COLORADO MINERS' TROUBLE.

Mexican Outlaws and Their Depredations.—A Startling Find.—Dynamite Cartridge Explosion.

James Carmicelni, the only survivor of the terrible mine accident at King, has just died. It had been impossible to bring him to consciousness, and he has lain in a state of partial agony ever since the accident.

John Young has returned from the opal fields. He brought in some of the largest specimens of opals that have been seen here. His company has located sixty acres about six miles west of the Warm Springs.—Idaho Democrat.

The explosion of a dynamite cartridge Mexicans injured Leroy Case, who has been prospecting for mineral at Cheyenne canyon, Colorado. Three fingers of one hand were badly mangled and a piece of flesh was blown from one of his legs.

Colorado Springs capitalists are discussing the construction of an electric road from that city to Cripple Creek. It is proposed to place electric stations along the twenty-five mile route, which is said to be a scenic line of unrivaled attractions.

The police authorities of Brownsville, Texas, have been kept busy curing the past few days protecting the city from depredations of a band of about twenty-five Mexican outlaws, who recently deserted from the army in that country. They have committed many daring crimes.

One of the most important industries in Denver is that conducted by the Colorado Coal and Coke company in a plant for the exclusive manufacture of coke, says the News of that city. It is the largest institution of the kind in the United States. The quality is of the best.

Hailey (Idaho) Times.—Judge Waters still has in his cellar apples picked from the tree in his orchard in this city in the fall of 1891. They are firm and in good condition in every way, and the judge is thinking of entering them at the World's Fair. He thinks he would get the prize for good keepers.

The death has occurred of the 2-year-old son of D. W. Wayland of Colorado Springs, who swallowed a quantity of concentrated lye several weeks ago. For some time after the accident the child continued to improve and the physicians had hopes of saving his life, but a few days ago he had a relapse and grew worse until death ensued.

A committee of the Dutch colonists at Alamosa is making carefulexaminations of the lands in the Arkansas valley east of Pueblo, Colo., and they called to a committee of the board of trade today that the next colony from Holland will be located in the vicinity of Pueblo. A special committee of the board of trade has the matter in charge and a colony will arrive in a few weeks.

Thomas J. Pulling, manager of the Denver Investment and Banking corporation, has just returned from a trip to London, England, where he successfully negotiated $50,000 additional stock in his company, which will now be judiciously invested in local enterprises. He reports the English money market as in a most peculiar condition, completely glutted in fact and utterly at a loss for investments, but none the less exceedingly timid about anything and everything outside the British isles.

Mesa county, Arizona, has been made defendant in an action brought in the district court by State Engineer James P. Maxwell, to begin at Rico, Colo., Mr. Maxwell sets up that on September 12, 1889, the board of county commissioners of Garfield county filed with him a petition showing that the boundary line of Garfield county on the north, and Pitkin and Mesa counties on the south, were so indefinite that a portion of the territory was claimed by each of said counties. The state engineer says that he ran a line and furnished each county a description of its boundaries. The amount sued for, $1,579.18, is Mesa county's share of the expense.

The agricultural department of the university of Wyoming has issued bulletin No. 9, which relates to experiments in beet sugar culture in 1892. The seventy-one analysis of beets grown by eighteen different farmers in various parts of the state gave an average of 16.69 sugar in juice, or 15.55 per cent sugar in beets with a purity of 79.69 per cent. The excellence of these can be judged when it is stated that the average richness of the beets used at the Nevada factory in 1889 was 16 per cent, in 1891 was 14 per cent, and in 1892 was 15.5 per cent. The bulletin is from the pen of the chemist, Prof. E. E. Slosson.

Last week the taxpayers of El Paso, Texas, voted the issuance of $205,000 of bonds for the construction of an entire new system of waterworks in the city. The cause of this action on the part of the city was on account of the very limited supply and thick, slimy quality of water furnished by the El Paso water company owned principally by Sylvester Watts of St. Louis. The attorneys for the latter subsequently went before the district court and procured a notice of temporary injunction, restraining the city from issuing the bonds. The case is set for the 28th, and in the meantime the city is making preparations to issue the bonds and contract for the construction of the new system before the court can take any action.

