ANOTHER HOLMES FOUND.

Alleged Crimes of John C. Bennett, Now in Joliet Prison.

A Series of Murders Charged to Him by His Wife in a Letter to the Police.

CHICAGO, N. V. 5.—A special from Ottawa, Ill., says: The police of this city believe they have unearthed another Holmes in John C. Bennett, who was sent to Joliet from here for stealing a watch at the Huffmann house. Bennett pleaded guilty and threw himself on the mercy of the court. He is sixty years of age and apparently in the last stages of consumption. Since he was committed to Joliet a few days ago, his wife, Mrs. S. J. Bennett, of Boyd, Ill., has been here from Galena.

In a letter to the chief of police here she says that Bennett when a young man murdered his wife in England and escaped to this country. He went to the copper regions of Michigan and from there to Galena, Ill., where he married a woman who was possessed of some property. She was shot at through the window of her home and several accused Bennett of trying to kill her. He is alleged to have caused the death of his two two babies, and the wife who dared not tell of his villany for fear of being killed, obtained a divorce and went to Helena, Mont., where she died a few months ago. Bennett then married Mrs. Emma Bennett, a widow of Galena. He had been married to her four months when he made an attempt on the life of his wife. She escaped from the window one night and caused his arrest and conviction for burglary, stolen goods being found in the cellar. He was sent to Joliet for three years on this charge.

On his release Bennett went to Lockport, Ill., where he married Mrs. Sarah Price, a widow of considerable means, shortly after the wedding the son of his wife escorted Bennett out of the city with a shotgun and he was not heard from until identified with a gang of Chicago sandbaggers. He was convicted of being implicated in the death of Miss Amelia Owen of Chicago. It is said, but nothing conclusive could be fastened on him. He was sent to Rock Island, Ill., where he served a long sentence in 1888. On his release he went across the river to Davenport, Iowa, where he was caught in the act of highway robbery and sent to the Anamosa penitentiary for six months. To Un on county, Ill., after his release, he married another wife, now his ex-wife as Mrs. Sophia. Soon after she says Bennett taken to the stage and disclosed a plan for murdering her, and that upon being aware that his secret was found out he attempted to kill her with a knife. He was sent to Chester for a term of seven years for this and has been released but a few months when captured in Ottawa.

Bennett has traveled under many names, and though there are dozens of witnesses against him for his various crimes, they are widely scattered and a complete record be difficult. It is hardly thought he will survive his present sentence as it is evident the disease has a strong hold upon him.

SUSAN'S AUTOBIOGRAPHY.

Now It Feels to Be on Trial for Murder.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 5.—Theodore Durant has written a sketch of his life and substance and has gone into the matter of how it feels to be on trial for murder. He has some things at the various people who stared at him; later he continues to talk for what he thinks is their lack of Christianity and says that his and Phoebe's nerve and fortitude during the trial were due to the love and comfort it gives him to his mother. He solemnly proclaims his innocence, and calculates some of his others.

"But," he says, after all this world is only a temporary trial, to prepare us for another and better world. This existence consists of only a few troubles and painful years at best, but there we will enjoy eternal happiness in the company of the angels of God. We will have the assurance of the holy scriptures that riches and prosperity here are insignificant to happiness hereafter. The beggar Lazarus is shown to be in the midst of everlasting bliss, while the rich man Dives, who had supported him for years by the crumbs from his table and was clothed in purple and fine linen, is represented to be in burning in everlasting hell. Another thing we might remember is that it is "less difficult for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle than for the rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven;" so we may therefore, I think, rejoice in our afflictions and trials, for we are told that "those whom the Lord loveth he chastenth," and therefore we can see that the more wretched we are here in this earth in the love and trust in our Lord is the more assured we are of the delights of an everlasting home.

"I gave my testimony on the stand willingly. I gave the whole truth, whether it was for or against me. On the stand I substantiated many points the prosecution endeavored to prove, which were used against me in the argument, which was twisted and turned into all shapes and which helped to convict me on circumstantial evidence."

Held for Murder.

OTTUMWA, Iowa, Nov. 6.—Advices from the prosecuting attorney of Colville, Wash., says that Adolph Neise and his wife are held for the murder of the first Mrs. Neise and her son, Adolph Neise Jr. Neise's present wife was the nurse of the child. On February 22, 1893, fire was discovered in the home of Adolph Neise, foreman of the Silverton Iron, Hide and Wool store in this city, and the building was consumed. The residents were horrified in the morning to learn that not only had the fire destroyed the property of the Neises, but that Mrs. Neise and her little son, Adolph, nine months old, had been burned to death. Suspicions were entertained at the time that Neise was responsible for the outrage, and he was held by the coroner's jury.

GARFIELD ELECTED.

A Son of the Late President Receives a Large Plurality.

