FLAG MAY WAVE OVER THEM ALL

The Central and South American Governments Under U. S. Directorate.

SO SAYS PREST. ANDREWS.

This Country Recently Considered a Third Rate Power But Transition Has Startled the World.

In a lecture before a large and appreciative audience at the assembly hall last evening, Dr. E. Benjamin Andrews, president of the University of Nebraska, said:

"It is my belief that within a quarter of a century the great majority of the Central and South American republics will be under the directorate of the United States.

"Ten or twelve years ago, before the war with Spain, the United States was considered a third power among the nations of the world, but during the last decade there has been such an unprecedented advance in the power of this country that the transition has startled the world. From her position of 10 years ago, the United States now stands foremost among the powers of the earth. And with the greater power, comes the more pressing responsibility and the greater problems which the American people and the government are called upon to face.

IMPROVEMENT NEEDED.

"The first of these problems, I believe, should be the improvement of the consular and diplomatic service. During the last few years the former has been altered and bettered greatly, but the diplomatic service is still greatly in need of revolution. We have had our full quota of politicians—good and bad. And it might not be putting it too strongly if I say that we have had more than our share of bad ones. But though we have had politicians, we have lacked statesmen. From John Hay, John Quincy Adams down through the ages we have had statesmen who have ranked with the diplomats of the world. But you could count on the digits of your two hands the number of good diplomats who have been born and reared in this United States. Because of the property of this talent, this country has ranked as second or third in matters of world-wide problems when diplomats of nations have met and discussed problems. An exception to this was gained at the Geneva award, when Charles Francis Adams won his case and the fight of America. We need more diplomats, now that we have assumed probably the first place in the rank of nations. Universities and colleges must raise and train more and there must be a place for these at Washington where their talent will find a place, an occupation, a career.

"The second great problem is the colonial government or administration. It makes no difference whether we are in favor of colonial government or not—the fact remains that we have assumed the role of a colonial government and the great problems coming with such a change must be faced. How strange it seems!

"The greatest republic in the world today, the greatest in the history of the world, a colonial power! And the problems of that government which are with us today, will remain with us for at least 25 years. No president and no Congress can alter the problems in that time. The political power in our colonial possessions must be as good as it is at home.

MUST NOT OFFEND.

"Many of the same problems which confronted Rome and which confronted England are the ones with which the United States must deal now. And we should profit by the blunders and mistakes made by these two great nations in their efforts at colonial government. In order to do the best we can, we must steer clear of the mistakes they have made. In India the British government made a law which demanded that all British subjects there must speak the English language. All cases in court were spoken in English. That was repealed after a trial of 25 years, when the people of India refused to be coerced into learning the language, but that law wrought a harm which is still felt in the colony.

"Let us make no such mistake in the Philippines.

"There are certain other things which should be sedulously avoided in our possessions. While we must preach our religion, we must be careful not to offend the beliefs of others. I think there was never a greater opportunity for the churches of the United States for missionary work in the Philippines than at the present time. It is a privilege to send missionaries there to teach the faith—it is a duty, and there was never a better time than at the present.

"We must not needlessly offend the prejudices of our cousins. I say needlessly because some of them must be offended to make the government good and strong. The Filipinos in many sections wear trousers not at all like the men wear in this country. They are short at the bottom and short at the top. But I do not believe in trying to force the natives to adopt our style of clothing. Let the 'trouser question' rest for a few years, and work out its own solution. But while we are in the islands we are there to govern them and if we cannot, we have no business over there. We should give them a good government, which embodies three main points—life, liberty, property.

THE MONROE DOCTRINE.

"But there is an ulterior phase which will assert itself in the near future. I tell you that the time will come when many of our dependencies will be found forward enough to be united into a territorial form of self-government. In the southern part of Asia, I believe the people almost capable of self-government now, and in all the honest opinion that within a comparatively few years they will be making their own laws, levying their own taxes, with only slight surveillance from home. And the next step in the natural development will be their admission to statehood in the United States.

"The third great problem is the Monroe doctrine in its newest and most aggravated phase. In the Santo Domingo controversy many cried out that the president was assuming a new attitude and destroying the force and meaning of the Monroe doctrine by virtually assuming the protectorate of the island republic. As for myself I believe it was a wise move and the only one that could be made under the circumstances. And I firmly believe that the full meaning of the Monroe doctrine was carried out in that action. Foreign creditors were pressing the republic for settlements, and it cried for help from its nearest friend. The president sent a commission there which began taking in all of the revenues, taking out 60 per cent for the creditors and allowing 40 per cent on which the republic is now living run. It is probable that this protectorate will be continued even after the foreign creditors are paid off. The same situation had to be met in Venezuela. There is no doubt in my mind but that the nominal authority will remain there, but that the real power will come from Washington. But what would happen if this were not the case, if the men were brought back home? Several of the foreign powers would step in, one at least, and assume the same protectorate. And where would the Monroe doctrine be then?

LITTLE ADVANCEMENT.

"With Mexico on the north and Argentina and Chile on the south, the republics in South America have not advanced far since the time they gained their independence from Spain between 1813 and 1825. The curse of Spain still holds to the land. And for this reason I believe that within the next quarter of a century most of the Central and South American republics will be under a protectorate of the United States. They cannot govern themselves, as is shown in the constant revolutions, and this step will have to be taken by this government in order that some foreign power does not step in for the same reason and assume the same power."

