A CELEBRATED CASE.

Sensations Connected With the Murder of Collander

IN CHICAGO ON ELECTION DAY.

Plot Discovered to Rob the Ballot Box and Murder the Judges—Officials Implicated.

CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—The murder of Dan Collander, the young Bohemian who was murdered by a gang of toughs while watching the counting of ballots in the Ninth precinct of the Twenty-third ward last Tuesday, promises to develop into a sensation soon.

Indignation meetings were held in nearly every ward in the city during last night to protest against the existing outrages and to plunge skulled scoundrels to avenging the death of Henry Dan Collander, who died on the threshold of the ballot. In each meeting resolutions condemning the brutal murders and assaults and the men in office who are responsible for them were adopted. Partial summaries of these resolutions will be found in the news and at the polls were more than expressed by Democrats and Republicans alike, regardless of past party ties of affiliation.

The facts brought to light by the police thus far indicate more emphatically than ever that the Market street gang otherwise known as the "O'Malley gang" had formed a conspiracy not only to rob the ballot box of several precincts by mere force but to kill the judges and clerks if necessary.

It is known that the members of the gang, all of whom have more or less recently returned, held a number of meetings in the rear of a Market street saloon and that their plans were more or less perfect than those of the Crooin murderers.

The Record (Ind.) today says: "There are indications that men of influence and city officeholders were in consultation with the gang; that they had paid the livery bills for the outrages that were used both before and after the murder of Collander. If the facts which were limited at first to prevail, the case will furnish more sensational developments and the names of parties in office will be dragged into it.

"It is also evident that the travels of the gang is not yet broken. Its members who are still at large and relying on the promises of protection have shown their hands several times by appearing in Bohemian districts, where the supposed to have little information as to their colony.

"E. M. Dickens, the Republican challenger at the polling place, 113 Illinois street, who was beaten almost to death, was approached by two men on Thursday as he lay in his room and was entered to keep silent as to his knowledge of the gang, under pain of death. Shortly afterward he was taken away by his friends and the report that he was dead was purposely published in order to throw his persecutors off the track. He lies at the home of his physician, where he is being watched closely. Fears are entertained that the injuries which he received will ultimately cause his death. With this in view, the civic federation visited Mr. Dickens and took a full statement as to his knowledge of the gang and the facts which led up to the attack on the polling place where he was stationed.

"The men captured Thursday, with the exception of Jack Dougherty, whose connection with the case could not be established, are still locked up at the station. So far they have refused to say a word which would show that they were concerned in the gang's raid.

"The men the police most want are John Henry, 'Major' Sampson, 'Uncle' Lyons and Frank Conley. Inspector Shack is certain that Henry was the man who was shot through the body and that he must be in a very bad condition, if he still is living at all, but the police thus far do not seem to have located him."

Eddie Sullivan, who is reported to have fired the fatal shot, was arrested last night.

The civic federation has already gone vigorously into the work of convicting the gang. It began to collect its evidence yesterday and no effort will be spared to convict those who are guilty. No warrants will be sworn out, however, until the police have done what they can toward finding the men wanted. Inspector Shack says he is still willing to accept any assistance he can get from them over for prosecution. He thinks the great difficulty will be in getting the necessary identification of the men who were implicated in the murder of Collander, although it will be a comparatively easy matter to pick out the men who were concerned in the riots at the other polling places.

"They are all slippery criminals," he said. "They have been all over the city and seem to have their lines in a number of precinctions and it is more responsibility difficult to handle them."

The Inter-Ocean, Republican, today contains three charges of conspiracy at the election day outrages by the supervisor Shack and Judge Gaynor's indictment. The following editorial "Shack is Accused":

"Charges sworn to, the key citizen who was shamefully shot by the big ruffian, John F. O'Malley, was in court as a criminal before Judge Gaynor, and O'Malley, who only needs the miserable title of a miserable cripple.

"Nicholas Caldis yesterday swore out a warrant for the arrest of O'Malley, charging him with shooting Henry in the head. Yesterday afternoon Judge Gaynor had Caldis's charges in a new valid in Yesterday's issue and dismissed them.

"He left the City of 1 prosecution free for shooting one in the arm to shoot other one in the head," said Yesterday.

"The warrant was given to Constable Lauer, but has not been served.