AKRON, O., Nov. 6.—James R. Garfield, son of the late President was elected state senator from the Twenty-ninth and Twenty-sixth districts by an enormous plurality. The district was normally Republican by 10,000 but he has carried it by over 14,000. Running with him on the Republican ticket was Whitlesey, who has been state senator for several years. Garfield's plurality is greater than his by 2,000.

The district which he will represent is almost identically the same as that his father was first chosen to 1857 to the office. A remarkable coincidence was the fact that Garfield was nominated on July 2, the 14th anniversary of his father's assassination. He is a graduate of the Columbian law school of New York and for seven years has practiced law in Cleveland. He resides in Mentor.

Against Inter-Marriages.

ARDMORE, I. T., Nov. 6.—The Chickasaw legislature which has just adjourned passed a bill barring all intermarriage citizens from any property rights in the Chickasaw nation whatever. The bill not only disinherits all intermarried citizens, but takes away their rights heretofore unquestioned, of holding lands in the nation, permitting them to retain such goods held by the United States government in part for the Indians.

More than half the property in the Chickasaw nation is owned by intermarried citizens, of square men as they are called, and if the new law is upheld as constitutional, millions of dollars worth of property held by intermarried citizens will be affected.

Mineral Lands in Dispute.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—In denying a protest made by a citizen of California against the patenting of lands in Southern California to the Southern Pacific railroad because the same were mineral, the secretary of the interior says that every effort has been made to ascertain the character of the lands previous to the time when patents were about to issue. The secretary adds that the country in which the lands are located is well explored, and it is presumed that if mineral exists it would have been found previous to the present time. As to the mineral lands in Idaho and Montana, to which the protest alludes, he says that it is to be presumed that if Congress had thought it necessary to have the same precautions taken in California, that state would have been included in the law providing for mineral examinations. He says that possibly in patenting lands to the Southern Pacific some tracts may be included which are mineral, but they will be so rare as to be of little importance.

English Hopes as to America.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—The Daily Telegraph in its financial article, expresses the hope that all parties in America will see the importance of allowing trade naturally to expand, and will support President Cleveland in his protest for the withdrawal of greenbacks and for the substitution of the notes of the various state banks, under which system the American currency would expand or contract the Daily Telegraph says, according to business conditions.

Captured an Expert Shoplifter.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 6.—When the police arrested Miss Alice Hamilton, they captured without doubt the most adroit shoplifter the city has known in many a day. She was arrested at the office of E. M. Ward, manager of the Transit Coal company, where she was employed as a stenographer.

Yesterday she entered Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney's dry goods store and coolly opened one of the large glass cases and selected a beautiful mink skin cloak worth $150, put it on and walked out. Miss Hamilton was recognized by an acquaintance, a saleswoman, who noticed her supposed purchase and went to the fur department to ascertain who had made the sale. It was then discovered that the cloak had been stolen.

TURKISH ENTANGLEMENTS.

The Massacres Continue and Europe May Interfere.

ROME, Nov. 6.—A dispatch received today from Constantinople says that, owing to the recurring disturbances in various parts of the Ottoman empire, the ambassadors of the powers went to the Porte separately today and urged that immediate measures for the restoration of order be taken, declaring that otherwise the powers, acting in concert, would take steps in the matter.

It is added that the ambassadors also requested the Turkish minister for foreign affairs to state what the Porte intends to do to terminate the present state of anarchy.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—A special dispatch to the Chronicle from Constantinople says that the Armenians at Bitlis have wired to Constantinople that they are all living together. This is taken as a code to mean that the wife and children of R. W. Mr. Cole, who have been distributing relief at Bassoun, have taken refuge with the family of Rev. George Cushing Knapp during the massacre.

Louisville Bank Fails.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 6.—The Louisville Savings and Deposit bank closed its doors today and made an assignment, owing to the scarcity of money. The assignment covers the personal property of F. W. Breene, president, as well as all the bank's chattels.

Fay Davis in London.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—All the papers this morning praise the clever acting of Fay Davis, the American girl, who has just made her debut in the role of Dames, which was produced last night at the Criterion with great success.

Money for Turkey.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—It is reported that 2,500,000 pounds of specie left London for Constantinople last evening.

Fair Will Case Settled.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 6.—A local paper says the Fair will case has been settled out of court and what promises to be a bitter contest over an estate valued at $10,000,000 has been averted. The estate is said to have been settled and the property passed into the hands of the various heirs.

Overturned the Wagon.

Shortly after 5 o'clock this afternoon a delivery wagon load of furniture and other household goods was tipped onto the slippery, sleshy asphalt pavement on First South between East and West Temple by the driver dropping one line of the animal steeds to the conveyance and by pulling it around short with the other. The party to whom it belonged—a lady—had her temper very much ruffled by the accident and proceeded to pay her respects to the driver in language both plain and emphatic.

THE VANDERBILT WEDDING

The American Belle Drops Her Own Title for That of a Foreigner.

Crowds of Men and Women Eager to Catch a Glimpse of the Bride.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—The Duke of Marlborough and Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt were married in St. Thomas church, Fifth avenue and Fifty-third street, today at 12:30 o'clock.

