MINING TOWN GONE.

Alaska Completely Swept Away by a Terrible Storm.

A Ship Lifted Up by a Tidal Wave and Left Stand up on Main Street at Rexville.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 18.—On the last trip of the Pacific Coast steamship Corinto up the Gulf of California the officers and crew of the vessel were surprised to find one of the posts they made regularly wiped off the earth. When the ship reached the mouth of the river Culiacan, in the state of Sinaloa, the little mining town of Altata, which had stood there on the Corinto's last voyage, was gone. Not a building was left standing.

This was one of the results of the terrible storm which played such havoc on the mainland coast of the Gulf September 12th and 13th. The Corinto has just brought the first details which gave a comprehensive idea of the extent of the damage done.

The storm was a sort of composite affair partaking of the nature of a tidal wave and cyclone. Torrents rushed down the hills back of Altata and met the tidal wave carried far in on the sea, and the town was obliterated. Many of the houses located inland from the wharf were floated up the mountains. Fortunately the loss of life was slight and the Altatans are now camping in tents or rudely constructed huts a little back of where the town stood. Viewing the former site of the town from the sea the most striking objects that meet the view are the spars of the schooners Camelia and Rebecca and the German barkentine Hesse, which were beached by the great waves.

At Mazatlan, further up the gulf, a most remarkable result of the storm is observed. In the middle of the main street at Mazatlan, more than a block from the water's edge, sits a schooner so represented. She rode it on the tidal wave, and when it receded was left high and dry.

Mazatlan stood the storm fairly well, but there damage was done. Four German barks took wave at Tetuan as to be well off land weathered the storm in the gulf outside. They made port two days after the fury of the elements had subsided, minus all their masts.

So far as Altata is concerned, it is no use thinking of it in the Kansas City way. There is the third time the town has been swallowed up by the sea. Twice the place has been rebuilt, each time at a point further up the Culiacan river. Time and time the treacherous tide will in from the coast, it is said.

A BOLD SWINDLER.

But He Is Arrested Before He Gets Away with the Money.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 18.—A daring robber of the mails was arrested here tonight by the postal authorities, aided by the local police. The subject is C. H. Hamilton, alias Walker, who claims to have been employed lately at Los Angeles, Cal., as a stenographer. The police authorities say the man has been in trouble at Salt Lake and Denver. In the latter place he was at one time an employe of the city.

This evening Hamilton appeared at the Union depot wearing the brass buttons and chevrons of a railway mail agent. He stepped boldly up to a truck that was standing under the depot roofs, loaded with mail sacks, and pulled down a large pouch, throwing it across his arm and stepping into a waiting hack. There he passed the pouch under an overcoat that hung upon his arm and walked out into the street. He would have escaped but for Frank Wertz, a foreman of the baggage department in Denver and wife, who had taken into his confidence. While quickly notified the authorities, and a short time afterward Hamilton was arrested at his hotel. He has not upon the sack and was going through the letters which it contained when the officers broke into his room. He had already extracted several small sums of money.

ARMENIAN MASSACRES.

A Story of Cruelty Told by a Christian Turk.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Malji Rahman is a Christian Turk, who was one of the passengers on board the La Gascogne when sunk recently. He comes to this country on a business trip. Through an interpreter he talks about the massacres of Armenians. He was in Constantinople during the three days' massacre in August, during the three days 20,000 Armenians, he said, were slaughtered through the empire. Wagons filled with bodies were constantly passing through the streets in Constantinople. Carloads either earthenware of loose bodies were dumped into the sea. Tonight was a stunning one, and what added to the horror was the fact that in those wagons were piled the dead and dying and the terrible cries of the wounded for release could be heard coming from the carts, but the spasms were utterly unheeded. Whether killed or wounded, all were thrown into the sea. Mr. Rahman says the Europeans have not been informed up to date. He stated that they are having Constantinople, hoping they may be attained.

WORK OF THE BACHILLUS.

