MONEY OR HIS LIFE.

Adventure of a Millionaire Captured by Robbers.

THEY DEMANDED A LARGE SUM,

And the Fear of His Disappearance Being Published Led to the Capture of the Men.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Aug. 7.—Junius A. Campbell, the millionaire ex-president of Honolulu, who was recently dropped out of sight for two days, this week says he was abducted and robbed by Oliver W. Whitlowe, who attempted to shake the capitalist for a $20,000 check in the office of his library. Whitlowe, who was tried and acquitted last year on a charge of poisoning a woman in Lower Hill cemetery, in which he was assistant superintendent, has disappeared. No trace can be found of his whereabouts.

Campbell says Whitlowe accosted him in his house on a third private matter, he says, a matter, and upon his refusal to talk and pointing a revolver at Campbell, the latter was able to throw up his hands. Campbell says he thought he was robbed and allowed to be thrown out of the house. The robbers then ordered Campbell to write a check for $20,000 payable to bearer, and he did so. Campbell signed it the new name, and he then ordered him to go to the bank and change the bill into bank bills
