not close enough to distinguish either the cattle or the men.

C. E. Pace, one of the owners of the cattle alleged to have been stolen by the defendants, was reached and testified that there were other small bunches of cattle on the range used by Pace & Sons aside from their own.

Recess was taken until 2 o'clock this afternoon. Broughton was handcuffed and returned to the jail during recess. Rowledge is and has been out on bail.

Yesterday evening the prosecution furnished testimony to show that the cattle in question belonged to Pace & Sons of Summit county and that they had been stolen from their range.

Henry E. Faught is a half brother of the defendant. David Broughton, who put in the witness box this afternoon and testified for the defense.

Can Not Be Sued in Texas.

Attorney General Bishop delivered an opinion to Public Instructor Park today as follows:

Dear Sir—I have before me your request of recent date, for an opinion as to whether trustees of school districts have any power to remit school taxes to the poor in their respective districts.

School districts, though generally bodies corporate, can exercise no powers beyond those expressly delegated by statute, or which by necessary implication arise therefrom.

This seems to be the well established doctrine in relation to the powers possessed by school district trustees, and if no statutory authority can be found expressly delegating such power, or which by necessary implication could be said to exist, then no such taxation can be legally made.

Among the powers delegated to trustees of school districts I find no provision which would authorize, either expressly or by necessary implication, the trustees to remit the taxes of any person.

I have the honor to be,

Very respectfully yours,

A. C. BISHOP,

Attorney General.

Spent $1,620 80.

Chairman Powers of the Democratic committee filed with the Secretary of State today a statement of the committee's disbursements in the last election, which amounted in the total to $1,620.80.

Jacobsen Improving.

James Jacobsen, who was shot at Murray on Wednesday night, is improving. He is able to eat now and his friends are very hopeful for his recovery. The location of the bullet which entered Jacobsen's right breast has not been determined. It appears that another shot struck him in the left shoulder, the ball lodging in the neck.

MINOR MENTION.

Cleiville lodge No. 26, I. O. O. F., will give a grand ball at the pavilion in that place on Wednesday evening next. An invitation to this paper is acknowledged with thanks.

Prof. Whiting of the University of Utah will lecture before the students of the Latter-day Saints' college tonight. The public is invited.

LOOKS LIKE MURDER.

The Body of an Aged Italian Found in an Outlying Field.

THE OLD MAN DEL VELCHIO.

His Disappearance Was Noted in the News, Nov. 4—Suspicious Circumstances Surrounding the Case.

The News of November 4 last contained a notice of the sudden and mysterious disappearance of Vito Del Velchio, an aged Italian, from his home at 1325 S. Second West street, where he had been living with his son Joseph for some time.

Del Velchio strayed away from his home on Friday, October 30, and nothing had been seen or heard of him since, until yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock when his dead body was found in a field near the corner of Eleventh South and Fourth West streets. The appearance of the body gave rise to the conclusion that the man had been foully dealt with, although there is a probability that he committed suicide.

The discovery of the body was reported at police headquarters by Adam Spoits shortly after 4 o'clock, and as Officers O. P. Pratt who was at the station at the time, went out to the scene, as did also Coroner Offenbach who was immediately informed of the discovery.

These gentlemen upon arriving at the spot where the body lay, found everything as indicated by Mr. Spoits, the dead man lying in a marshy spot in which there was water about two inches deep. He was dressed in a blue shirt, blue overalls, coarse underwear and heavy shoes. In his throat were three large, gaping wounds, two on the right side and one on the left, which had the appearance of having been inflicted with a razor or sharp knife. The jugular vein was severed in each instance. Underneath the dead man's hat which was tipped over by, was found a 44-caliber American Bulldog revolver with all its chambers empty, while the body gave evidence of two gunshot wounds, one on the right side, the bullet of which apparently ranged down through the abdomen, while the other shot has entered the right breast going toward the spine. No knife or razor was found near the corpse, although a diligent search for each was made.

The body when discovered by Mr. Spoits was almost hidden from view because of tall rushes growing all round it. Mr. Spoits was engaged in turning down these rushes when he made the ghastly discovery. The fire which had been started turned the hair from the dead man's head and also scorched the eyes to turn from their sockets.

A circumstance which points to foul play is that wagon tracks were found leading to the location of the body, while the owner of the property, Mr. Spoits, says he has never known of a wagon being in the field. The position and location of the body are also significant of murder, and if such, who the perpetrators were, is a matter enshrouded in the deepest mystery.

Del Velchio was 68 years of age and came to this country about a year ago. He was the father of Joseph and Vincenzo Del Velchio, fruit vendors and had been supported by them since his arrival here. The body now lies at the morgue where an inquest was held into this afternoon.

COAL COMBINE DISSOLVED.

All Comers May Now Purchase Coal at Wholesale.

