KEEP THE PHILIPPINES.

Eleventh Commandment of the London Times Declares the Question.

MANY REASONS FOR THEIR RETENTION.

Resolutions by the Friends Weight Fund to Honor an Anglo-American Alliance.

LONDON, Aug. 18.—The Times corresponding of the Times says: "The disposition of the Philippine question will be whether here with have lessons in Commissioner Schurz to point to the wisdom of the people in America." Mr. Schurz, the Times says, who is a great friend of Mr. Pulitzer's newspaper, and whose influence with the President is known to be great, is expected to return to Washington with a view to urging the President to adhere to the policy of annexation, and to keep the Philippines. Mr. Schurz's influence with the President is considerable, and his return is regarded as significant.

The Times says that President McKinley's policy is understood not to have been altogether unofficially expressed in the speech of Governor Roosevelt, in which he said that the Philippines must be retained, and that the Government of the Philippines must be undertaken by the United States. The Times says that the President's policy is the greatest benefit of the greatest number of people.

The Times says that a partition of China would be a calamity, and that the United States would be unfaithful to its traditions if it allowed itself to be drawn into the vortex of European politics. The Times says that the United States is expected from a commercial point of view to be the most powerful factor in the Pacific. The Times says that the United States is the greatest commercial country in the world, and that it is organized for the conquest of the world's markets by the application of the principles of the Monroe doctrine, which will enable it to keep open the door of China. The Times says that the United States is the most powerful nation
