NEWS OF THE WEST.

A Young Lady of Wyoming Tackles a Huge Wild Cat.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DEATH.

A Prisoner Outwitted His Jailer and Escaped—An Old Time Sheriff Killed.

The Royal Home association has jack stopped a car load of cattle at Cheyenne to feed at its ranch.

Fifteen thousand brown trout have been received at the state hatchery at Laramie from Northville, Michigan.

According to the Laramie Boomerang, some time Monday, or Tuesday, a coal car of the Union Pacific was set afire in the Cheyenne yards. Nothing was saved even from a blanket or the paint.

Navigation along the Snake river, says the Walla Walla Statesman, has been suspended for a few weeks by the Oregon Railway & Navigation company, owing to the back water the stream has been taken by masses of sand and dunning ice.

The Rawlins, Wyo., Electric light company and the Union coal mines have been consolidated, with M. W. Dunn as manager, who will have his office with Tonge Ann. A northern syndicate is now contemplating the company.

Wyoming has suffered greatly by the protection in the law directing the state stamp upon the sale of liquor at one cent per size. It put an effectual end to smuggling against that territory, says the Cheyenne Sun, and we expect our immigration that would otherwise have flowed in.

The bill for the division of Eastern county, Dakota, says the Sioux City Journal, is now in the senate and passed by the Dakota Forty. It will require the constitutional two-thirds vote to receive it. There would be no danger of its supporters really not passed two years since in case the bill became a law.

T. J. Owens was nearly dragged to death the other day, says the Hope (Idaho) Journal. He took a few bits of hay, tied one end of the hay lariat to the horn, and proceeded to catch a bronco. In doing the latter trick the horse's neck to jerk the bronco, Owens unceremoniously dropped into the soup (dirt of the ground, and was dragged 50 yards. His injuries are not serious.

Street Jones, who was tried and acquitted in some sensing at the Evanston of such, says the Arizona Daily, but held on the ball given, they on account of his double alibi, he escaped jail. He saved what one of the boys that stayed from the top of the jail door to the ceiling, went into the hall and can not have seen or heard of since. The jailer was absent at the time, getting his dinner.

Jim Nelle Williams narrowly escaped serious injury on Sunday afternoon at Green River, Wyo., while coasting out to a sleigh ride with her father. The team in some way became frightened, and trying to run away demolished the sleigh, throwing the occupants out very suddenly. Mr. Williams broke a finger and received a cut on the head, while the young lady was bruised and badly shaken up.

Con Lowery, an old-time Cook City miner, has been instantly killed in the Hot Springs near Livingston, Montana, by an explosion of coal gas. Lowery, in company with Kughner Underwood and Charles Arrowhead, was engaged in sinking a shaft, or a room w.1 in coal when another miner entered with a torch. The explosion which followed killed Lowery and severely, but not fatally, injured Underwood and Arrowhead.

Says the Helena (Mont.) Independent: H. Sonnes, manager of the Rocky Mountain Bell Telephone company, says that the company expects to have telephone communications with Great Falls in a few months. The new line will connect with at the towns on the office Great Northern between Helena and Great Falls. The company will also in the spring put in new line to Butte from Helena. The present line from this city runs by the way of Elkston and Deer Lodge. There has been for some time a line from Helena to Butte. The company intends to connect Elk line to Butte.

An Evanston (Wyo.) gentleman got a small box from Philadelphia on which the freight was $4.85. Of this amount, sixty-one cents was the charges from Philadelphia to Omaha, a distance of 1,304 miles, while the charges from Omaha to Evanston, a distance of 870 miles, were $3.24. Was there ever such a rate, save the Evanston Northeastern? The express on Omaha that charged sixty-one cents for hauling the little box of books are solvent and paying dividends, while the Union Pacific, charging a rate more than seven times as much, is insolvent and in the hands of receivers. Will not our friends in Congress do something to legislate the freight and passenger rates in this city and save our people from such outrageous rates?

Size of Flocks and Dens.

On general principles the smaller the flock the greater the per cent of spring lots of young there is a brood. Very much depends on the care given and the amount of work required of the hens. A pen 15 by 10 should be about 5 or 10 hens if to be good and the soil of the earth is good or dropped and is stopped by being completely all. Feed and keep the hens separately. Some of our most successful poultrymen place a building 12 by 30 in every 10 hens and keep it with fowls, but very rarely do people open the door. The majority have fowls with flocks of 12 to 15 to pen 8 to 12. If some water is done everything is right, and this may be done.—Maine Farmer.

To Poultry Raisers.

If you have a piece of ground for poultry fastens, surround it with a tight fence and bury the lot and nail from the ground up. It is a wonder that there is nothing to have in the country. The building of fowls that are not without experience cost not to the business, although it may and make it profitable. Many have tried it and failed. If you find that you can make a few dollars by you and you like the business then enlarge the flock.
