COPIOUS RAIN THROUGHOUT CALIFORNIA

New Yorkers Take Possession of the Presidio—Another Charge Against Robert Albert of Her Wounds

The death of Mrs. H. H. Minnig occurred at Cripple Creek Monday. The remains were sent for by E. C. Perry at Victor, who died on Friday last.

Court of Fuller Lane of San Francisco says that he will make an effort to have the money in the Tyrannosaurus bones, which was exhibited of the murder of Harry Hinkelbein, tried for abstracting the money of Willie Lorenz, a boy who was standing near Hinkel when he died. Hinkelbein and Lorenz had entered into a wrestling match. As Brown has started for his home, extradition proceedings will have to be started against him.

The crew composed of New York citizens brought from Honolulu on the Honolulu have taken possession of the Presidio. The Pacific is occupied by the first companies of the regiment which left for Santa Rosalia. The work was done very decently in a quiet way. Some of the officers and other securities are filed there as well as at San Francisco, it is said. The members of companies C, E, F and H, now on the way east, expect to arrive at their destinations on Christmas.

Shoulders are operating in Hornbrook this week. Saturday night Jim Lee, a Chinaman, was shot in the back of the shoulder by one of the employes of the Hornbrook shoulder gang that has been operating in that locality for some time. Naturally they were at once taken in charge, and the gang of men who were in the process of a war dance for the Chinaman's benefit, are now in jail awaiting the action of the grand jury. Both of the women mentioned in the story are married and divorced at being discovered and thought so hard that they were allowed to depart.

Another curious fall has fallen throughout northern and central California. Reports from all sections of the state show that for the past week some very weather has prevailed, so that the fruit has commenced to start up of the bud for last week. In most of the valleys the ground is in a fine plowed condition for seeding, and winter grain was sown early. It has germinated and is looking well. In the Sacramento valley the farmers were seated worrying over potatoes and a drought, and are now rejoiced that suffered rain fall, to insure the crop of corn. The indications are for a continuance of the rain.

The Sierra Hunt regatta a most meritorious and successful benefit, Saturday morning the racing being L. M. Clark, who defeated Jack Kelly on night after, on Sun Park street. The robbery mentioned occurred some time between 3 o'clock Friday night and 7 o'clock Saturday morning, for at the former hour the clerk left the office, and the money was in the safe and at the latter hour it is reported and the cash had disappeared. The clerk left the office to take a clear road in the front parlors which is divided from the bar by a half wooden and partitioning door. In the front parlors stands the safe that is not locked. Thursday night he reports it was in a state of disorder, as being made the safe was moved and was in such a position that it could not be locked. A walk by the barkeeper while waiting on customers, to the cash box of the safe, as he was drawing a glass of beer, which Mr. Clark says was 25c, and in the other hand, he left the safe door open. He then went home, and when he got there in the morning he went to the drawer to make some change, and was pleased to find that it was empty. He then opened the next drawer and was surprised to find that the supposed lost had been disturbed. The barkeeper was questioned and said that he had not had occasion to go to the safe during the night and was always disinclined, when left, that the cash was missing. The police were then notified and Detective Murphy visited the place and talked with the barkeeper and the latter and visited the rooms of the latter and it was agreed that he was not the thief.

SPEAKING OF JIM LEARY.

Also of the Stockgrowers' Convention at Denver Next Month.

Here is what the Denver Post, in its issue of Sunday, says of Jim Leary, of the Salt Lake stock yards:

There is no mistake at all about Jim Leary, he is the real thing, with the accent of both syllables. But his old friends, all over the country, will hardly recognize him under the title "James." To them he has always been "Jim Leary." Not that they would unknightly him, by any speaking, but years of round-up and dance was Jim; just plain Jim; and bunch girls and white-bearded old-timers knew him and called him Jim so much.

