COLORADO'S RESOURCES.

Ample Contemplation—Attendance Attest—Average Failures.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Vice President Henry Wolcott of the Colorado Land and Water Company and a brother of U. S. Senator Wolcott, is one of the first prominent business men from Colorado who have come east since the election.

Regarding the defeat of the Populists in his state he said:

"Now that we have demonstrated that Colorado is not really controlled by Populists, it is just that we have turned them beyond the hope of resurrection. I do not see why the state should not progress to the matter of material prosperity as rapidly as it did before Waite's successful elevation to public life created distrust and apprehension. The great value of our resources is shown by the fact that five railroads have twelved out from the Mississippi river to do business with us—the Union Pacific, the Atchison, the Rock Island, the Missouri Pacific and the Burlington. Besides, capital was easily secured to construct the lines from Colorado to the gulf of Mexico. All of these roads and those who hold their securities are deeply interested in our welfare and so are the security holders of the two of the roads that traverse the state. For these reasons it seems to me that a greater number of people have watched our political and social affairs more closely than those of any state west of the Mississippi.

"We have lived down the idea that silver is the mainstay of the state's prosperity. We will mine this year 40 per cent more gold than last year. Owing to our system of irrigation we have to employ twice as much for owning, and agricultural issue by that system is increasing steadily. It may interest you to know that last season, we shipped out of the state over a million dollars of fruit, although the fruit growing industry is in its infancy."

CAUSE AND EFFECT.

Senator Reice Speaks of the Political Situation.

HARD TIMES TURN ELECTIONS.

Adlai Stevenson the Next Democratic Presidential Candidate—The Reports on the Great Strike.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Senator Reice who is in the city, has been interviewed regarding the political situation. He said:

"The Democratic party was defeated because of the hard times. The question was not so much a tariff issue as a great many people are led to think. The people all over the country expected that the party in power would bring better times and when this did not materialize they turned their backs upon the party in power. The same cause the defeat for Harrison two years ago. When prosperity languishes they blame the party in power as the cause of it. But I think that things will brighten up so that we will have a decidedly spirited presidential contest.

"Who do you think will be the next presidential candidate on the Democratic ticket? Will Cleveland run for a third term?"

"The next Democratic candidate to run for the Presidency will be Adlai Stevenson and he will have the united support of all the factions of his party. He is the logical candidate and he comes from a state that can be carried by the Democrats. He is the best man we can take. I do not think that the party would make a mistake. The success of last Tuesday edited the tide in several prospective candidates and I am sure that Mr. Cleveland now sees that Adlai Stevenson is our man. As for Cleveland running for a third term, all that kind of talk is twaddle."

"What do you think of the report of the Chicago strike commission?"

"It is hardly worth the paper it is written on. The commission and report are partisan and are for the people in party only, and the country is full of theorists. The people thoroughly understand the strike and it is a dead issue. I do not think Debs is responsible for the report. The idea of a national board of arbitration is a beautiful theory but would never work for the parties in dispute would appeal to the courts anyway as a final resort."

A PECULIAR DELUSION.

French Women Thinks Spies are Constantly Watching Him.

PUEBLO, Colo., Nov. 15.—Frank G. Weis was committed to the state insane asylum from Arapahoe county in August, 1887, and is now nearly fifty years of age. Weis, P. H. Thomas, a nephew of his asylum, and in speaking to Weis's case, the knowledge of whose education to which a lunatic was then subject, Weis said: "His malady is known as paranoia, that is, he suffers from a fixed and systematic delusion. When he came here he labored under the delusion that he was a Miss Mitchell, of Chicago, and her family were endeavoring to force him to marry her. He thought that spies were constantly watching him to see that they were secured to the ceiling and in all manner of places. He strong a hold had this delusion on his mind that he would start under the bed to hide a sheet of write letters. After a time the personality of his supposed persecutors changed and then was the delusion of his mind. He said that a daughter of G. Z. Lester wanted to become his wife and spoke of her intention to send him presents. Mote recently his alleged admirers has been a daughter of Jay Gould and he asked my permission to receive a spot of horses as a present from her. He has never been under close confinement and for a long time paled and received the mail at the postoffice. At one time he wrote the postmaster general that there was a large sum of money for him in the office here which he could not get, and as plausible was the letter that the department took the matter up."

The performance was the manufacture from the raw material of a pair of shoes nailed and complete in one hour. Of course the work was all done by machinery and during the period in question many pairs were really made. The feat was simply for the purpose of showing how perfect to all of its parts is the great shoe plant installed in that splendid institution which gives work to so many employes annually.

THE DISTRICT COURT.

A Jury's Verdict in Favor of the Salt Lake City Railroad Company.

MORE OF THE "KANDY" KITCHEN.

Kalits and His Late Partner at Odds—Arthur Brown's Suit Against the "Firehouse."

