INAUGURATION DAY.

The first Inauguration Day in the State of Utah is full of auspicious omens. The bright sunlight that calmly shed it rays upon the inaugural procession and the multitudes which thronged the streets of the State capital, was fit companion in the visible universe for the brightness of joy and the peaceful influence that dwelt in the hearts of the people. Everywhere there was cheerfulness and rejoicing that at last the inhabitants of Utah have received their just due as American citizens; everywhere there was manifest an earnest desire that the most supreme happiness attainable under a perfect form of mortal government should be achieved for the dwellers in these mountain vales.

Today the reins of self-government were placed in the hands of the people; not only to regulate their local affairs, which for nearly half a century have been subject to the will of persons comparatively unacquainted with local needs, but also to do their share in molding the destinies of the nation of which they are a part. Henceforth strangers shall not set bounds to their incomings and outgoings as patriotic citizens; their habitation will be of their own construction. If it is healthful and pleasant, theirs shall be the happiness that results; if it is otherwise, theirs will be the fault.

The inaugural parade and ceremonies today were suggestive of what ought to follow. Everything was conducted in a spirit of harmony, giving joy and contentment; by the kindness, consideration and courtesy which all exhibited toward their fellows in the graceful proceedings, each displayed the love that he bears to his neighbor, bringing good cheer to all. Peace and prosperity were everywhere visible as among the chief characteristics of the commonwealth. The procession, and the audience in the large tabernacle, had more of a military appearance than any public gathering here for years; but there was no thought of that stern or violent rule that marks military parades in countries where the people do not reign, though the scene was a suggestion that, should occasion ever demand, Utah has a strong right arm to wield in maintaining the right.

From this date Utah must do for herself what others have sought, not always wisely, to do for her—conduct her household affairs in the spirit of the national Constitution. She must prove her worthiness as a matron over these in her care—her devotion as mother to the sons and daughters to be reared in her virtue and patriotism—her title as Queen of the West in giving to her people that industrial and commercial prosperity and political and religious equality which are fundamental to the enjoyment of life.

In the new field which is opened, we have confidence in the wisdom, integrity and determination of the people of this State to abide by the right. There is nothing too good for them in the line of happiness and contentment. May the prayers that were uttered, the good wishes expressed, and the glowing predictions of future success, made in connection with the deeds that this day launched the ship of state in Utah with a gallant crew, receive complete fulfillment, to the blessing of the people and the glory of Him who hath brought to pass this triumphant hour!

FOR CHRISTIANS AND NEWSPAPERS.

The Youth's Instructor, a paper for young folks published at Battle Creek, Michigan, has in its issue of December 24 a lesson in consistency for Christians in general and newspapers in particular. It states that a Texas paper prints a long account, as many other papers are doing, of the way the Mormons are being driven from the province of Van. But, curiously enough, continues the Instructor, in the Texas paper, exactly opposite the heading, "Mormons from Utah," is another article with the heading, "Mormons Driven Out." Under this last head the statement is made that two Mormon preachers have been preaching in a town in Kentucky, that the citizens held an indignation meeting and sent a committee which warned them to leave the state, and that they had fled into West Virginia. Here the Youth's Instructor makes the pertinent comment:

Now these two articles were no nearer together in the paper than the nations they describe are alike in character and principle. If the dominant religion in Kentucky has the right to drive the Mormons out of Kentucky, why has not the dominant religion of Turkey an equal right to drive the Armenians out of any Turkish town? And this question prepares the way for another: Is a Christian by personal any better than a Mohammedan personal?

The pointed style of our Michigan friend is quite refreshing when applied to such a topic; but we fear his direct and emphatic manner of presenting a truth will hardly be relished by the broad array of religionists who rant at the heathenism of others, while their own practices are still more heathenish, considering the advantages for enlightenment which they possess. There may be some consistency in a Mohammedan using force on behalf of a religion which admits of violence in its promulgation; but a professed Christian who becomes a persecutor, to that act heralds himself as apostate from the vital Christian principle.

CORRECTION IN DATES.

C. S. Smith, of Monroe, Sevier county, sends the following under date of Jan. 2:

In a discourse by Elder F. D. Richards, delivered in the Tabernacle Oct. 3, 1895, and as published in semi-weekly News of Dec. 31st, he is made to say: "In the month of March, 1836, in the Temple at Kirtland, Elijah came and conferred the keys of his ministry upon Joseph," whereas section 110, Doctrine and Covenants, says this remarkable event occurred April 3rd, 1836.

Also, in publishing an item regarding the seventy-seventh birthday of Mrs. Sarah M. Kimball, the idea is conveyed that the organization of the Relief Society took place at Kirtland; whereas, Church history tells us the first organization of the Relief Society was effected at Nauvoo, on March 17, 1842.

To avoid disputes in time to come upon matters and dates of Church history, would it not be well to make the proper corrections?

Our correspondent's statement is received with thanks. Both of the references he calls attention to were erroneous. The date of the appearance of the Prophet Elijah in the Kirtland Temple is recorded in the Doctrine and Covenants as April 3, 1836, and not in March. As to the other event, the year named by our correspondent is of later date than the actual occurrence. The Relief Society organization was effected at Nauvoo, Ill., March 17, 1842. The assemblage of the sisters in Kirtland cannot be properly designated "the inception of the Relief Society organization," as was done unwittingly in the item our correspondent names. The proper dates for the two occurrences are April 3, 1836, and March 17, 1842, respectively.