She Leaves Arms in Cuba, While Officers are Searching for Her.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—A special to the Herald from Jacksonville, Fla., says:

While Jacksonville officials have been searching for the Dauntless since she landed the Bachillers, Cuba, which were taken on at Palm Beach about ten days ago, that vessel has been busily engaged in landing more arms and ammunition and men for the insurgents. She made her second landing on Tuesday of last week, and it is said that she is now on her third trip to the island. The Dauntless got the arms from a small island off the lower end of Turtle harbor, where the Cubans have established a storehouse for supplies. The munitions of war, merchandise and stores are taken to the island by sailing vessels, and as the place is fifty miles south of here, there is no less little danger of detection. A supply of coal in casks has been landed on the island, and this accounts for the length of time the Dauntless has been away from any point where she could have obtained coal. The Dauntless is now under bond because of a former libel, and will attempt to avoid being placed again in custody until a contract for five trips to Cuba is completed.

Accidental Shooting.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Walter Louis Lemon, who married the widow of Col. John Cockerill, died almost today at his home at Englewood, N. J. According to Mrs. Lemon the shooting was accidental.

Persons passing by were startled today by the appearance of Mrs. Lemon on the steps of her home. She was hysterical and was talking up and down the street, appealing to everyone she saw: "Oh! a terrible accident! my husband has shot himself and is dying."

Doctor Currie, Baldwin and Proctor soon arrived and found Mr. Lemon on a bed, where he had been put by his wife and a servant. A bullet entered a 38-caliber revolver had entered the stomach. The surgeons unsuccessfully probed for the ball. Mr. Lemon rallied a little an hour after the shooting and expressed a desire to live, but said nothing as to how he shot himself.

To the friends who came to express sympathy, Mrs. Lemon said: "It was an accident. A desperate attempt to do my own life with it have been neither from my husband's thoughts. Walter was in nearly dinner and then spoke of cleaning his revolver. He took it from a cretan drawer, examined it and said he was surprised to see it rusty. There he took it to clean it. I entered the room just looking toward his body. I said, 'Walter, I wouldn't let the revolver point that way.' The words had hardly passed my lips when there was a report and my husband threw up his hands and fell to the floor."

Conflicting Rumors Regarding the Mission of the Ship.

Peace and Good Will in Mexico.

CITY OF MEXICO, Oct. 18.—An event marking the close of a great big, world episode occurred yesterday when the Belgian minister, in the name of his majesty Leopold II, king of the Belgians, bestowed on President Diaz the grand order of the military order of Leopold, as a mark of the friendship regard in which the President of Mexico is held in Belgium. The sign of honor of this order has been conferred but King Leopold is the brother of the late Emperor Carlotta of Mexico, and his bestowal of the order upon a president of the republic is an indication that the Maximilian episode is now definitely closed. President Diaz was as a matter of public policy, and as a means of drawing all parties and nations together and obliterating the past, bestowed high offices on distinguished adherents of the late emperor, and has been sought as one of the leading men for financial enterprises particularly under his in Mexico.

FISH AND FISHERIES.

Report of that Important Industry of the United States.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 18.—William A. Wilcox of Washington, D. C., commissioner of the United States commission of fish and fisheries, has arrived from Oregon and Washington for the purpose of preparing a comprehensive report of the fishing industry on the coast. He has been investigating the subject in pursuance of his investigations and inquiries in Oregon and Washington for several weeks and will do so for the next month or two before he will be ready to gate concerning the fish and fisheries of California.

Mr. Wilcox said that for years past he has been one of the members of the United States fish commission and in investigations in this and other fish commissions have found the United States fish commission had changed it methods and fully 1 important that an elaborate and comprehensive report of the status of the fishing industry be made. Mr. Wilcox said he has been sent here for that purpose. His report is calculated to prove of great benefit to the commercial fishing interests of the coast. He said: "The reason that it will show the need for more hatcheries and a more thorough checking of the current wasteful methods of fishing in these states. He says it is highly probable that the United States fish commission will establish one or two more fish hatcheries in California, it being, for the reason that the fishing industry of the Pacific coast states, including Alaska, now yields over $10,000,000 annually to those of the New England and middle Atlantic states in relative importance, while the value of the fishing industry of states that lie in the south Atlantic Gulf and Great Lakes states combined.
