SUICIDE OF BRUCE BOYLE.

Tuesday afternoon soon after three o'clock the police were startled by the report that Bruce Boyle, a young man of good family, had committed suicide. Inquiry elicited the information that the act had been done at about three p. m., at the residence of his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Boyle, at Twenty-eighth street, where he boarded.

It is said that at home all day, he was in a cheerful mood, and did not show any signs of being about to commit the act which he did. At the time when the act was performed he was alone, and it was only by accident that his mother was alone in the kitchen in the rear of the house. The shots were attracted the latter to the back grounds, and went at once to the kitchen, where they were startled at the terrible sight. She ran out and found a young wound in the left temple, and a revolver in the hand. Dr. Pratt was soon on the ground, but nothing could be done. Young Bertie Bim was a large young man, who was in the habit of wearing a long beard, and without speaking anything unusual. A physician was immediately summoned, but your "Brave" was dead when he arrived.

Justice Joseph Hall of the Fifth Ogden precinct was notified of the death and summoned a coroner's jury, consisting of D. H. Stockess, Daniel Page and W. M. Hamilton, and we are informed, proceeded to hold an inquest over the remains. They reached Justice Hall's office, where the dead body of young Bruce Boyle came to his death from a wound inflicted by a butcher knife in the hands of himself, in a state of temporary insanity.

The deceased is a member of the well known Boyle family—one of the other and most highly respected families of this city. He had no enemies, so far as known, but he had no permanent home, but for all that he was generally well liked, and people who knew him were shocked at the news of his death. He was a man who was fond of his mother, and who was fond with a mantle of charity. He had a wife, from whom he had been separated for some time, and his relatives are Bruce John A. Boyle, Mrs. Lizzie Boyle and Mrs. Hall.
