There is some talk around town about the Burlington & Missouri taking the Cheyenne & Northern, but the best informed say there is nothing in the story.—Cheyenne Leader.

S. E. Sealy, of Laramie, Wyoming, has just received the sad intelligence of the death of his brother, Horace, in New Zealand. A party of nine of them were out in a new packet, the Amerion, and capsized, eight of them being drowned leaving assistance could reach them. Mr. Sealy had not seen his brother in thirty years.

The Winnemucca (Nevada) Silver State has the following: Nye county has 600 mile stamps and 300 voters. This county was alive with miners, prospectors and hoboes rush before the remonetization of silver, and its mines produced an enormous output of bullion. With free coinage every stamp would be pounding away on the rich ores of that county, and the mines and mills would give employment to 3,000 miners.

Work is progressing favorably in the new reduction works at the Austin Mining company at the old Manhattan mill site, says the Austin (Nevada) Advocate. The richest vagrant that ever entered the gates of the workhouse on Blackwell's Island says the San Francisco Chronicle, is Peter Kelley. He was arrested last Sunday for loitering about the docks at the foot of Vesey street. At the Tombs court he answered Justice McMahon bank books representing nearly $17,000, and the justice discharged him, warning him not to go back to Vesey street. The next day he was there again. The officer who first arrested him arrested him again on learning from the longshoremen that he had been loitering about for four months. This time Kelly got six months on the island, where he is now, living at the expense of the city while his relatives are piling up in the fourteen banks in which his money is deposited.

Says the De Lamar (Idaho) Nugget: On Thursday Mr. Robert Jones left De Lamar for his Castle Creek ranch with a four-horse team and a load of empty boxes in which to pack fruit. His team, from some cause, ran away while going down the south hill, throwing him from the wagon. In the fall his leg was caught in the wheel and broken between the knee and the ankle. The leg is very badly broken, the bones having been driven through the flesh and crushed to such an extent that amputation may be necessary. Mr. Jones was dragged about one hundred yards from the road to which he crawled back after the accident, and laid there several hours before he was found by Elijah Lewis, who went to Silver City and got a team to go out and bring him in.

An Elder Also Bows.

"I've been in Europe since last November," said a Mormon elder who joined in New York a few days ago, "and my experience has been full of perversities. I began with a Jubilee trip last winter we almost froze to death. I shall never forget the discipline and chilblains I got at Jesus Bleaden and Florence Delgings. In May we went to London, because that is the month we were told to enjoy that metropolis. It poured all the time that it was not cold enough for snowing. We did the cathedral business in counterfeit rain and cold. My idea of English cathedrals is not in a blast of icy zephyrs.

"We drove out to Bonnie castle from Edinburgh in the best pelting rainstorm I ever experienced, so that historic place has also a wet blanket thrown over it for all time in my mind. Met to Dovington in July for our marriage, we were cold. We did and sightseed. The traditional grand English home was heavy and dry. It wasn't much better on the outside. At one place after 4 in the afternoon a chill mist always settled that penetrated one's very bones, at others cold rain dripping, showers were daily occurrences.

"I should think Europeans who come over here must marvel at our monotony of glorious sunny days, with our blistering summer twilights falling slowly into radiant north nights, when one can be almost the midnight without rise. As we sailed up the bay last week under a sky more brilliantly blue than any I saw in Italy and through an atmosphere of world were made a lasting impression upon me. I wonder if we should ever see our so clear, and I realized that this was just a common New York day that would seem to most Europeans phenomenally fine. Our country is so much larger than theirs, we can afford to be generous and have spots."—Per Point of View in New York Times.

The Season Closes.

Canada geese have left for southern parts, and are twice as fat expected to fill every mess. The cute Canadian birds is sent for pleasure pudding either with the single or double yolk, and even the mouse now bring from twenty to twenty in addition to their regular names, for general use—and "gibbs." Open canoes, bold light and sharp, are also used in the pudding pursuit—the single, double, triple, quadruple, and the fifth time. The superiority of the double shotgun over the single was clearly shown in the race of this form. The springbird and New York canvas cities in July and August with double blanks, and the Pulaski blanks (Canadian) and Parkins (Dakota) are now kind and fourth with single blanks. This event gave a fine exhibition of pudding, the springbird crew winning easily simply because it had turned together and kept perfect time. The other crews were well rugged. The pudding events were well attended and showed a renewed interest in this class of racing, but the sailing now do not pulse, nor do the paddling men sail.—Harper's Weekly.

Assisted by Birds.

Bailey Hoover, a young man employed on the Clarks ranch, relates a curious experience with birds. He was driving a wagon some miles from the ranch, when about two miles from Kinzie's Landing he was suddenly startled out of a doze by myriads of birds, which swooped down upon him, screaming angrily and flying at him. The air was literally filled with them, and they violently attacked the horse, which was frightened into a frantic effort to run away.

The young man was scared beyond his powers of description. He fought the birds off with his whip, and directing the horse as best he could was soon beyond their pursuit.

Hoover entertains a superstitious fear that the incident portends evil to him, and he says something bad is going to happen to him before long. He says they were merry all this while, although they appeared to be some species among the wind of his winged enemies.—Woodland Mail.

An Road for the Villers.

A comedy scene followed the third act of a tragedy seen at a theater in an English provincial town. The villain had just stabbed and the curtain was lowered, but long there expected time has elapsed the stage. All efforts to lower it proved unavailing until the corpse arose from the stage and said, in sepulchral tones, as he dragged down the curtain, "No rest, even in the grave."—Yankee Blade.