Inspector Schack stated yesterday that he had a warrant for the arrest of Detective John F. O'Malley for assaulting Yesterday and that he was now at liberty.

[illegible] O'Malley was committed upon a charge.

"The police may wonder at the delay in the arrest and prosecution of O'Malley, but the fact is the gang of O'Malley's Twenty one men in the office who are supposed to be in hiding searching for him.

"Captain Gibbons, who is in charge of the East Chicago avenue police station, and Lieutenant Swift, who is a friend of John F. O'Malley and is said to be in close with the Democratic party, which is backing O'Malley in the present difficulties of the case, nearly whole the Twenty third ward is expected to be Chicago, Ashland Division is also either No. 7 or No. 8 in Camp No. 20 of the Chicago Club and it is not likely that the influences which will be brought to bear upon the matter will be entirely against Dan."

and Was Circulated by Wall Street Brokers in Order to Influence the Market.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—The report telegraphed from New York and published in the morning papers that another $50,000,000 loan has been determined upon is without foundation. It is denied on unknown authority that Secretary Carlisle has not changed in the least his policy with respect to the issue of bonds. The credit only be mentioned and it is this and it is found necessary to issue bonds they will be issued without the intermediate agency of the syndicate. If more money is needed and purchased with the proceeds of gold by exports, it might be necessary to establish the government credit, in place of the syndicate, for present operations we are working upon series.

IRRIGATION IN UTAH.

Contributors to the New Work to be Issued on That Subject.

A HANDSOME PROSPECTUS OUT.

An Appeal to the County Courts for Financial aid—Good Words for Utah—The Consolation.

Colonel C. L. Stevenson and C. E. Wanless, of the Irrigation Commission of Utah, are among the tourist men in town. They are carrying out the instructions of the commission to come to the general new work on irrigation in Utah.

A particular of contributions is given as follows: Calvin W. West, Governor of Utah; Hon. William Woodruff and Hon. George Q. Cannon, Presidents of the Mormon Church; Colonel Arthur L. Thomas; Judge L. W. Shurtliff, Ogden, Utah; Prof. Samuel Fowler, U. S. Agricultural College; Geo. L. Swinney, U. S. Weather Bureau; Judge C. S. Varney, Salt Lake City; Captain Wilson, U. S. Army; Utah Irrigation Commission and people, irrigationists and scientific men of Utah.

HANDSOME PROSPECTUS.

A handsome prospectus was issued from the press today setting forth the following facts:

"The recent National Irrigation Congress held at Denver has caused a government demand for information concerning irrigation in Utah, especially for copies of the report of the Commission for that Territory. To meet this call, already running into the thousands, the commission has decided to issue an entire new edition, starting off with 5,000 copies. It will be a book of some one hundred of sixty pages, illustrated with numerous engravings appertaining to the subject matter. In addition to the former reports will contain statistics concerning Utah issued and land irrigation methods of the West, also valuable papers from the best known irrigation authorities and scientific men of the country, so will be seen by the list of contributors.

"Requests have been sent in for distribution at the Kansas City Irrigation convention at Hutchinson, November 20th; the Trans-Mississippi congress at St. Louis, November 27th; and the Interstate commerce commission following in Texas, Nebraska, New Mexico and Oklahoma; while a large edition will be distributed through Utah, Montana and the adjacent states, and to irrigation and investment companies, and hydraulic engineers."

COUNTY COURTS ASKED FOR AID.

In connection with the prospectus the following appeal to the county courts will be sent out:

SALT LAKE CITY,
November 10, 1894.

To the County Court:

Gentlemen: As you are aware the report of the Utah Irrigation Commission in the 53rd Irrigation Congress, held recently at Denver, and the work of the Utah delegation at that congress has proved to be productive of good good to the Territory.

Place the national prospectus you will see that it is necessary to issue a new edition supplementing the report to the Denver congress. This work, now in rapid production, gives full irrigation statistics from each county, the flow of rivers and streams are bought by the United States official surveys, and for the first time published in a summary shape for Utah, and further the geography of each county, not only for Utah and the Territory, but as well for the principal cities and towns. Detailed information, for the best interest of all private data relative to irrigation and the general and union of waters, it shows very position of Utah in detail for the benefit of all its people.

The expense of publishing the first report, and getting together the information necessary to enable the commission to do the work, was advanced to a few individuals to whom the commission is pledged to refund the moneys so advanced.

