JUVENILE HOUSEBREAKERS.

Remarkable Escape from Death—Christian Endeavor Societies and Liquor Dealers.

The Lander (Wyo.) Clipper says the Lander Transportation company has bought 20,000 pounds of wool in Lander so far this season, paying $14.5 per hundred cash for the wool.

The Ketchum (Idaho) Keystone reports a rich strike on Fourth of July creek by George Z. Bleecman. The latter encountered a 20-foot ledge, assays from which run fr m $20 to $52 a ton gold and high in silver.

The soda lakes branch will soon be in shape to have the soda brought in by cars from the lakes, says the Lovelock Bonanza. The soda works will then resume operations and give employment to a number.

A gang of youngsters has recently attempted to break into offices in the People's Bank building at Denver during the early hours of morning. On Wednesday morning, about 2 o'clock, Officer McRoberts caught Claude Smith and Percy Lucas acting suspiciously in the hallway and arrested them upon suspicion of burglary. They were taken to the county jail.

Governor Markham of California has pardoned Edward Stanfield, who was sentenced in February, 1891, to forty-one years' imprisonment in the penitentiary. Stanfield's mother mortgaged her home in Missouri to get money enough to go to California and make a personal appeal to the governor. He was pardoned upon the condition that he would leave California and never return.

The campaign of the Christian Endeavor societies of Alameda county, Cal., against liquor selling on Sunday may now be seen to be a success, and it will be prosecuted with great vigor. Each society has an executive committee, which works in conjunction with a general executive committee, and a good deal of effective work is expected by the members of the organization before election day.

As Miss Lizzie Baker and Willie Paterson were driving south from Miss Baker's home, says the Rockford Advocate, their horse became frightened at some cattle in the road and ran off. The buggy was dashed to pieces against a hitching post in front of Mr. Westman's residence and the occupants thrown out. Miss Baker was dragged several yards and it was at first feared she was badly hurt, but her speedy recovery has agreeably disappointed these anxieties.

Frank Deacon, an employe of the Kansas Light and Power company at Oakland, Cal., had a remarkable escape from death on Wednesday. He fell two stories in the new building on Market street and escaped with a scratch and a bruise. He was wiring the new building, accidentally stepped on a loose board and fell down a shaft, some wires broke his fall. He was somewhat stunned and taken to the Receiving hospital, where no one carefully examined. The surgeon could find only a bruise on the left arm and a slight laceration of the scalp. Deacon may have received internal injuries.

The Denver News says that Chief of Police Armstrong has issued an order that all house sneaks be arrested and thrown into jail every time they are found attempting to work their game upon the street. The good work has begun, and on Wednesday "Big Ben" of the house men were taken up on charges of vagrancy. One of the prisoners was tried and convicted. He was sentenced to serve sixty days in the county jail. It was the first case on record where a well known sneak has been locked up in the county jail upon a vagrancy charge, and, adds the News, it was a great victory for the police officials so far as it went.

HIS HAIR BLEEDS.

The Professor Has to Go to Bed After His Shaving Locks Are Trimmed.

Professor Amery is a tailor on Geary street. In appearance he is small and alert, with piercing black eyes and finely cut profile. As he walks along the street he looks like any ordinary man, for one does not see that he wears on the very top of his head a large roll of fine black or very dark brown hair. He has he wears shown down almost over his ears for a few curious eyes will find out what a strange and heretofore growth he has.

The way he found out the peculiarity of his hair in bleeding was thus: Several years ago he had his hair cut for convenience and to keep people from looking at him as if he were a monstrous freak. No sooner was the hair off than he took to his bed, almost completely shattered in health, and was compelled to stay there until he had gained enough strength to take care of himself. After that he let his hair alone for awhile. Seven months ago he was seized with a desire to cut it off again, and so the result he was in bed, prostrated and unable to care for himself.

"But I have found out how to manage it now," said the long haired man. "There is a time of the moon when the hair can be cut without harm. The reason I suppose I have got found out. It is because the hair bleeds.

"What is the meaning of that?"

"By bleeding I mean that the sap runs out of the ends of the hairs, just as it does in young trees. That sap, considering that my hair grows so fast and long and is so thoroughly immoral, takes my strength and with it. It reminds you of the Biblical story, doesn't it? Well, it's true, and starts on the same lines."

The professor's physician friend, was still weak from the effects of the last cutting. He looked quite from nervousness, although he was sitting in his chair quite composed. The professor proposes to be in a fix. He cannot have his hair cut because it weakens him, and he cannot let it grow because it takes all of his strength to support it.

Amery was born in Maine some 40 years ago. He had a sister with the same physical trait and two half brothers.—San Francisco Letter.
