree too somewhat British humor of his distinguished uncle.

VALEDICTORY AND DEFERENCE.

As the date of the recess of the Parliament draws nearer, the interest in the Vaudeville, and the performances of the Queen's servants. The final show took place in the English newspapers are eagerly read and much discussed. There is no doubt that the parliament here are far from feeling confident that Lord Dunraven's recent will bring the expulsion of the gland, but it is generally admitted now has a better chance to do so than any of her predecessors. Naturally the greatest interest of the experts centers in the question whether Vekgrin III will or will not have to show the Defender time and therefore, there was much disappointment when it was announced that the measurements of the boy defender will not be known until shortly before the first race.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Since the August bank holiday the more important London theaters are closing one after another. Among those known given up to cleaners and decorators are Drury Lane, Covent Garden, the Lyceum, the Garrick, Comedy, Court, Savoy, Shaftesbury and the Strand. The leaves a small margin of fashionable West End houses that are open to the selection of the American tripper and the London Cockney. It is not this since the Strand and its immediate vicinity was considered the only location where theatrical performances might be seriously given. Now, however, the suburbs are all coming in for the separate house of entertainment. There is the Metropole, the Camberwell and the Parkhouse in Holloway. There is the Lyric opera house at Hammersmith and at Ealing there is another lyric theater while a Shakespeare theater is being built at Clapham.

The routes that continued doing the largest business are the Trafalgar, with the Pavilion, which has lost some of its popularity with its removal from Terry's theater; the Prince of Wales, with Arthur Roberts as gentleman Joe, and the Adelphi, where the successful American drama, The Girl I Left Behind Me, is now drawing to a close.

Olga Nethersole has appeared during the week at the Grand theater in the great popular Camille. During her long of the references which will follow she will play in a dramatic version of a Russian as adaptation to Dumas's Denise.

Mr. and Mrs. Barrett, who left London a week ago for their summer vacation, are in the Engadine where they will spend a portion of the autumn.

The only novelty of the past ten days has been the production of the musical farce "All Aboard," at the Criterion, which during Mr. Wyndham's absence has passed into the hands of Mr. Charles Wyndham. This piece is by the authors of "The Gaiety Girls," Owen Hall and J. T. Tanner. The cast includes Kate Cutler, H. De Lasker, Horace Mills, C. P. Little and Ada Reeve.

MISCELLANEOUS NOTES.

The publishers of Hamlet cheap editions of Friday are making desperate efforts to force the sale of the novel which had so extraordinary a sale in Germany. In spite of the fact, however, the story does not seem to have all the popular ties of an entertaining book for the English public.

The old Hengler circus in Argyle square, so well known to American visitors, is shortly to be turned into a skating rink under the title of the National Skating Palace. Real ice will be the great attraction.

Madam Sarah Grand is the latest recruit among the bicyclists.

Mr. Wilkie Bard, who left to Lyther Castle as the guest of Lord Lonsdale has been one of increased activity, and is one day he traveled seventy miles by coach and spent three hours in lane and hills country. As usual, every arrangement was made that the sport should not be marred by want of game. During the Scotch shooting, the emperor bagged nearly fifty brace of grouse, and although he is a capital shot, the precaution was taken to have the birds driven almost up to the muzzle of his gun.

There has been much adverse comment in sporting and other circles here on the action of Sullivan in to Mr. F. Dwyer, the American horseman after his return in New York, after racing his horses in England. The story of the latest "gamester" duel is far from being as thrilling as a half dime yarn, and there is a strong suspicion in more than one quarter that Scotland Yards authorities have scented a mare's nest of the latest description.

KILLING OF INDIANS

Does Not Seem to Be a Crime Easily Reached by Justice.

THE JACKSON'S HOLE AFFAIR.

Nothing Done so Far to Protect the Redskins—The Government's Position.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 17.—In spite of reports to the contrary, it may be definitely stated that the Indian bureau as yet has taken no steps whatever looking to the punishment of the Jackson's Hole settlers for the killing of Bannock Indians. The bureau has sent no communication on the subject to the department of justice. It is probable, however, that steps will be taken to bring those engaged in the killing to justice. The delay has been caused by the fact that as law is known easier which the United States courts don't take cognizance of the matter, and the further fact that it is pretty clear impossible to secure conviction under the Wyoming state courts owing to the strong feeling here against the Indians.

Today, however, it was discovered that the treaty of July 3, 1868, between the United States and the Bannock and Shoshone Indians contains this provision: "If any person belonging to the whites or among other people subject to the authorities of the United States shall commit any wrong upon persons or property of the Indians, the United States will, upon proof made to the agent and forwarded to the commissioner of Indian affairs at Washington city, proceed at once to cause the offender to be arrested and punished according to the laws of the United States and also reimburse the injured person for the loss sustained."