After consultation with a number of state and county officials, it was the than the county courts would recognize the importance of the work, and in behalf of the whole people, through its county officers, willingly make the appropriations to cover the necessary expenses.

The many important problems arising in connection with our irrigation work and the adjustment of the land grants under the confirmed act, and the rights of the new state of Utah, certainly bring the question of irrigation regulations and controls in Utah second only to importance to the Union of any work. The Weber county has already contributed $1 to this report, and appropriated $100 to the Commission for county purposes. We feel sure that you will give careful consideration to the enclosed circular and accompanying communications, and we especially urge you to appropriate the sum of $——— to the Utah Irrigation Commission.

Yours respectfully,

——— ———
For the Commission.

[illegible] UTAH.

The Irrigation Commission of Utah are greatly encouraged in the work they have done and that which is now well under way by the receipt of such glowing words of praise and promises as are contained in the following:

KANSAS INDUSTRIAL ASSOCIATION,
TOPEKA, Kansas, Oct. 31, 1894.

Secretary Utah Irrigation Commission:

The pamphlets on Utah irrigation which was distributed at the Denver Congress, was an extremely good advertisement for Utah, and exceedingly instructive as well as to the student of the irrigation problem. We are going to have a big state convention at Hutchinson, November 20th and 21st, and would we wind one, say 50 copies of the pamphlet for gratuitous distribution, preferably for the benefit of our people, to wit: irrigation accompanies in Utah. People are still leaving western Kansas, and it is so impossible for the circulation of these pamphlets may benefit your state in some way or other.

H. V. HINRICHS,
Consulting Engineer and Secretary of Commission.

RESOLVED BY THE COMMISSION,

That the information of those who do not know of who may have [illegible] the members of the commission, as their names are known, give Judge L. W. Shurtliff, member Northern Utah; Hon. Geo. Q. Cannon, Salt Lake City; W. H. Rowe, Corinne; F. H. Dyer, Provo; C. E. Woodruff, Salt Lake City; C. L. Stevenson, secretary, Salt Lake City.

McCOOK IS PROMOTED.

The General's Utah Friends Happy to Secure What They Worked For.

It now transpires that the efforts of the Utah and other friends of Brigadier General Alexander McD. McCook, who have been appointed major general of the United States army, now General Howard, retired, have been crowned with success. As a result the generals friends here are highly pleased. When they received the news last night that President Cleveland had promoted Mac they were very profuse in their congratulations of congratulations.

A good many years have passed since General McCook was in command of the United States forces at Fort Douglas and he is still held in high esteem by some of our Salt Lake people. James W. Pargin has been appointed to fill the vacancy made by the promotion of General McCook. The man is at present commanding the department of Colorado. He is a hard soldier, and is one of the famous family of warriors, "the fighting McCooks." He is a graduate of West Point Military Academy, which he entered as a cadet in 1857. He was a cadet in the regular army at the outbreak of the war, from which he resigned with the rank of lieutenant colonel. But in addition to his [illegible] at the beginning a volunteer Brigadier general, and was promoted for his services to major general in the army in 1865, thus adding to his rank [illegible] years the good [illegible] he had before him by the appointment of today.

The fact of the place vacated by Major General Howard's retirement was between General McCook who General Roger, the latter commanding the troops of California, and the latter was particularly fortunate in receiving the appointment over General Roger, who stands at the head of the list of brigadier generals, because he would otherwise retire in a few months with the rank of brigadier general. As it is, General Roger's promotion will probably only be delayed a short time.

Colonel James Forsyth, who will become a brigadier-general, is one of the most distinguished cavalry officers in the army, and has behind him a long record of service in the Indian campaigns. At present he is colonel of the Seventh cavalry, and in command of the artillery school at Fort Riley. He also is a graduate of West Point, from which he graduated in 1856, and is a veteran of the late war. He entered as a lieutenant and emerged a major in the regular army, but in the volunteer service he received his commission as a brigadier-general. He also was brevetted a brigadier-general in 1865.

Major-general Miles will transfer his command in New York, as soon as Major-General Howard as commander of the Department of the East. In the general order, General Forsyth will take his place as commander of the Department of Missouri, but as the junior brigadier-general he may place the command to General Roger, should the latter, as is expected, prefer to change from the Department of California.