By 8 o'clock the seven thousand packed the entrance to the Twombley mansion, adjoining the church, and later arrivals took possession of railings, doors, garden plots, and in some instances of window sills. As the hour of the opening of the church approached, many guests drove up and alighted and got into line in a good-natured way. The crowd began to swell and the police kept the spectators moving, none being permitted to loiter in front of the approaches to the edifice.

Little could be seen of the costumes by the outsiders, owing to the awning of the whole length of the curbs.

The crowd raised for this by surrounding carriages, men and women jostling against each other in their eagerness to see the nobs.

The crowd around the Vanderbilt home on Seventy-second street was not large owing primarily to the efforts of the police. The residents of the vicinity were out in force upon the steps, and all the windows and hotels facing the bride's home were occupied principally by women. Mrs. Vanderbilt, servant and governesses, were accommodated with front seats in the courts.

The Morions, Jays, Belmonts, Goelets and Cuttings arrived early and chatted pleasantly while they waited for the doors to open.

The scene inside the church was one never to be forgotten. Women of wealth and social prominence vied with each other in richness and grandeur of equipage, lending to the whole an air reminiscent of the old-world court functions.

Dr. Warren, organist, for over an hour performed a very fine program. This was followed by one performed by the New York Symphony orchestra with Walter Damrosch as director.

Mrs. Vanderbilt and Mr. Julian Fauncelote, representing the duke's family, entered the church through the forward doors shortly before 1 o'clock. The bridegroom, accompanied by his best man, walked from the vestry to the chancel rail, where they were soon joined by the bride. Mrs Vanderbilt was preceded by her bridesmaids, followed, leaning upon the arm of her latest, W. K. Vanderbilt.

When the bride reached the chancel rail, the choir, accompanied by organ and harp, sang "O perfect love, all perfect love abounding," set to music by Barnby. At its conclusion, Dr. Brown, rector, delivered the introductory and energy.

Dr. Brown was followed by Bishop Potter, who, aided by Bishop Littlejohn, performed the marriage ceremony, which began at 12:30 o'clock sharp. The choir then sang an anthem from the English service: "God be merciful unto us and bless us." Benediction was pronounced. Then the bride, leaning on the arm of the groom, entered the vestry, where the marriage register was signed and witnessed by Mrs. Vanderbilt, W. K. Vanderbilt, Sir Julian Pauncefote, Dr. Brown and Bishops Potter and Littlejohn.

The surging crowds outside were kept back by 200 policemen, and immediately the happy couple were driven to the Vanderbilt home.

The duke and duchess, standing beneath an immense bell in bell, received the guests in the drawing room, among whom were W. K. Vanderbilt Sr., Sir Julian Pauncefote, and members of the British embassy.

STOCKS AND MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The market opened strong, sugar advanced 1¼ in hour prices at 12:15 were strong and all through the list, sugar having receded 1¼, almost and trusty other trusts and gave way to gas and to 88¼, the general list, however, showed little more than a slight hardening in the prices of leading shares.

Nagging Habit Not a Vice,

Simply Nervous Weakness—Use Paine's Celery Compound.

Nagging is a disease, says an eminent physician in the last North American Review: "It is not so," says Dr. Edson, "the result of a diseased condition or of strains on the nerve-nerve."

It is the nervous men and women who most readily fall into the nagging class and anything that does away with nervous weakness will cure the depression, irritability and the nagging habit that so often accompanies a run-down nervous condition.

Persons who lead an active life need something to invigorate their nerves and to give them fresh, ruddy blood. It is the rebellious nerves overtaxed by domestic duties, added to the nervous feeling in the strained atmosphere of indoors that reduces the nervous strength of so many women.

Prof. Edward E. Phelps, M. D., LL.D., presented to his profession the results of accurate investigations in the medical laboratory. His formula for restoring worn-out nervous tissues and building up the nerve-centres when exhausted, this remarkable formula now known the world over as Paine's celery compound, has become familiar to every medical practitioner and family physician.

"Book drugs and nervous prostration cures," say these physicians "are only fed upon proper nutritive material."

Paine's celery compound is the one great nerve feeder and nerve builder. By its means all the functions of the body receive a fresh supply of nerve food. It encourages the body to manufacture an abundant supply of this indispensable vital force, without which there can be no health, strength nor happiness in living. From the lack of nerve force men and women are driven to despondency, melancholia, insanity and suicide.

Thousands of letters like the following from Mrs. Lizzie Arnott of Mansfield, Ohio, are received by the proprietors of Paine's celery compound every month in the year:

"I have used two bottles of Paine's celery compound for nervousness, and have found great relief from its use. It is truly a wonderful remedy. I am better and am using no more medicine now."

Castoria.

"Castoria is so excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

DR. G. C. OSGOOD,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other baneful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

DR. J. F. KINCHELOE,
Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their private practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."