After Judge Merritt had briefly charged the jury this morning in the $50,000 damage suit brought by John H. Lloyd against the Salt Lake City Railroad Co., concerning upon the death of his little son, the jurors retired in charge of a court bailiff. The trial of the case had occupied a couple of days. The boy was killed while crossing the company's track near the corner of First South and Fifth West streets.

After being out for upwards of an hour the jury came into court with a verdict for the defendants, signed by nine of their number.

The plaintiff's counsel objected to the reception and filing of the verdict, on the ground that the jury was divided in opinion. The objection was, however, overruled and an exception taken.

A stay of thirty days was granted in which to prepare and serve statement of an motion for a new trial.

TWO SHORT SUITS.

In the case of Chas. Stone et al. vs. Elizabeth A. Wilkerdson et al., it was ordered that the judgment herein be entered in favor of the defendants on motion of the plaintiffs.

Alfred Thompson vs. W. H. McElroy et al. Motion of defendants to quash upon ground service was certain defendants.—W. H. and Amanda Chase—sustained.

A "KANDY KITCHEN" SQUABBLE.

A. L. Thurgood and Louis Kalits were formerly in partnership as candy makers and ran an establishment known as the "Kandy Kitchen" on the Eightieth C.-ngs. It was known as the "Kandy Kandy Kitchen" for when that firm dissolved there which was since filed the suit of several creditors in the Third district court, the partnership was dissolved. Subsequent to the firm Thurgood claimed that Kalits had made and had been manufacturing of a "Grand parlour" in the business, and claimed a account of equipment, stock, etc., belonging to him, and as he was unable to obtain them from him after repeated demands, he instituted a suit in replevin. Commissioner Martin's order, the sheriff seized $200 in the value at the time—in defense of their counterclaim—and $100 damages; but judgment was rendered for $25 less than the former amount, when the damages were assessed at $75, with costs.

From the order of the lower court the defendant now brought by the same an appeal to the United States court. His attorney was S. H. Lewis, and C. S. Kinney appeared for the plaintiff.

The defense wanted to show that the tools were the property of Kalits.

After both sides had been fully heard—and the testimony was very conflicting—the jury retired to consider their verdict at 12:00.

This afternoon, at 2 o'clock, the jury brought in a verdict for the plaintiff, assessing the value of the property at $115 and fixing the damages at $150. On the latter amount plaintiff's counsel threw off $50, $100 only having been now sued for.

The verdict was by nine jurors only, to which the defendant's counsel objected, but the objection was overruled and a fifteen day's stay allowed.

SUE FOR ARTHUR BROWN.

At last the decks have been cleared for action in the $50,000 damage suit for libel brought by Arthur Brown against the Salt Lake Tribune publishing company, and this afternoon the litigants are fighting in real earnest.

In February 1, 1892, occurred Salt Lake City's election, and on that occasion the plaintiff acted as one of the only Republican judges in the Fourth ward, and on the following day a Liberal voter named Patrick Hegney presented himself at one of the polls in the Fourth precinct, but when he came to cast his ballot it was rejected by Judge Brown. The voter became morose, and his manifestation increased when, instead of his name being put in the street list after election and—as he says—informed him that if he had the least desire to keep out of trouble he had better seek pastures new; in other words, Hegney was counseled to "get out of town" forthwith. Hegney, it would appear, toured his story, found its way to the Tribune, and the Tribune's car, and that newspaper next day enlightened the reading public upon the whole matter. The plaintiff claims that he was "roasted" alleged in the "write up" but what he seems to find the greatest fault with was the concluding portion of the article, which ran: "Judge Brown 'is hell-a-big Republican!' Mr. Brown maintains that there is not a particle of that ingredient in his entire composition, and he comes to court and jury to endorse this declaration by securing the good round sum as damages for the injury to his feelings.

The case would have been heard before but for the absence of Hegney, whom the defendant's counsel, despite the strenuous exertions, were unable to get together a day or two ago. He is one of their principal witnesses, and to save subpoenaing the Sunday he proposed without being first sworn in the place of a witness, to pay equal to playing Hamlet without the prince.

Judge Henderson and Attorney C. S. Varian appeared for the plaintiff; Powers & Hiles will watch the interests of the Tribune Publishing Co.

THERE WAS NO DISAGREEMENT HERE.

The case of Midgley & Sons Co. vs. Kanker Bros. took about five minutes to try this afternoon. J. H. Moyle was attorney for the plaintiff; Powers & Hiles for the defense. The sum claimed was $[illegible], on an assigned account for job printing and materials supplied. The jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff for the amount claimed, with interest and costs.

Street Car Collision.

There was an exciting street car collision at the intersection of A and First streets, between one and two o'clock this afternoon. It appears that the power had been shut off for a brief period and that car No. 14 loaded east and filled with passengers, was sent to a standstill. At that time car No. 16 came around the curve south and would as desired into No. 14, thereby inflicting the passengers of both cars, but fortunately injuring none of them.