There is no cattleman in the country more abroad than Jim Leary. For four years he has managed the stock yards in Salt Lake, but he has not confined to that, he was stock agent at Denver for the Golf road, but it was the project that provided all this that was platted out and that will always be memorable.

There is another story that will have to be told at another day. The business of the hour is the National Stockgrowers' convention, which meets in Denver next month.

I have nothing to say about it just now, except that it will be a summer, and Mr. Leary last night: "It is bound to be a big success, for every cattleman in the country seems to take interest in it. From what I can learn the attendance will be larger this year than it ever has been before."

Mr. Leary is on his way to Kansas City, where he will be busy for a few days after which he will journey West again.

Sunday School Union Meeting.

There was a large attendance of officers and teachers at the meeting of the Sunday School Union of this Stake, held last evening (December 18, 1898) in the Tabernacle in Salt Lake City. All the city schools were well represented, except the Ninth, Twelfth, Twenty-first and Twenty-third wards, the following wards of the country were also represented: Big Cottonwood (both schools), Granite, East Mill Creek, Forest Dale, Murray, Sandy, Sugar, Taylorsville, Upper Bertman.

Stake Superintendent T. C. Griggs presided, and the opening prayer was offered by Elder O. H. Wirthlin.

The congregational singing was conducted by Brother Thomas Butler of the Fourteenth ward.

Superintendent Griggs announced that a new edition of the Sunday School Treasury has been published, and every Sunday school officer and teacher should procure a copy and study its instructions. He also called attention to the need of sending in early reports for entering the contest for the use of the silver Sacramento cup, which is at stake. For the year 1900 the use of the cup will be awarded on the following conditions:

First—The school showing the greatest general improvement as compared with the present year's report.

Second—Punctuality in forwarding its annual report for 1899 and 1900.

Third—Most regular representation at the Union meetings through the year 1899.

At the close of the opening exercises evening separation into the various departments.

The superintendents of the various wards also met together and discussed "the general welfare" of the Sunday schools of the Stake.

The Stake and the annual reports were distributed, and a report made on the by-laws as returned to the committee overnight.

Sister Jane Smith reported satisfactory progress in the kindergarten training class. Some wards are not yet represented, and there was yet room for improvement.

The department work was confined to the most good morning, and the Stake Sunday school work was discussed in a spirited manner.

The South ward school will furnish music at the next meeting of the Union in South Stake.

After singing, benediction was pronounced by Elder Samuel W. Richards, and the meeting adjourned.

J. H. PARRY.

Where is Albert S. Hain?

Many years ago Albert S. Hain left Florida for the West, coming out here on business purposes. He left behind him a brother, John Hain, who now lives at Pomeroy, St. Johns county, Florida, and is very anxious to hear from him. The last heard from Albert S. Hain was about 12 years ago, at which time he was in Montana. John Hain is now blind and has been since that. It would be sad to hear tidings of his brother, as the address given above and as old down in a letter if Montana papers will copy this notice.

Fourth District Court.

The case of the State vs J. G. Statts occupied all day yesterday in the Fourth district court, and it was expected that it would be concluded today. Defendant is charged with obtaining money under false pretenses by selling to S. S. Johnson, on August 6th of this year, a threshing and other show horses, which had previously been mortgaged by chattel mortgage to Mr. Johnson, and that defendant did not acquaint Mr. Johnson with the fact that the property was so mortgaged at the time of the sale.

The defense is that Mr. Johnson bought a half interest in the show property and knew of the mortgage, which he was to pay as a part of the purchase price.

H. R. Johnson vs J. W. Hogan; demurrer overruled; defendant given to and including December 24th to answer.

H. Johnson vs Thos. Cornell; plaintiff given leave to amend complaint and defendant given ten days to answer.

TO PROTECT HOLY PLACES.

Americans Interested in a Diplomatic Struggle Now Going On.

Catholic church—Rome correspondent the United States are deeply interested in the diplomatic struggle at present in progress between the Vatican, the Russian empire and the Porte, the question regarding the ownership of the holy places in Palestine.

