DESERET EVENING NEWS.

Friday, - - November 24, 1893.

FRAGMENTS.

Hon. Prince's meeting in the Assembly Hall tomorrow (Sunday) at 11 a. m.

The grand jury worked up their long session today. They have accomplished a good deal of work.

The Twenty-first quorum of Elders will meet in the Nineteenth ward meeting house this evening at 7:30 o'clock.

ONLY a few more orders were again made in the Probate court this morning and the afternoon dockets very little more.

CHIEF JUSTICE ZINN will deal with motions tomorrow at her own office. There are indications it is one or two of those specially set, however.

PETTY thieves are reported as stripping clothes lines of heavy washings in the suburbs of the city. Must—can for the washing to before hot time.

The people of Tooele county are happy in the contemplation that they are able to have a daily train service for both this city and the Utah-Nevada, beginning Monday morning next.

The City Council is booked for a special session tonight. Among the matters of importance announced to come up for consideration is the Rose-Cannon-Southern Big Cottonwood street railway franchise.

BILLY LEWIS, the soldier pugilist, has been traveling a rather thorny path of late—a fact that is well known to those who read newspapers. He spent last night in the city prison, with a charge of vagrancy opposite his name on the register.

The Eclipse grocery wagon was run into by a street car at the corner of First south and Second east streets this morning. Both hind wheels were smashed. The driver of the wagon was badly shaken up by being thrown to the ground.

JUDGE ZINN will return tonight to the art gallery of the University building on the subject of "Saint Rebecca." In addition to the income Misses Ethel Nichols and Kate Johnson will give a clarionet and piano selection, and Mr. Carlisle a vocal contribution. The lecture begins at 7:30. The public are cordially invited to attend.

High Priests.

The regular monthly meeting of the High Priests' Quorum of the Salt Lake Stake of Zion will convene in the Assembly Hall on Saturday, November 25, 1893, at 11 a.m. An invitation is extended to members of every quorum of Priesthood to be present. ELIAS MORRIS, President.

Will Behave Better.

Rosa Vincelli, a pretty Italian girl of sixteen years, was taken before Judge Zane just before the adjournment of court yesterday afternoon on the application of her father, who asked that she be sent to the reform school. The child was charged with habitually stealing articles of small value and leaving home and staying away without permission. Deputy Marshal Dyer, one of the witnesses, said he had seen the child's mother beat her with a broom stick. Judge Zane advised the father to send his child to the Sisters' school and have her beat there. Rosa promised to be a good girl in future and was discharged.

THE CALL PUBLISHED.

A Desire to Relegate Politics to the Rear in School Matters.

The citizens of the Third precinct who took the initiative in the present in the recent endeavor to keep politics out of the approaching school election have hasted to fur publication the following call:

We the undersigned, citizens and property owners of the Third precinct, reflecting that the best interests of the schools of our city demand that the contests of all school officers be entirely free from political influences, we hereby call a mass meeting of all the citizens and property owners of the Third precinct, to be held in the Seventeenth ward meeting house on Monday, Nov. 27, 1893, at 7:30 p.m., for the purpose of electing a candidate to be voted for on the 5th day of December, to fill the vacancy in the school board caused by the expiration of the term of one of the members from the Third precinct. H. P. Morris, J. A. Watson, Alfred Gillespie, W. H. McCornick, S. H. Hill, D. A. Cole, D. and Deans, A. Miner, John S. Hansen, Wm. A. Hodges, A. S. Geddes, John L. Nuttall, Peter Reid, Frank Kimball, A. F. Dunbar, Jos. R. Marks, Hans Batten, H. B. Jones, E. L. Shaw.

Attachment Suit.

Fraser & Chalmers have filed an attachment suit against L. C. Trent in the Third district court to recover about $21000. Mr. Trent resigned as the company's agent some a short time ago, and it is alleged that he claimed the amount was due him. The money sued for was paid to the defendant by the Mammoth Mining company in error, which he refused for the company and retained.

BITTER ROOT MOUNTAINS.

The Region Where Young Curtis and His Companions Are Reported In.