Didn't Ride the Hundred.

Jensen, the long distance wheelman, failed to make the 100 mile round yesterday afternoon as intended. His failure, however, was due to no accident which cannot be overcome by the use of the wheel. He rode fifty miles at a rate of speed, which, if continued, would have shortened the 100 mile record made at St. Louis.

Gets Off With a $75 Fine.

"Shamus" Kerner, indicted for a breach of the peace in the matter of injurious, was arraigned in Chief Justice Merritt's court this afternoon and plead guilty, waiving the statutory time for sentence. Prosecuting Attorney Howat stated that the plaintiffs committee would be satisfied with the imposition of a fine on the one indictment, and he stated that the second be dismissed. The court ordered the defendant to pay a fine of $75.

Aimed at the Secretary.

A petition for a writ of mandamus against Secretary of the Territory C. C. Richards has been presented to United States Marshal Dyer and Deputy Marshal Grogan asking a writ of E. B. McCormick, the registrar of Juab county. The plaintiff seeks to compel the Third district court to compel the Secretary to issue to him a warrant in the sum of $7.5, the allowance of which has been made by the court. The petition for writ was signed to have been issued by Mr. McCormick, as registrar, during the month of August, at the rate of $4 per day. The registrar claims that the expenditure for the payment of several other assistants officers is not sufficient to allow the payment claimed to be the amount. He claims to be the amount to date, then 75 per cent is owing to the section expenses of the year 1892-3.

The writ was not been issued up to this afternoon.

THE BONES MURDER CASE.

The Defendant on the Witness Stand at Beaver Today.

SPECIAL TO THE EVENING NEWS, BY DAILY TELEGRAPH.

BEAVER, Utah, Nov. 15.—The Bonds murder case is dragging to slow length along in the district court. Interest in the proceedings and the outcome is increasing steadily. It is generally conceded that the prosecution have a case in which the greatest skill will be required to resist.

The decision opened this morning. Their statement to the jury disclosed the fact that the theory of the defense is a belief on the part of the defendant that his own life was in danger from the deceased because of threats made by the latter on numerous occasions, and threatening conduct immediately before the shooting. The deceased's wife was the first witness, but was immediately excused from carrying because no foundation for the testimony was introduced. The defendant then took the stand temporarily, and after the noon recess Mrs. Bonds was again testifying. The court room was thronged continually.

IT IS NOT KOFFORD.

Sheriff Belnap Talks of the Arrest of Two Horsethieves Captured by Him.

Sheriff Belnap of Weber county was in the city today and in a Newspaper related how he captured the horsethieves Robertson and Welsh. It was a very clever catch and one that proves the statement to be true that the Weber county sheriff is one of the best in the Territory.

The men stole two horses in Davis county from a man named Robert. They rode out here to the Sand Ridge where they let one of the animals, taking with them a buggy belonging to Pete Terry. They then started for Weber canyon where they stole another horse from a farmer. The men stolen were in their possession when they rode up to the house of the sheriff's gun in waiting.

They were disturbed in a very diplomatic manner, and when taking them to Ogden, after having been searched carefully, a small pistol which discharges four shots at a time was found in Robertson's vest pocket. Both men refused to tell where they came from. Sample men who saw Robertson last night declare that he is not Kofford.

Entertained at the Fort.

After the military maneuvers were over at Fort Douglas yesterday afternoon the officers of the National Guard of Utah, together with a large number of gentlemen from the city, who had witnessed the affray, were invited to the officers' club house where they were entertained until late even after the evening parade took place. While the festivities were in progress General Clarke and wife, Colonel Trumbo, and Colonel Cleveland, the well known New York journalist, arrived and were personally presented and entertained.

SHADED CITY LIFE.

Shocking Cases of Juvenile Depravity as Seen in the Police Court.

GUILT SHAMELESSLY CONFESSED.

A Quick Witted Negro Who Had Three Pairs of Shoes for His "Boldest" Where His "Shinest" Came In.

The disgusting and embarrassing scenes that have been witnessed in the police court for the week or two days are a sad commentary on that part of the juvenile community which are part and parcel of the so-called lower crust of society.

The final reporter in this branch of the municipal government today had a set of cases sent on its pages. They are the worst and most startling to be given in detail. It is sufficient to say that they show a thing appalling that some but the most degraded would care to listen to a recital of them. Even in some cases boys are glad, some of whom will not reach manhood's or womanhood's estate for several years to come—so sad are in fact children so perverted, demoralized, brutally, with their base witnesses in courts of justice up to the bar of justice and dishonor. Such cases are disheartening, their accompaniments with the statement to make their sore case look dirty had shown that child of a low, foul brood which is in fact outlined to be represented dishonesty, brutality