The controversy has a long standing, and, by the express order of the Holy Land has recently assumed the proportions to the country.

The new Pontiff is necessary to be erected at the tomb of Sublime, about three miles from the capital, is to be the central point from which the Holy Land the future seats of the Pontiff will take the Washington Post.

At the annual meeting of the archbishops and bishops of Germany, which is a much modified character. The general opinion of the archbishops can each individual bishop should prepare his own personal report, and the Holy See, the Pontiff of Prussia to look after all the Christian interests in the Orient.

The conservative element of the American church is more emphatic in expressing this opinion. The German members of the hierarchy generally agree with the proposition of Monsignor Williams, and also the Pope, who is reported to entertain German interests in Palestine. The Pope is Rome's Angel, was and favorably known as the friend of Germany.

The Vatican, according to reports which have reached this city, does not show this view. The Grand Duke Sergius, nephew of the Czar, is known to be the personal chaplain, has been invited at the request of the papal secretary, Cardinal Rampolla.

Russia via Rome has been very jealous that Bishop Angel be sent to Jerusalem with special powers and privileges. The pope, however, has already promised the French hierarchy that none of the special privileges should be accorded the Russian, and for that reason, Angel's appointment was an impossibility.

The German ambassador expressed his disapproval very vigorously, and in consequence the pope decided that pending a settlement of the Holy See.

The Vatican has issued an official declaration on the subject in an article published last week in the Observatore Romano. This article says that the question has been discussed by the recognized leaders of the church.

Among documents from it is said that Germany is trying to justify the course of the Porte strictly by referring the left one is reminded unfavorable from the subjects point. This would place the question in the hands of Turkey, and in this manner the Kaiser would avoid the purpose without coming into direct conflict with France or with the Vatican.

The Real Cyrano de Bergerac.

Let the inquiry be a moment who the real Cyrano was, and what is the way of historical material Rostand had to work upon. Fortunately, the latter was very wise, and, fortunately, because it gave the dramatic and extraordinary opportunity to look his hero out with sufficient boldness. Cyrano was a marvelously interesting and effective character. Cyrano is very certainly the hero of a book. But that it was the most urgent peak to the Himalayas, or even more of his imaginative writers concerning him have plausibly asserted, may be doubted. He was baptized in 1619 and died in 1655, and during his endless life he did several things which Mr. Rostand has cheerily omitted to explain. He was both a poet and a soldier, he wrote satiric verse and plays, from at least one of which Molière critical the song beginning: "Que diable allait-il faire dans cette galère?" in "Les Fourberies de Scapin." He also wrote a romantic history of the Moon and Empires of the Sun, a number of which are said to have suggested to Swift the writing of "Gulliver's Travels."

Like the hero of the play, Cyrano was a famous duelist, on the occasion of Carbon de Castel-Jaloux was wounded in the thigh of Arras, and, according to the chronicle, he was in fight, single-handed a hundred men. He was killed at last by the falling on his head of a beam dropped on the head, and no doubt who was sent to strike that his death. We are indebted to Cyrano for the phrase, "Le Bel Sexe," and for the grotesque idea of Molière's Jourdain, widow of the Bourgeois Gentilhomme, circumstances which will certainly interest those who have read the play and who have without those mere suggestions.

But unmistakably the most struck M. Rostand owed Cyrano was the hero name. Without that authority one cannot imagine a poet never have thought of setting himself the task of composing a play the number and beauty of which it would be a pleasure to have a genuine and safe individual. Fantasies as the statement this seem, M. Rostand has really written his play with Cyrano for hero.

It is worth herself to know that he had given, one of the greatest, if not the greatest, of the latter half of this century, and the sudden burst of the continental success by it in this country and Europe, he has been well rewarded. Prince Napoleon, a prince of Bonaparte, and heated over the Cyrano written at the recent dinner at if they were so inclined.
