SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE For CATARRH

INSTANTLY relieves and permanently cures that loathsome disease in all its varying stages. It possesses the searching and healing properties of plants, herbs and barks in their essential form, free from every disease contamination, and in this respect differs from every other known remedy. In nineteen years it has found its way from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast, and wherever known has become the standard remedy for the treatment of Catarrh. The proprietors have been waited upon by gentlemen of national reputation who have been cured by this remedy, and who have, at considerable expense and personal trouble, sought the proprietors through various circuitous routes to relieve. When you hear a wealthy gentleman of intelligence and refinement say, I owe my life to Sanford's Radical Cure, you feel assured that it is an article of great value, and worthy to be classed among the standard medicinal specifics of the day.

THE benefit I derive from its daily use is to me priceless.
HENRY WELLS, ex Wells, Fargo & Co.

IT has cured me after twelve years of unintermitted suffering.
GEO. W. HOUGHTON, Waltham, Mass.

I FOLLOWED the directions to the letter and am happy to say I have had a permanent cure.
D. W. GRAY, M. D., Montezuma, Iowa.

I HAVE recommended it to quite a number of my friends, all of whom concur with me in their high estimate of its value and good effects with them.
WM. BOWEN, 23 Pine St., St. Louis.

AFTER using two bottles I find myself permanently cured. I cheerfully recommend it to over one hundred bottles with the greatest success.
WM. ARMSTRONG, 109 Harrison Ave., Boston.

WE have sold Sanford's Radical Cure for nearly one year and can say candidly that we never sold a similar preparation that gave such universal satisfaction. We have yet to learn of the first complaint.
S. D. BALDWIN & CO., Washington, Ind.

THE cure effected in my case by Sanford's Radical Cure was so remarkable that it seemed to those who had suffered without relief from any of the usual remedies that it could not be true. I therefore made affidavit to it before Seth J. Thomas, Esq., Justice of the Peace, Hartford, Conn.
GEORGE Y. DINSMORE, Detroit, Mich.

Each package of Sanford's Radical Cure contains Dr. Sanford's Improved Inhaling Tube, and full directions for use in all cases. Price, $1.00. For sale by all wholesale and retail druggists and dealers throughout the United States and Canadas. WEEKS & POTTER, General Agents and Wholesale Druggists, Boston, Mass.

ESSAY ON MUTUAL IMPROVEMENT.

Read before the Young Men's Mutual Improvement Association of Richfield, Sevier County, U. T.

BY WM. MORRISON.

The word mutual, as defined by Webster, means interchange of the thing spoken of, from the Latin word "mutare" to change, a reciprocity of interest. In this case it is the adjective, which qualifies the noun improvement, the thing spoken of, and is the word here given to represent progress in a knowledge of the arts and sciences common to all, and made more accessible by mutual effort to give and appreciate individually, what is known by the whole collectively; agreeing to observe such rules and regulations as may be adopted to accomplish the desired end. Improvement also is well defined by the same lexicographer as the act of making profitable use of anything, also a practical application of the doctrines and principles of a discourse or progress toward what is better.

Members of a Mutual Improvement Association, then, are to be the subjects of improvement, enjoying such facilities of intercourse as will operate favorably to enhance their usefulness; for all are alike mutually obligated to give and receive instruction, and all equally assume the responsibility to cherish advancement in knowledge of common things. Every member therefore should aim to secure knowledge for himself of what is known in the Association by strict attention to the rules thereof.

In order to succeed, make a beginning to acquire knowledge of first principles in as many branches of the arts as time, circumstances and the necessities of the case will admit. Can we read? If not, let us begin at once, and at the beginning of that important and fundamental branch of education make some progress, every day, and assure ourselves that we are learning to read, just so much, and that much well. Can we write? If not, let us practice the art of writing, and, for that purpose, avail ourselves of the valuable, though cheap, copies published, containing elementary or first principles, and although we may progress but little daily, let that progress be effectual. In connection with the above, let us learn to spell and institute such exercises in the art of spelling as would be, while very profitable, really entertaining pastimes in the family or social circles generally, at all suitable times. All of which departments harmonize to promote usefulness and attainment in any degree of excellence and efficiency.

In the further immediate pursuit of mental culture and gradual development comes, among the foremost, if not indeed the first, Grammar, which is the art of speaking and writing with propriety, or, as rendered by some grammarians, the art of speaking and writing correctly; others, again, have it, as the art of speaking and writing according to established usage (to which might be added) among the best speakers and writers. In the same connection comes Arithmetic, or the art of computation by figures, the ability to count from one or unity to an endless infinity. A never-ending source of progress and research; until, like the Great Supreme, we count the stars, their relative magnitudes and distances; or the infinitesimal sands upon the sea shore. With Mathematics and Algebra, to know and understand the signs and symbols which, without close application and research, are to us all a mystery and a myth. Also Geography, Chemistry, the analyses of all these or the science of reducing every organized theory or device into its component parts or elementary principles.

And, if we have no higher source of access to these attainments than through a mutual improvement association, let us prosecute our studies with the best books, make careful use of our spare moments, and avail ourselves of every facility for improvement; that we, the sons of Zion, may climb the Tree of Knowledge, the very leaves of which, are for the healing of the nations, and with eager grasp, pluck the fruit which hangs invitingly forth on every branch.

Fellow students, to accomplish this, we must press forward in the constant exercise of those mental qualities with which we are, every one of us, endowed in a greater or less degree. We may indeed pause, and while we pause, reflect upon the limits of the little steps by which we can reach the giddy heights of skill, honor, glory and renown, which appear in view, and realize that it is only by slow degrees, step by step, little by little. But, in the lapse of ages, these become the mighty whole, and thus the most enduring monuments of antiquity still appear as triumphs of immortal skill. To become familiar with which, we are led intuitively to the threshold of history, another department for the eager student, and there cull from the records of ages, the imperishable words which have immortalized the mighty dead of former ages. Solomon said, "Get wisdom, get knowledge, but with all thy getting, get understanding."

We have faith in the opening up of boundless immensity as to treasures of knowledge by the revelations of God; and no better rule can I urge upon the attention of these classes than that of Paul the earnest apostle to the Gentiles, himself educated, brought up at the feet of Gamaliel, and which brings into full development the latent inspiration of all true and enuring progress on the march of improvement. Thus he addressed the earnest followers of Christ, seeking after truth: "Add to your faith, virtue, to virtue knowledge, to knowledge temperance, to temperance patience, to these brotherly kindness, and to all of these, charity, which is, indeed, the greatest gift of all.

May the blessing of the Almighty crown your efforts and labors in mutual improvement, with abundant success, is the earnest prayer of

Your fellow-laborer in the gospel.