The fourth problem Dr. Andrews termed "The United States as a Pacific Ocean Power." He cited that this country has a longer coast line than any other country on the Pacific. This, with the greater civilization of the three coast states, California, Oregon and Washington, made the western coast doubly strong. He declared that some time before long Russia will again begin herself, build a great navy and set out to make herself master of the Pacific. Dr. Andrews said that the government must look well to the fortification of the western coast.

He prophesied a break in the peaceful attitude between America and Russia in the near future, owing to the friendship shown for England by this country and the hatred which Russia bears for England. The future of China depends greatly on the strength of the United States in the Pacific, he said, as both Russia and Japan are even now casting longing eyes at the great kingdom. He said that the building of the Panama canal would in a great measure aid in bettering the fortifications on the western coast.

WHAT ARE YOU WORTH?

Subject of Sermon by Rev. Stevenson At Presbyterian Church.

At the Third Presbyterian church yesterday morning, Rev. Robert M. Stevenson preached, taking for his subject, "What are you worth to your community?" Mr. Stevenson said in part:

"A commercial agency would determine the value of the land, the value of improvements and the value of growing crops. In their sum they would obtain worth. It would not be so with Jesus. With Him, not what a man has, but the use he makes of what he has, determines his worth. From this point of view, what was that man worth? In the parable we hear Him say, after concluding to pull down his old barns and to build his new and greater ones, 'Then will I say unto my soul, 'Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years; take thine ease, eat, drink and be merry.' Can you discover in his language any recognition of anybody else in the universe than himself? There is no recognition of God nor man. It is not strange that God says to him, 'Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee: then whose shall those things be, which thou hast provided?' Then Jesus lays down a broad general principle when he says, 'So is he that layeth up treasure for himself, and is not rich toward God.' Then, this man was worth nothing to the community in which he lived.

"Some time ago we passed through a series of years that we called the 'hard times.' Banks were breaking, mortgages were being foreclosed and men were going to the wall. We learned then very keenly that it was not what a bank had determined its worth and not what a man had determined his worth. The vaults of a bank might be filled with golden eagles from the floor to the roof, but if the doors were closed and locked and those golden eagles were not permitted to fly forth to tide men over hard places, the bank was worth nothing. Just as a bank put its money in circulation, it had worth; and just as a man put his money in circulation, he had worth. So that, it is not what a man has that determines his worth, but the use he makes of what he has.

"The idea prevails all too widely, that unless we have money, we cannot do good in the world, that money determines worth. No greater mistake can be made. How often we have heard persons exclaim, 'Oh, if I just had money, how much good would I do!' Just as if they could not do good without money. I do not fail to recognize the good that may be done with money, but it is not the only way by which good may be done."

KNOWS HOW.

Doctor Was Fooled by His Own Case for A Time.

It's easy to understand how ordinary people get fooled by coffee when doctors themselves sometimes forget the facts.

A physician speaks of his own experience:

"I had used coffee for years and really did not exactly believe it was injuring me although I had palpitation of the heart every day.

"Finally one day a severe and almost fatal attack of heart trouble frightened me and I gave up both tea and coffee, using Postum instead, and since that time I have had absolutely no heart palpitation except on one or two occasions when I tried a small quantity of coffee which caused severe irritation and proved to me I must let it alone.

"When we began using Postum it seemed weak—that was because we did not make it according to directions—but now we put a little bit of butter in the pot when boiling and allow the Postum to boil full 15 minutes, which gives it the proper rich flavor and the deep brown color.

"I have advised a great many of my friends and patients to leave off coffee and drink Postum, in fact I daily give this advice." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Many thousands of physicians use Postum in place of tea and coffee in their own homes and prescribe it to patients. "There's a reason."

TOO LATE?

MAMA! Don't be frightened—but be warned!

Every Mother knows, or should know, that the terrible Mortality among little children is caused by Stomach and Bowel troubles. Colic, Sour Curd, Cholera Infantum, Summer Complaint, Measles, Rashes, Scarlet Fever—even Mumps—have their first cause in constipation.

The Delicate Tissues of a Baby's Bowels will not stand rough treatment. Salts are too violent, and Castor Oil will only grease the passages, but will not make and keep them Clean, Healthy and Strong.

* * *

There is no other medicine as safe for a child as Cascarets, the fragrant little Candy Tablet, that has saved thousands of families from unhappiness.

The Nursing Mother even in good health should always keep her own Bowels Loose, and her Milk Mildly Purgative by taking a Cascaret at night before going to bed.

No other medicine has this remarkable and valuable quality. Mama takes the Cascaret, Baby gets the Benefit.

Cascarets act like strengthening Exercise on the weak little bowels of the growing babe, and make them better able to get all the Nourishment out of Baby's Natural Food.

Larger children cannot always be watched, and will eat unreasonably. The Ready Remedy should ever be at hand—Cascarets—to take care of the trouble when it comes.

No need to Force or Bribe children to take Cascarets. They are always more than ready to eat the sweet little bit of Candy.

Repulsive medicine forced on the little ones does more harm than good.

* * *

Home is not complete without the ever ready Box of Cascarets. Ten cents buys a small one at the Corner Drug Store.

Be very careful to get the genuine, made only by the Sterling Remedy Company and never sold in bulk. Every tablet stamped "CCC."

Wm. STONEMAN AND M. S. ROCK

Two soft hearted (not stone nor rock) grocers, fed two men and their families during the hard winter of 1894. One dead beat stonecutter went to Canada, the other, a railroad clerk, went to Omaha and then into bankruptcy, but we caught them both.
