The roots of a tree on a Tombstone, Arizona, street grew around the main water pipe and caused it to burst a few mornings ago.

George Stephens, a gardener, while out hunting near Yuba City, Cal., accidentally shot himself in the left side. A separation followed.

The chief of police of Stockton, Cal., and six men the other night got into a faro game and captured the dealers and players, twenty-one in number.

The murder of the Chinese women in the streets of Portland, Oregon, is still unsolved in spite of mystery. There is absolutely no clue to the assassin.

Much interest is being exhibited in Tucson, A. T., in the formation of a strong jury club, and the possibilities are that a territorial racing circuit will be soon established.

Tramps have become so numerous in El Paso that the city marshal thinks it necessary to pass an ordinance looking toward an enlargement of the city jail.

The magazine of the Oswego mine, says the Lake Democrat, was broken into the other night and a box of stick-safety powder and a box of sticks stolen. Horse thieves left the story.

A distinguished party of Chicago people spent a couple of days in Denver this week, coming on the Union Pacific. They came here for the purpose of making final proof on land they had filed upon three years ago.

Near Tucson, A. T., a few days ago Tom White received severe injuries. He was thrown from his horse as the animal fell on him, pressing the saddle horn into his breast. He may die.

San Diego, Cal., heard of shipping potatoes in a large way. Last week over 2000 sacks were loaded at that port. Many of these go to interior points, and some are sent to Lower California.

Lottie Emerson, a 15-year-old girl employed at a steam laundry in Nicolai, Cal., was severely injured by having her right arm drawn into a mangle. No bones were broken, but the flesh was badly mashed.

Says the Wardner (Idaho) Journal: Times were never better in Shoshone than right now after the recent elections. Our people have more money and were better citizens and are higher and feel better than any other community in the state.

Lieutenant Mattie, of Fort Vancouver, and Mollie Wright have just returned to Lake Merle, Oregon, in time enough to cross the north fork of Lake creek into the Clear Water country, where it is proposed that Will Carlin, son of General Carlin, and a party of friends are lost, unable to get out.

Miss Collins staggered the Santa Ana board of education recently by making a proposition to have her wages as teacher reduced from $75 to $72 per month. It was moved that the lady be presented with a pencil sharpener, which was carried, and the reduction was made with entire unanimity.

Augustine Acosta, a well-to-do farmer and fruit-raiser of Stockton, Cal., has been stabbed to death by his latchet. It was at first thought the two men had quarreled about a business matter, but further investigations have shown that perhaps the main cause was jealousy. The officers had some difficulty in dispelling the mystery that surrounded the affair owing to the fact that all the parties concerned were Indians and disposed to talk.

A special to the Sacramento (Cal.) Record-Union from Folsom, says that the prison directors have taken their first action under the parole law. A prisoner under sentence from Shasta county for murder was granted parole, and John Mackey will give him employment and be responsible for him. A Pit river Indian was also paroled. He was sentenced for killing a medicine man who had failed to cure the chief's brother.

H. W. Wulff, proprietor at Mason, Cal., discovered a big lynx in his chicken house the other night. His bull dog sprang over toward the lynx and began hostilities. True to his nature the dog set his jaws fast in his antagonist's throat. For twenty minutes the fight continued and then bull dog and lynx grew quieter. Wulff got a lantern and found his dog lying just outside the hen house and nearly exhausted. Inside lay the lynx with his throat and neck broken. The bull dog was badly scratched and bitten.

There is a report flying about the city, says the Denver Times, that there is no foundation for holding Governor Waite, or to get him out of the way for a space of time months. It looks on the face like a wild scheme without possible foundation, but a number of responsible citizens affirm that they have been approached to contribute a sum of money toward procuring the end. The governor has given it out to his intimate friends that he will not call an extra session until after January 1, if at all, which is not certain.

Deer in the mountains of Western Colorado have been traveling westward for some weeks past into the mild and fertile valleys of Utah, says an exchange, where less winter because of the snow with which they are usually fed. The migration continues from south of the mountains. They go in small droves, keeping high on the slopes of the mountains that lie east and west, and only descending into the valleys as preliminary to crossing the main mountains. Many of them are traveling along by night, and in the morning hunters find a long narrow deer trail across the shifting shale of a steep gulch.

A lively little scene occurred on Monday evening, according to the Helena City (Ind.) Record, when Pat Connolly secured a knife with a blade like a razor and started on a still hunt for "Slap" Williams's scalp. He found him in the Commission saloon, but the subject was not to be overtaken, and Pat ran up against a large stockholder. Cop was playfully cutting the liquor when Hank Noble caught the knife and shouted, "Drop that, Cop. Give us the knife." The gun was immediately lowered and Connolly was there as well. Connolly cut a man last fall, so the story goes, during over the same thing—a dog fight.

The other day twenty-two "timber" were taken off a freight train in Walla Walla valley about eight miles east of Kennewick, by order of a railroad contractor, who, Mr. Moore, county sheriff, said, was at that time in the town, arriving about seven o'clock in the morning. They were taken to one of the roundhouses by the sheriff and given a big feed. At noon they were supplied with dinner. The young men are not, we hear, well clad. They are the advance guard of the mighty army of tramps the great work of Coxey is preaching, and report they come from the prune districts of that state.

S. W. Fuller, western representative of Heyward Bros. & Co., Chicago meat packers, of Kansas City, has been confined for the day a sick greyhound. As Mr. Fuller was about to retire the dog, a pet of long standing and affectionate nature, rose up to bid adieu, as he was accustomed to do on a frolic. Fuller put his arm around the dog and was about to kiss him for the night when the animal grabbed him by the nose and gave him a severe massage. Mr. Fuller was dazed for a moment at the quick action, but then he felt the pain of the wound. Blood was flowing from the nose in a stream. A physician stitched a few stitches here, and an examination revealed the fact that a piece of the nose or large nostril was a silver spoon had vanished. To-day there extending over through the nose showed where the piece of the dog had gone. Mr. Fuller was naturally prostrated by the affair and is in a very sad condition. From the most authority of the world to the brain it was seen that blood poisoning might ensue and produce fatal results, but thus far no such symptoms have been manifested. Mr. Fuller suffers a great deal of pain, and the wound will be a long time healing, but the injuries in an accidental way but the injuries in an accidental way but the wound will heal in three or four weeks.