While the treaty has not yet decided on a course of action, it is probable an effort will be made by U. S. marshals to arrest the men who participated in the affair. If last mentioned, the prisoners are then sent for trial to the place of taken origin, thus bringing the validity of the treaty and law into alliance relating to Indians into force.

Bullet Stopped by Gun.

CLEARFIELD, Pa., Aug. 17.—Five Italians, miners, employed in cutting the tunnel of the new Pennsylvania and Eastern railroad, were suffocated to death last night by escaping gas from a coal tank opened by explosion.

The Natives Alarmed at the Arrival of the Ambassadors.

HONG KONG, Aug. 17.—The commission appointed to investigate the massacre of missionaries and their families at Ku Cheng, which left Foo Chow Tuesday, arrived safely at Ku Cheng. Important arrests have been made in connection with the massacre. The natives appear to be much alarmed at the arrival of the commission. The commission consists of H. W. Mansfield, acting British consul at Foo Chow; J. J. C. Hobbs, United States consul; Foo Chow; E. L. Allen, British consul at Pagoda island; Rev. Mr. Bassett, Rev. Mr. Sheffield and Evans, of the United States war ship Detroit, together with a number of Chinese officials of high rank. The commission is escorted by 100 Chinese troops.

In Danger of Lynching.

It was like a volcano, which could not be suppressed by covering the crater. The belief is the east that it was dying out, but it was due to the fact that it had now passed the pyrotechnic stage of noise and demonstration.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Aug. 17.—Twelve tramps gave the police in charge of chase and a pitched battle today. Policeman Sheffer was shot through the right shoulder and Policeman Smith in the right foot.

For some time past tramps have been making a rendezvous in our City street bridge over the Lake Shore road. Policemen Sheffer received the gang to leave. A part did so, but three refused to go. He called Officer Smith to his aid and proceeded to drive them out, when Clarence A. Smith, a senior from New York, drew a pistol and wounded three men.

The patrol wagon was summoned and after two hours' siege three were captured, after Smith had his leg from the same man's pistol, with bird shot from a double-barrelled shotgun fired by an officer.

Foreign Minister Resigns.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 17.—The Novosti publishes a dispatch from Vladivostok, saying the Korean reform military has resigned, owing to a conflict of opinion with the queen regarding the organization of the military forces. The minister is proceeding to Japan, where charges will be brought against him. The Japanese are and to explore the ruins of the palace, all and machinery which attempted to wreck the Japanese regiment. The regiment would have been destroyed had it not been protected by troops. The Korean added that the Japanese are better friendly returned to Seoul in order to restore the prestige of Japan.

Hot Gainesville, who gave him a drink and told him to go to his head under the hydrant and put it wet and he would bail all right.

Two Naughty Girls.

On one of the streets in Garfield Beach yesterday afternoon were two little girls, aged about 10 and 8 years, who were in for stealing a ride to the lake. When the conductor came across them he was in a quandary, as the girls had no tickets. Finally it was decided to take them on to Garfield, as it would have been an inhuman act to have dumped them on the platform.

At the Beach they were given some liberty until they could be taken back by the train back. In a few minutes a lady came to the conductor and complained that her basket had been stolen, with a child's jacket and some other articles which it contained. Mr. Burnham started in search, discovering that the girls had done the stealing. They said they took the basket, supposing it to be filled with food, but they found it to be only some clothes.

From the time on the girls, who had run away from home, were kept under close surveillance, and were brought by them to the evening train, in the city they were given a good talking to, and as they seemed penitent, were permitted to go home without prosecution. Their parents are willing to pay for the present. They have parents here who will have to exercise greater care over their offspring, or they will have on their hands a pair of least two children who ought to be useful members of society.

Hitched the Wrong Team.

Larson Pratt, of the Governmental ward, has been arrested of late by the condition of a horse he wants to possess. The animal is in the best of health, but the trouble was that three or four times a week she had no milk for the owner, though instantly giving a big supply. She was turned out of the yard, and as this is contrary to a high board fence, the animal could not be easily entered, how the cow came to be milked is puzzling to any stranger and was not understood. The mystery has been cleared, however, and the secret is known. One of the children went out to the yard a few minutes ago to milk the cow and saw from a window a man drive in a team of four near by. She called to her father, but by the time the pair of the family had gone out, the intruder was disappearing over the fence with his pail. Mr. Pratt is rather incredulous, and is in no mood to be bother by any trifling matter. The accused of late also is reported to excess the worst glasses. But it looks to any more milk stealing there will be no pretty sight for the unwelcome visitor.

DOUSED BOSOVAN'S PUP.

Old Tom King Gets a Drink, But Fails to Follow the Advice of Jailer Kinkel.

Tom King, an old lodger at the city hearing house, was before Judge Kinkel this morning, to have been over long in the time a twenty-five days' sentence. Tom is already and is allowed to wander about the jail and grounds at will, and does not have to return. Yesterday he came with a big load and having tough after the effects of the spree on the day previous, Jailer Gimmell set him to work pulling him that to send Captain Donovan's pup, old mend Tom's condition he gave him a drink and told him to go to his head under the hydrant and put it wet and he would bail all right.

