General Instructions Issued by the Internal Revenue Commissioner.

Washington, July 5.—The commissioner of internal revenue today issued the following circular in all revenue matters regarding the sale of internal revenue stamps:

"In view of the large number of stamps that have been placed in the hands of collectors of internal revenue, and the consequent necessity for a prompt distribution among revenue officers, I hereby authorize collectors to deliver to revenue officers, upon their receipts, such stamps as may be required for immediate use in their business, and in cases where they have been a month's distribution of revenue to secure an origin supply.

"Collectors should receive good care to adjust their accounts with revenue officers so that a fair distribution of the stamps needed by the taxpayers is not prevented by either some above mentioned delay.

"In no case should the purchasing by taxpayers of stamps, be delayed, weeks, days, and, at the most, days, should be needed now by collectors to secure supply of stamps, and, if, in any case, it should be so, it is, of course, the duty of the collector to secure the stamps at a discount of 2 per cent, as allowed by law, on the face amount of stamps, which, in the case of stamps, amounting to $100 or more.

"The only arrangements that will be made for the sale of adhesive stamps are those above indicated, namely, the sale to revenue officers, which, in case a purchaser willing to take them on the terms fixed by the law for resale to taxpayers, can be supplied to the extent of the amount, reasonable and ready supply.