J. L. McBride, of Maeson, Mont., who has had many experiences at all seasons of the year in the wild Bitter Root mountains, where General Curtis's son and party are now lost, makes a statement to a San Francisco Chronicle reporter regarding that region. Mr. McBride has just arrived from Lost Horse river in the Bitter Roots, where he was on a cow-hunting expedition. He says the snow near there is over five feet deep in many places, and it was snowing and storming violently every day. He has little hope of Young Curtis and party being discovered, and he thinks they may have a very hard time, and not improbably lose their lives.

"There are a great many different parties now hunting for them now," he said. "When I left Missoula many men, organized into parties, had gone out in various directions. These were in addition to the government parties. The mountains there are full of wild game. There is an abundance of wild sheep, elk, deer and bear. Although I was hunting for deer, and paid almost no attention to getting anything else, I got a magnificent black bear. His skin was the reason to make you an overcoat. I have rarely seen a bear so big. I could have got many more bears. There is also elk there, and some moose. Then there are plenty of grouse and other kinds of game. However, the game is most abundant in the deer and bear. Two nights since it look as though Curtis and party had fallen to lost, so far as food is concerned, inasmuch as it set in.

"The snow has been howling and raging so long up there in the Bitter Roots, and now has been falling so continuously that it becomes a matter of less than seven feet deep, and in many places is vastly more. The game has been driven down to valleys, or low ones, and it is, in these mountains, hard to get at. Besides, the members of the party did not expect to be caught in a snowstorm, and are rather lightly dressed. It will be extremely hard work for any of the searching parties to find them. The weather might go within twenty feet of the lost men and not find them, for their tracks are completely buried deep and cannot from view by the ever falling snow."

Mr. McBride thinks it will be a miracle if the men are found alive. He says few can understand the confusion of the Bitter Root mountains in winter, and that now that he is out of them he is satisfied to stay out.

WHY STARVE IN A CITY,

When Such Places as This are Lying Out of Doors in the Country?

CARTERVILLE, Wayne Co., Utah, Nov. 14, 1893.—Our little village is located in the eastern part of Wayne county, about 15 miles southwest of the Henry mountains and about 15 miles west of the Colorado river on the Fremont river. We have a very mild climate. Fruits can be raised in great abundance, also small grains and corn, cane, potatoes, etc. We now have about twenty-five or thirty families living here. They are generally good, honest, hard-working people and seem to display genius of enterprise. With most of us means is limited to advance much in the way of machinery.

We have plenty of land for good settlers, and title is sure. Timber can be got at about twenty-five or thirty miles distant. There are also many coal veins where one can get a good load of coal in a day, and that is all it costs him. We have formed a town site, and seven miles from town are now going up. Timber has to be hauled at the present time about thirty miles over a somewhat rough road, but we think we have splendid brick soil and plenty of good adobe soil.

Our schools, two in number, are running and in good condition. We have Primaries, Relief society, Y. L. M. I. and Y. M. M. I. associations, etc., all running in full blast. We also have one small store and a postoffice, with mail service three times per week.

We have plenty of room for good, industrious, honorable people. A good home can be made for a small amount of money. Yours respectfully,

W. L. HANSEN.

Goddard Hauled in.

William Goddard has been arrested at Nephi by Deputy Marshal Thomas Cannon on the charge of adultery. The complaint was sworn to by Leon Lacon. One Eva O'Meara is the woman mentioned in the case and the offense is alleged to have occurred in this city. Goddard was brought to last evening by Deputy Cannon and taken before Commissioner Tait, who fixed his bonds at $500. He spent the night in custody. The woman was also arrested and charged with fornication. Her bonds were placed at $250, which she gave. Goddard is the editor of a newspaper called the Crisis, published in this city. His residence is at Nephi, where he has a wife and family. The preliminary hearing has been fixed for 2 p.m. today. Goddard gave notice this morning.

WINTER AT ANN ARBOR.

Lectures and Amusements.—The Utah Colony is Well and Happy.

(Special Correspondence of the News.)

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 13, 1893.

