ATTEMPTED ESCAPES FROM JAIL.

A Sensational Elopement in California.—Making Love to Chambermaids.—Bunco Men Captured.

Whooping cough prevails among children in epidemic form at Dayton, Newark.

P. J. Elliott, city treasurer of Great Falls, Montana, has been drowned while bathing below the great falls of the Missouri, twelve miles east of town, while out with a picnic party.

Postmaster L. L. Crandall of Moses, Colo., has been visited by the postoffice inspectors, who investigated his accounts and found that he had appropriated $173 of government funds to his private use, and that he had reported and collected pay from the government for the exchanges of money orders that he had actually consummated. Crandall was placed under arrest, but after a battle among his friends money good the shortage and was released.

James Rocker, alias Professor Corwin, the Colorado confidence man, made an attempt to escape from the jail at Pueblo, Col., Aug. 10, but failed successfully. He had gone into seven-and-one-eighth-inch bars, when the guards got up, the noise attracted the jailer. The prison officials had information of a file that was having been bought during the day, and were keeping a special watch. The officer was upon the trail of two or threemen who are supposed to have smuggled the saw into the prison.

Frank Robertson, alias Colorado Jack, made a determined effort to escape from the county jail at Colorado Springs, on Wednesday morning. While Jailer John Deal was looking the cell doors for the night he found that the door of Robertson's cell had been tampered with. The jailer went in to investigate and Robertson rushed out and down the corridor. The outer door, however, was closed and the prisoner rushed into the kitchen and secured a large knife and ordered the jailer to open the door. The jailer grew his gun and called to Robertson to halt. He continued advancing and Deal, raising his gun, pointed the cylinder at the desperado's head. He did so and was about to fire the second, the prisoner dashed back into his cell.

The people of Cheyenne, Wyo., have made the capture of three counterfeiters. They tribes Dow, George Pendleton of Portland, Ore., paid $20 on a bogus check drawn on the Denver City National bank for $150 and signed to G. S. Peck. The last one was arrested at the house, Frank Williams, has been recognized as an old Denver crook. When arrested a check for $1,200 on the Colorado National was found on his person as were black stones on half the National and state banks in all the Western country. They have been working the trains from this city west for three weeks. Williams' pal is an old man, who has one short leg, which is raised by an iron shoe. Williams is trying to work a great bluff on the police. He says he represents one of the mercantile houses of Omaha, and will make it hot for the authorities.

Charles Nickel, a fashionably dressed young man, was arrested at Los Angeles on Wednesday for sending a letter containing a note for a large sum addressed to Miss Jane Sullivan at Denver, while stopping at the Nadeau hotel. Nickel's plan was to make love to the chambermaids and have them deliver the letters to the guests to him, and then steal all those thought to contain money. When Nickel observed an officer watching him open the letter of Miss Sullivan he fled down Broadway to a large building-lot, and tried to conceal himself in the hands of a chambermaid he knew there. The chambermaid had the letter in her bosom, but the detective made the woman deliver the letter to him and arrested Nickel. Nickel has been doing this kind of work in many hotels throughout the country. He hails from New York, and is quite a dude. He was turned over to the United States authorities.

Clarence Dow, the wayward son of C. H. Dow, president of the Commercial National bank of Denver, Colo., who deserted from company H, First infantry, stationed at Angel Island, Cal., on April 26th of the present year, has surrendered to the military authorities at Fort Sam Houston, near San Antonio, Texas. He is now a prisoner awaiting court martial. The most penalty for his offense is eighteen months' imprisonment at hard labor and dishonorable discharge from the army at the expiration of that sentence. On the day of his desertion he married a young lady living in California, and the two fled to Mexico by steamer. He went under an assumed name in the City of Mexico and claimed to be the correspondent of the Chicago Tribune. About three years ago young Dow married a wealthy lady against his father's wishes. The young man was disinherited by his father, who wanted to see his son free from the undesirable association. Broker Dow then induced his son to join the army with a view to getting him away from his old associates. The young man enlisted at Fort Logan, Colo., in the First Infantry Band on April 27th, 1891, and was transferred to Company H, First Infantry, stationed at Angel Island, on December 24th of the same year.

A sensational elopement took place at Graysland, California, a few days ago, which has had some to light. About a year ago Fortunato Heller sent his young wife home to Graysland, about ten miles from San Bernardino, to live upon a government claim. The husband and wife worked industriously to make themselves a home, and happiness seemed to rule in the household until a few months ago, when Mr. Heller employed one Will Porter, a rather prepossessing young man, to work on the farm. A relationship soon sprung up between Mrs. Heller and Porter, which was finally consummated by the scandalous, but was unnoticed by the trusting husband. Saturday a week ago Mrs. Heller told her husband she was going to visit her mother for a few days in Los Angeles, to which he readily and gladly gave his consent, and he took her to the depot. It seems that when Mrs. Heller arrived in Los Angeles instead of going to her mother's she went to the home of a friend and left her little baby there, telling her friend she had to go back to the depot to get her trunk. Her friend waited till Thursday for either the trunk or her mother came with, so she notified Mr. Heller to come for the baby, and then the mother did not put in an appearance. The same day Mrs. Heller went to the city she was last seen by Porter and the two mysteriously disappeared. Mr. Heller will make no effort to recover his wife's goods of his fellow-man, but will recover his money with all he entitles. The complaint was but half the story that would have been had not a part of the facts been discovered. While Porter was letting the cows be stripped Mrs. Heller's friend was scheming to elope with a married lady of Riverside, and the lady failed to notice the trusty was off on Saturday, Mrs. Heller and Hemmings in Los Angeles as planned. Mrs. Heller is only twenty years old and has been married about four years.
