Cold-Blooded Butchery of Wounded Insurgents.

DETAILS OF A SERIOUS BATTLE.

Spanish Victory Celebrated with a Massacre—Leaning to France for Aid.

NEW YORK, June 4.—The World this morning publishes the following special correspondence from San Cristobal, Cuba, dated May 10:

The following story of the cold-blooded butchery of more than forty wounded Cubans in a hospital and of four prisoners after the fight at Las Lomas de Jutacrow, was told to your correspondent by Spanish soldiers who took part in it, and they spoke as if the massacre were every day occurrences with them.

Our column, under General Zenarro, left San Cristobal May 4 to operate in the mountains between here and the main road to Mantua. At midnight we camped at 3 a. m. the bugle sounded for us to be up. We were preparing to break camp when we heard there was a fight ahead. A message came back there was a priest ran at bullets.

Then the insurgents began to close in upon us. Several times they came up close to us with tremendous yelling, swinging machetes above their heads, but it was impossible for them to stand before the fire of our Mausers.

We were under fire each weekend means of the machete until past noon, until the enemy apparently withdrew. A messenger came to us that there came