One of the most startling finds ever made in the Canyon City section of Colorado has been unearthed at Rockvale, a small mining camp nine miles northeast of that place. The Santa Fe Coal company, which has large mining interests at that point, was excavating in the bottom of a gulch for the purpose of putting in a new track, when a peculiar formation was run into. The workmen stopped to examine, and on digging around the spot the strange thing was found to be a perfectly formed snake, twelve feet in length. This find caused no minor excitement that the excavation was continued, and at a little distance another reptile was uncovered, and on being dug out was found to be twenty-four feet in length and so thick through as a man's body and perfectly petrified. This caused still greater excitement, and all work was stopped to dig for snakes. Another was soon struck and is not yet uncovered. The reptiles were found at a depth of three feet. Dots in ore but recent so far, but a large number of people claim to have visited the find, and say facts as stated are true.

Convicts working in the stone quarries near the penitentiary at Boise have unearthed a number of human bones, supposed to have belonged at some point to the noble red men. A quantity of Indian flinty, such as beads, bracelets, etc., were discovered with the bones. The discovery find was no surprise to the old timers of the city, who have known for years that many Indians were, during the early days, buried in the rocks on the hill back of where the penitentiary now stands. To some, however, the discovery of the bones proved a source of much curiosity and excitement, and they told of imaginary caliber in bygone days near where the state prison is now located in which many white and Indian men, women and children were slain. Ex-Governor Stevenson says that in 1864 a large band of Indians had their camp near Table rock mountain for a long period. Many of the "braves" died during their encampment at that point and were buried near by.

It now looks as though all the miners working on the Enterprise and Rico-Aspen mines at Rico, Colo., would go on a strike not later than the first of next month. During the week the Enterprise company gave the miners' union notice that on and after February 1st wages would be reduced to $3 per day. At a meeting of the union men it is understood that they have resolved not to go to work at the reduced schedule, which they claim is unjust, by a company that boasts of having paid $50,000,000 per month in dividends during the past year. The Aspen company have started up work on the $3 schedule with a small force of men and are giving employment to all miners who wish to go to work at $3 per day. Should the men go on a strike, it is probable that these two mines will close down for an indefinite period, and when they do go to work again it will be upon the following schedule: Engineers, $4; top men, $3.50; trammers, $3; miners, $4; timber men, $3.50; carpenters, $3.50; blacksmiths, $3.50; sorters, $2.50 to $3 per day according to efficiency. Board will be reduced to $5 per week. The Rico-Aspen employs 275 men and the Enterprise 250.—Denver News.

Utah presents a rich field for antiquarian research. Mr. Don Maguire has recently been making extensive explorations in the southern part of the territory and is very firm in his conclusion that that section was once inhabited by a powerful race who lived in cities and pursued all the commercial and industrial arts. The capital city or home of the ruler of this people, was, he believes, at Paragoonah, in which locality he has been making his explorations and which have been rewarded by the discovery of what was undoubtedly the ruler's palace. This palace was constructed of adobe and was originally about 150x250 feet. As the adobe walls crumbled and the entire structure collapsed it formed a huge mound. After digging into the mound and removing the mass of debris and adobe soil on top, the lower rooms of the building were revealed, the walls still retaining their original shape. In the center of the palace was a large court, which was surrounded by a great number of small rooms. Several of these rooms have been excavated and several human skeletons and a large amount of pottery taken out. Prof. Montgomery, who is with the expedition, regards the discovery as one of great importance, and as there are other mounds in the locality the supposition is that they too contain the ruins of ancient buildings. The theory is that these plain dwellers preceded the cliff dwellers, that they were driven from their homes by savage invaders and sought refuge in the canyons; that from them came the cliff dwellers who, in turn, were driven from their rocky homes southward to become the progenitors of the Pueblo tribes.—Denver News.