Even after the verdict of guilty in the case of the members of the coal combine, the convicted men persisted in declaring that there was no combine, but since the sentence pronounced by Judge Hallet yesterday, the announcement has been made that coal will be sold in wholesale quantities, by the producers, to all who wish to purchase, at a uniform price.

This means that any person who wishes to enter the retail coal business, can do so on the same footing as those already in the business, so far as the purchase of coal at wholesale is concerned. The wholesale price of most of the coals sold in this city is said to be $3.75 per ton, though in some cases at least it has probably been less.

Now that the field is free, there is no doubt that a number more retail coal offices will be opened up for the winter's trade. There is reason to hope that competition will also increase among the producers shipping into this city, and that a consequent slump in the price of coal may occur. This seems a probable result of the smashing of the combine.

But the combine, according to a statement made today by a retail dealer to a News representative, is certainly a thing of the past, which is one victory for the people.

A CLEVER CAPTURE.

A Young But Confirmed Criminal Arrested Last Evening.

CHARLES KETCHUM IS HIS NAME.

Four Years Ago He Served Time in the Utah Penitentiary—His Operations in this City.

Charles Ketchum, who is alleged to be a porch-sneaker, but who says that is not his occupation, was nearly captured by Chief Pratt and Detectives Hussle and Janney last evening, on Victoria alley, situated between Second and Third South streets and State and East Temple.

The fellow is an old jail-bird in these parts, but his identity was not known until last night's capture. Four years ago he served time in the Utah penitentiary for burglary and he has also shared prison fare in the Deer Lodge, Montana state prison.

Ketchum is twenty-one years of age and a confirmed criminal. He has been a stranger to Salt Lake for about four years and only came to this city about two weeks ago, about the time the innumerable burglaries and hold-ups of recent occurrence commenced.

The officers have been shadowing the fellow for several days past, but never dreamed of its being Ketchum. They knew he was a smooth customer whoever he was, as he never made his appearance in the daytime, preferring to lay low then and come out at night, so they made arrangements in accordance with their knowledge of the case, and bagged their man shortly after 8 o'clock last evening.

When caught he was creeping stealthily towards a house which he had made his headquarters and if he had got half a chance he would in all probability have proved fight as he had on his person a Colt's five-ver turned down the back of his trousers. This was taken from him and he was escorted to jail.

Ketchum was arrested last Tuesday evening by Officer Lund. He was then in company with his companion in crime, both of whom were turned over by Lund to Officer Hedges and Carey. Ketchum broke away from the officers, however, while his companion was taken to jail and is now serving a 60-day sentence for vagrancy.

Ever since then the officers have been on the look-out for the runaway and finally learned that he was making a certain house his headquarters, in which house he had deposited a number of articles of value which had been stolen from different places in this city. The finding of the articles referred upon him a series of housebreakings. One of these was at H. W. Brown's, 56 D street, another at W. F. Colton's and another at a Mr. Strickley's. At Browns he got a $150 marten cape and several smaller articles. At Colton's he got a sable cape and a beaver coat, and at Strickley's he got a watch and a ruby-set ring.

WAIVED HEARING AND BOUND OVER.

Ketchum appeared in the police court this afternoon and was arraigned on two counts of grand larceny. One alleged that he did enter the house of W. H. Brown at 56 D street and stole therefrom one black marten cape, and one leather box, both of the value of $150, while the other fastened on to him the crime of having stolen one gold watch and chain and one diamond, all of the value of $75 from the residence of John Strickley at 50 south Third East street.

The notorious fellow waived his preliminary hearing and was bound over to the district court in bonds of $1,000 in each of the two cases. He now languishes in the county jail.

JOHNSON'S SUSPICIONS.

"By George, boys," said Officer Peter Johnson this afternoon, as he stepped into the court room and gazed upon the features of Ketchum, "if that ain't the fellow that shot me, I'll eat my hat. His very looks flash into my mind vivid recollections of the night when I had such a close call for life, and it must alut he man, then I'd—the twin brother."

The officer is positive that Ketchum is the man who shot him, but if the criminal's story is the truth that he has been here but two weeks, is true, then all such suspicions are dispelled, as the Johnson shooting took place nearly two months ago.

KETCHUM'S ACCOMPLICE.

Ketchum when operating here several years ago had an accomplice in the person of a fellow named Andrew McDonald, alias Tom Anderson, for whom a reward has been offered for some time. He is alleged to have had a hand in the killing of A. J. Moore of Denver, whose death occurs on the 19th of March, 1895. The fellow now in custody, however, says he has not seen McDonald for years.

CREDIT FOR THE OFFICERS.

Great credit is due the officers for the efficient manner in which they made the capture, as well as for ridding the community for a time at least, of a fellow who had no regard for the sanctity of life, but whose sole and only motive was to get plunder, no matter what the consequences might be.