Pretty sweet revenge sooner and into the jailer that he had put the pup's head under the stream and Tom rubbed it thoroughly. Then there was a big old fat man, who had had Tom hed mean treated him. He stood and let the cold water under his head and he rubbed it vigorously. Three and seven men were treated in the same manner, and upon the natural's head.

IN THE LEGAL MILL.

Three Wives Turned Loose from Their Husbands.

GIRL GOES TO THE REFORM SCHOOL.

Judge Bartch Holds Court, Transacts Business and Adjourns for a Week.

The divorce mill was going all right in the third district court today, Judge Bartch presiding. When the court adjourned it was till Saturday next, but before the hour of closing it has liberated three wives from their husbands, and a girl to the Reform school, and dispose of formal business in easily half a score of lawsuits.

In the Boyd divorce case, Mrs. Ruth Boyd testified that her husband, Harry Boyd, had deserted her in 1884, going to Idaho. He had written to her in June and August, 1884, and in March, 1885. Since having her he had not furnished her any means of support. They had never had any trouble. He had left her and failed to return. They were married in 1882. He has refused to return to her. Mrs. Foster was cross-charged by her mother, and the divorce was granted.

Annie Hogg, a girl 14 years of age, from Davis county, was brought into court in the custody of the sheriff, having been convicted of stealing. Her case was referred to the reform school. Her mother is in the school at Ogden.

In the divorce case of Ingalls against Ingalls, Mrs. Sigen, Mrs. Sigen testified that her husband, Ira Ingalls, left her in 1884. Her husband had provided her with very little while she lived with him, and marauding her enough to eat. He had not provided for her at all for over a year. When the sales amounted to $1 a week, he said he was all that enough to give any woman that amount to save house-work. He had done the best he could for him, but he had treated her and has been cruel and harsh in his treatment, using obscene language to her on many occasions. He had plenty of property. Mr. Christensen corroborated Mrs. Sigen's testimony, and the decree was granted dissolving the bonds of matrimony.

The third divorce case taken up was that of Eleanor Gardner vs Charles C. O'Keith. Mrs. O'Keith, who was resident at Stockton, Salt Lake county, said she was married in Florence, Kansas, in 1882. Her husband deserted her in the fall of 1883, and she had not seen or heard from him. He was a conductor on a railway. She corresponded with his parents six or seven years after he left her. She had not seen him since 1886. Miss Victoria Lines, sister of the plaintiff, testified of O'Keith's departure, of the illness of his wife to find him, and of her failure to do so. Divorce was granted.

Other business was as follows:

Wm. H. McClure et al vs James T. Little et al; motion to leave to file complaint to intervention granted; further hearing of the case referred to Judge Bartch's return from Beaver.

Samuel Cooper vs Carl L. Welst et al; J. C. Hyde appointed guardian ad litem.

Elizabeth E. Cumberland vs Albert J. White et al; dismissed as to defendant Armstrong and default entered as to the others; decree of foreclosure of mortgage.

Hannah Kirgiss Ogden vs John T. Wilson et al; default and foreclosure of mortgage.

William H. McIntyre vs L. G. Hardy et al; default and foreclosure of mortgage.

Charles H. Jones and J. W. Clark et al; motion for reference at this time denied.

James C. Watson et al vs Robert Watson et al; G. Putnam enters appearance for defendants.

Hattie Lenat vs F. S. Hadley; statement on motion for new trial settled.

Jacob Walter Jr., Perkins; motion to give proceedings, testimony with the bond September 4th, by Judge Merritt. Meantime the defendant is out on his own recognizance.

STILL BUSTLING IN TOOELE.

Cattle and Horse Thieves Are Operating, But Not on an Extensive Scale—Taxpayers Will Stand by Sheriff McKellar.

John Rydalch, the well known ranch and live stock man, was in this city from Grantsville, Tooele county, today. He says that horse and cattle thieves are still doing a little rustling in that section, though they are not nearly so active as they have been.

Sheriff McKellar is making an excellent record and the "rustlers" are beginning to look upon him and his assistants in the manner of the most emphatic character. Some time past the county court of Tooele has set, it is claimed, been so generous as it should be in the matter of providing funds for the sheriff in the matter of catching the thieves. Hereafter, Mr. Rydalch says, it will be different as some of the leading citizens and resident property owners have decided to send payment of their tax notices the sheriffs give assurance that they will stand by the sheriff in his work of running down and capturing marauders.

Musical.

Mrsilek, the celebrated Belgian violinist and first professor at the Paris Conservatory of Music, is summering in Switzerland. He has been engaged for a series of fifty concerts in the United States the coming season. This will be his first appearance in America. It is anticipated that he will give one or more performances in Salt Lake.
