A. W. M'CUNE ON THE STAND.

He Testifies of All His Dealings with Representative Law,

AND GIVES FULL PARTICULARS.

Moses Thatcher Testifies of McCune's Consultation with Him Before Meeting Law, and of McCune's Chances for Election That Morning.

Mr. E. X. Christensen was the first witness examined. He said that he first became favorably impressed by Mr. McCune as a candidate after he had spoken some time in behalf over the candidates and after having some discussion with Mr. Harrison. Witness said that it was not supposed that he should have any influence on the representatives from Sanpete county. In working for Mr. McCune he had been doing what work was necessary and looking wise; that was about all; had not been particularly solicitous about Republican members. "One day was for me to see that the McCune measures were properly at the joint session to look wise. Does seeing special notice. The first time I went to see Jackson of my own accord was the day I went upon his invitation. I have received some money for my services about $2 a week, some weeks not so much, but all was paid in cash; I am not expecting to receive any money other than the compensation and do not hope to receive any. My brothers in the law. In a way I have abandoned my residence here and have a partner who is practicing. I should not have left my practice; but I did not think the meeting would last so long. I met Mr. McCune very often at the Democratic headquarters during the fall campaign of 1898. I am not expecting a job for money, but as you say, ready for satisfaction. I think I have not made any trips out of the city since the campaign opened. I heard Mr. Jackson say that he was a democrat. I had told him that he had to come and meet Stewart and Webster and Fisher Harris, and that if he did not he might get into trouble. I did not want him as a friend. I met saw Mr. Jackson on the White Mountain road and talked for about a minute. I talked to Mr. Taylor about the election and Mr. Hammond. I did not think that other witnesses were present.

SLOAN HEARD JACKSON.

L. W. Sloan was recalled. Witness was present at an interview on the Tribune road between C. M. Jackson and Seth X. Christensen a week ago last Saturday; could not hear what Christensen was saying but the replies of Jackson, except that he ejaculated, "Go to—" Witness was close enough to see his face, waiting to speak to Christensen.