THE LEGISLATURE.

The first Legislature of the State of Utah was convened in special session this afternoon, by the Governor, to arrange for the time of taking up necessarily urgent business in the legislative department of the State government. Affairs are in a condition that prompt action on some matters would be very desirable, though generally speaking the State starts out in such good shape as to require nothing of rush about its business; and such as there is urgent need of doing still may be given full and free consideration.

The first important business is the election of two United States Senators, one for a short and the other for a long term. There are a number of candidates in the field, and there may be more before the election is over; it may be that the choice will be made from among those whose names are now prominently mentioned as aspiring for the honor, or perhaps the legislators will do what is a very common thing for representative bodies under such circumstances, give politicians a surprise before the program is completed. Whatever is done, we trust that the first Senators from Utah will be men whose character and ability will be representative of the people of the State and will give them prestige from the first to the august body of which they become members. We have only to suggest that the legislators do not act with undue haste or at the behest of any cabal or clique, but that, representing the whole people, they discharge their duty with dignity, and in the highest integrity and patriotism for the welfare of our new State.

There will be various subjects of legislation urged upon the solons so quickly as they get down to work. Some of these will be in the interest of the people and of a character which cannot be neglected with profit; some will be on behalf of private or partisan schemes that can work only ill to the people at large. As to the former, we trust the legislators will have wisdom to single them out and give prompt attention thereto; and as to the latter, we hope there will be sufficient discernment among the members to detect all such schemes, and that there will be found courage and honor to vigorously denounce and reject them. We believe the results will show that the incoming Utah legislators are a wise and conservative body.

In all the acts of the Legislature we trust there will be no disposition to proceed with undue haste or hare-brained. When the people of Utah are aroused as any subject their feelings are pretty strong; and in respect to legislation of a radical or revolutionary character, they are opposed to it. We further hope that such measures as are brought up for legislative action will be given full publicity in time for thorough discussion, that if possible every sensational mind may have heard of it the force of an enlightened public sentiment at the time of its adoption. If our legislators will exercise the judgment they are known to have, "all things done decently and in order," we believe that wisdom will characterize their deliberations and they will themselves achieve distinction as benefactors and worthy representatives of the new State.

THIS is a sizzling serious: First, President Cleveland startles Great Britain with his Venezuelan message; then the Britisher is called to a sudden halt by Germany in the Transvaal business; and now there is promise of serious difficulty between the United States and England over Nicaraguan affairs. John Bull will soon think there is fighting blood outside of his own veins.

IT will not take the artillery boys of the Utah National Guard long to learn how to fire a national salute in first class style. The booming of their cannon today resounded throughout the entire valley. They have the honor of firing the first national salute in 1896, and of making it forty-five guns for that number of states in the Union.

THERE is a sense of deep gratification in recording that a compromise has been effected between the coal company and the widows and orphans bereaved by the Almy coal mine disaster. The coal company pays $1,000 damages to the families of each of sixty of the miners killed.

"TO BE prepared for war is the best guarantee of peace," said a British statesman. It looks now as though the apparent readiness of some other great nations for war will guarantee a peaceful solution of England's difficulties with weaker governments.

ILLUMINATE TONIGHT!

THE ADMISSION OF OUR STATE.

I thank thee, Grover Cleveland; I thank thee for myself,
For thy vigorous proclamation; for Utah's commonwealth.
With flags and banners streaming, this day we consecrate
Our hearts with pleasure beating, the admission of our state.

We have heard the rejoicing, its sound has resched afar;
'Twas like the roar of battle, like the thunderings of war,
'Twas the people who were shouting, their joy it was so great
When they read the proclamation, the admission of our state.

We will dance and sing with pleasure, while the months roll by year,
While tripping to the measure of the gloriously made over dues.
With joy we hail the festive thring, this day we celebrate,
And sing a song the whole day long: Success to our new state.

Eight and forty years have gone, they'll never come again.
Since Brigham with his gallant band were stacked o'er the plains.
To events of that are Canons, war mountain rain and swamp,
After safe and heavy hardships, near Great Salt Lake they camp.

Those heroes who first crossed the plains, with manly hopes and fears—
All honor to their blessed names; our immortal Pioneers;
Those heroic early comers; they a page in history make—
Those were our Pilgrim Fathers, the founders of our state.

'Neath the shadows of these mountains there's a valley fair and green,
Dotted over with springs and fountains—a fairer valley is seen;
And close beneath those mountains shades, rolling down upon the lake,
There lies a lovely city; the capital of our state.

Through out that lovely valley, there are men and women fair;
Men who love their country; no dangers they would dare.
And when their country calls them, like their fathers in the past
Who were true and valiant soldiers, Utah's sons shall not be last.

Then raise your voices with a cheer, and swing your bonnets high!
And show the world we know as hail; for our country we shall—
We will be true as now we be; this day we consecrate
Our hearts are filled with joy and glee; to the Union is our state.

The best analgesic and expectorant for the cure of colds, coughs and all throat, lung and bronchial troubles, is unquestionably, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, the only specific for colds and coughs admitted on exhibition at the Chicago World's Fair.

"Old, yet ever new, and simple and beautiful ever," sings the poet, in words which might well apply to Ayer's Sarsaparilla—the most efficient and scientific blood-purifier ever offered to suffering humanity. Nothing but superior merit keeps it so long at the front.
