THE DURRANT CASE.

Another Accomplice of a Serious Nature Against Him.

THE PRISONER CONSENTS TO TALK.

He is Considered a Subject of Study of Intense Interest to Psychologists.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 29.—For the first time since the charge of murdering Blanche Williams in the Emanuel Baptist church of this city was formally made against W. H. H. Durrant, the prisoner has consented to talk. He spoke first of the Lamont case, saying:

"Now Blanche! I was amazed at something not and then remaining silent as to the details of the most horrible crime in history. No one will ever know the secret I just said no one could begin to comprehend my feelings even if I were to tell all the anguish her terrible fate has caused me. I could not have murdered that girl. I loved her too well, and better than any one else in the world, for I respected and admired her, and we enjoyed friends.

Judging from the frequent commendations I saw in the papers as a conscientious, industrious student. I am pained to see it in human shape, and very little is said to be held as the responsibility of any other person having killed those two girls. But when the trial is over the world will know that I am innocent. My conscience and self-control, since my arrest are free from reproach, but no person will ever know the pleasure of feel I am unforgiving. It is said that I am capable of deliberate sleep. Truth is I was able to sleep well because my conscience is clear of all crime. I am not in a nervous condition and have taken no medicine since my arrest.

He accuses the police of warning away from the premises that he was going to the crime and ignoring all other clues.

Because of Durrant's youth, prominent under medical examination, he must sleep and register eating as a means to trying to convince Dr. Dwinell unless any of intense interest to the psychologists. At times his diagnosis seems strangely out of harmony with its present position.

Today the inquest in the Blanche Lamont murder case will begin and however the preliminary examination of Durrant in the Rose Williams murder case, will be resumed.

A persistent rumor has obtained currency in connection with the murder and if the rumor should prove to have true, the police will have a strong link in a chain of circumstantial evidence that so far is not very strong in the Williams case. It is said that there is no one effect that an Oakland child has communicated to Chief of Police Crowley or his city a statement to the effect that an Oakland physician told him that a fellow practitioner in San Francisco had informed him that on the night he had been called upon to attend the Dying Girl, the daughter of a friend of Mrs. Durrant. The girl is now sensible, and she alleged to her mother that she was drugged, that she had fled to the house of Durrant and had there succumbed to infamous purposes. If this professional person, if it is alleged, this physician is found to make the matter public, Chief Crowley will see that he is called to either affirm or deny the story. It is currently certain, however, that the matter will not rest on this view.

NICARAGUAN DISPUTE.

The United States Will Not Interfere in the Matter of an Indemnity.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The decision reached by the Associated Press today from London and Central America that Secretary Gresham has thrown additional light on the course of the administration in regard to the Nicaraguan difficulty. It is evident that both the United States and the Central American republics are anxious to secure a peaceful settlement of the difficulty by the payment of the indemnity demanded by Great Britain for the expulsion of Poyas Consul Hatch.

Troubles Englands of the republic of Costa Rica, if the cable advices are correct, offered to contribute a portion of the money, while the Costa Rican and Honduras Ambassador Hay and ex Lecture, attempted (or at extension of time owing to which the money could be raised in Nicaragua would agree to a decision on the case. It is not known exactly what representations were made to the state department by Nicaragua or Nicaragua's representatives to induce Secretary Gresham to write Mr. Bayard these instructions, but as the popular feeling in Nicaragua was at extreme pitch, it is believed that the government of Nicaragua concluded, out of deference to it and possibly as a means of its own preservation, to stand out, in the face of impending disaster, if possible, for the intervention of the United States.

It is said that the state department has all along affirmed Nicaragua's right to the exclusive control of the Mosquito reservation, but a prime question was the Greer Bluffs.

Secretary Gresham, it is said, has certainly in mind certain that the administration will not attempt any interference in the dispute between Nicaragua and Great Britain so long as the action confines itself to the interior of the reservation. The United States has not declared to the point that the Express power rests in their international dealings with Central and South American countries, whether they dispute in their own way, as long as they do not cross the seas, drive cutting governments, or in occurrence or possession of acquire territory.

It is said answer in official circles that Nicaragua will carry out reservations much further. Prince announced in Nicaragua, it is believed, has made a special effort to make sure, by means of insurance and to show he appeal to the world in case the Associated Press, that it is evidently believed that either Prince or Great Britain, Mosquito or both insurance, and will certainly see per the indemnity.

There is some difference of opinion as to as to what the possibility of war in Nicaragua that Costa Rica and Honduras will be engaged.

SILVER VIEW OF THE MATTER.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 28.—Governor James H. Budd, Democrat, in referring to the Nicaraguan difficulty, yesterday said:

"The United States of America should never have allowed the British marines to set foot on the Nicaraguan shore. In the beginning we should have stopped that. Nicaragua should have stood by her guns and resisted the aggression. Nicaragua should have made private war on Walker as the Mexicans made private war on Maximilian, have gone down to Nicaragua and have cut off all supplies, and have cut off the Nicaragua Canal. The United States should have stopped the Crown of England from taking the Nicaragua territory. It is said that I am opposed to Hawaiian annexation. I am able to sleep well because my conscience is clear of all crime. I am not in a nervous condition and have taken no medicine since my arrest.