That this is a city for famous speakers, artists and artists of so many styles is generally conceded. This year is not behind the rest in the attractions offered by the students' lecture association of the U. of M. Hon. Frederick Douglass opened the series of ten evenings, Oct. 16. He spoke on the "Rights of the Negro," and made several good points. James Whitcomb Riley, the "Hoosier" poet, and Douglass Sherley of Kentucky, were Nos. 2 in the program, giving one of their unique entertainments, consisting of readings and humorous stories. Then came "reckless Jerry" Simpson, of Kansas, and about all he did implore upon his audience was that he "did wear socks." He is not the speaker to bore spellbound an Ann Arbor audience. The fourth of the program sound to lighten up with wondrous brilliancy when the great orator and editor of the New South, John Temple Graves (successor to Henry Grady of the Atlanta Constitution), burst forth with clear invective against the demagogue, pouring out the vials of his wrath upon the advocates of political corruption, in his brilliant oration "The Dogs of the Demagogue." He possesses the power of fascination to an eminent degree and held his audience spellbound for an hour and a half, holding them with stirring appeals to their patriotism and overwhelming them with laughter by holding up to their ridicule the political thinkers of this country. He showed that although "politics" is so often a synonym of corruption, yet back of all this there is something tremendously important in the affairs of state. In beautiful language Mr. Graves eulogized the late Henry W. Grady, and with matchless eloquence and skill of persuasion brought forth tremendous applause in memory of General Robert E. Lee, saying: "Could I whisper down the corridors of time, to the latest generation, I would whisper with fervent fervency—be like Lee!" In closing the speaker painted the death of the institutions of the West if such men as Lincoln, Cleveland, Blaine, Bright, Washington and Lee be long those of the patriots who lived and served their country with such unselfish devotion.

Henry Mabie, the Pawnee reviewer, is the next attraction, night of December 5.

The N. Y. Philharmonic club, J. J. Loguis and Roger G. Mills, are the most important of coming numbers.

Joseph Horne, of Brigham, Utah, attending the agricultural college at Lansing, Mich., is now in the winter session-taking special studies in the C. of M.

The students from Zion's valley papers are steadily working on the learning of the Egyptians, this last getting their devotion to their God and religion.

H. S. Harris, J. E. Hickman, E. J. Hinckley and John J. McCullen were appointed last Saturday to act as hunters, to visit the shores of the lake in St. Ann Arbor and stir them to greater diligence.

J. F. McGregor and Jos. A. Harris were elected president and secretary, respectively, of the Utah Debating Society on the 13th inst.

We are now having some warmer weather—representative of the climate—cold and piercing. G. D. B. St. Ju.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 21, 1893.

SAN JUAN Stake Conference.

The quarterly conference of the San Juan Stake of Zion and at Manson, Sanpete county, Utah, Nov. 18th and 19th. Present on the third Elders F. A. Hammond, Wm. Hale and P. D. Lyman, of the Stake presidency. Elders Brigham Young and Robert S. Walker of Salt Lake City, and a very good representation of members of the High Council, the Bishops and members of the several wards.

After the usual opening exercises, President Hammond resolved to extend the Saints to put all secular matters to one side and wait upon the Lord.

The reports of the wards were quite encouraging notwithstanding light crops have fallen prevail.

The General and Stake authorities were pre-eminent and unanimously sustained. Vacancies in the High Council, occasioned by Elders H. Hill (who being called on a mission and Alma Peterson being set apart as Bishop in Moab), were filled up by promoting the counsel of Peter Allen and Joseph Moore. Wayne B. Reid was also added as clerk of the High Council and Geo. F. Harmston as alternate.

The speakers were Elders F. A. Hammond, Wm. Hale, P. D. Lyman, Brigham Young, Robert S. Walker, John R. Young, Rudger Jones, J. F. Barton, Hansen Bayles and W. A. Decker. The subjects most treated upon were the paying of tithes and fastday offerings to Zion and to assist, the laying up of treasures against a time of need, etc.

A notable event of the conference was Brother Robert S. Walker's singing of "Oh My Father, Thou that dwellest," in the new tune sung at the World's Fair. At the Priesthood meeting, Elders Brigham Young and F. A. Hammond spoke plainly on the principles of intercession, living revelation, obeying the teachings of the Church, etc. The conference was noted as one of the best ever held in the Stake. Everyone seemed well paid for attending notwithstanding most of the visitors had come a distance of 100 miles via teams.

Adjourned to meet three months hence. L. H. REID, Clerk pro tem.

United in Marriage.

Miss Gwen Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Phillips, and Mr. T. M. Paine were united in marriage last night at the residence of the bride's parents, the Rev. R. F. Clay officiating. Only a few intimate friends, witnesses of the contracting parties, witnessed the ceremony. The young couple have a wide acquaintance in this city and their friends wish them boundless happiness in their journey through life.
