Death of a Centenarian.

By a notice in the appropriate place in this paper it will be seen that another centenarian has recently passed away. It is so seldom that a person reaches that age now-a-days that when it does occur it is an event worthy of record. Mrs. Caroline Dangerfield was born in London, England, on December 5th, 1792, and was consequently in her 101st year. In many respects she was a most remarkable woman, retaining all her faculties, with the exception of her hearing, which was somewhat impaired, to within a few days of her demise. She was very firm in her convictions, and was of great will power. She managed the business concerns of her husband, Thomas Dangerfield, until the time of his death, which occurred eighteen years ago, and was in every respect a helpmate to him. She will be remembered by many of the Saints from the North London branch, having joined the Church there many years ago. Her posterity, many of whom are in this city, number exactly 200, being as follows: 8 children, 37 grandchildren, 131 great grandchildren, and 4 great-great-grandchildren, Mrs. Mary Ann Denney, Jules Dangerfield, Mrs. Julia West, and Charles Denney, of this city, being included in this number. The deceased now lies by the side of her husband in Abney Park cemetery, London.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE MOCK TRIAL, in which Miss Trent is the plaintiff and S. H. Lewis the defendant, and Judge Goodwin, Judge Powers and other purposes crowds, comes off at the Theater tonight. There is any amount of curiosity over the event.

THE OLD HOMESTEAD with Archie Boyd in Dennies Thomsen's part, plays four times this week, Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings and a matinee on Saturday.

THE CHORAL SOCIETY had at its rehearsal, the largest turnout since its reorganization, which shows that the difficulties of the Creation almost rather than repel the musical people of the city. Most of them agree that Handel's work is like pay compared to Dudley Buck's. During the evening the venerable teacher, Prof. Sabbins, was interviewed by Prof. Stephens, and made some remarks on his new system of teaching harmony, which he said he could impart in five lessons and for which he desired to form a class of 100 from the Choral society at $5 for each pupil. He was listened to with attention and applauded at the close. He spoke the next moment home tomorrow, at which time it will be known how many of the society have embraced his proposition.

THAT ACTION FOR DAMAGES.

The Suit of $25,000 Claimed from the O. S. L. and U. N. Railway Company.

The further hearing of the $25,000 damage suit brought by Alice J. Jones against the Oregon Short Line and Utah Northern Railway company, the trial of which began yesterday afternoon, was resumed in Judge Zane's court this morning. The facts were briefly stated in Monday's NEWS. Plaintiff is suing as the administratrix of her husband, Edward J. Jones, who in April, 1891, was a fireman in the service of the defendant company. He met his death on the 6th of the month, while adjusting a connection between the engine and a water tank at Cedar Fort. Some detached cars ran into his train, throwing Jones off the tender and killing him instantly. Negligence on the defendant's part, owing to defective coupling of the cars, is alleged.

The case went to the jury at noon and at 8:00 p. m. they had not reached a verdict.

MR. WHITE'S GRIEVANCE.

Matters At and Pertaining to Saltair Beach Not Sub Rosa.

COMPLAINT BOTH LONG AND BROAD

Several Transfers, Deals and Operations of the Officers are Questioned and General Relief Asked.

An important suit was filed in the Third district court today by Matthew White against the Saltair Beach company, its board of directors, secretary and treasurer, the Salt Lake and Los Angeles Railway company, and the Inter-Mountain Salt company. The complaint is a most voluminous one and comprises some twenty pages of typewritten matter. Plaintiff, who is a stockholder in the Beach Co., alleges that after the organization thereof he sold and conveyed by deed to the company certain lands (which are specified) for their future use. That in September, 1891, the Saltair Railway company was incorporated, its real object being to construct and operate a railroad as a means of communication and travel for those interested in the property of the Saltair Beach Co., on the shores of the Great Salt Lake. For the latter purpose, and as incidental and subordinate to the general objects of the Beach company's incorporation, all the subscribers to the capital stock thereto—Wilford Woodruff, George Q. Cannon, Joseph F. Smith, James Jack, Angus M. Cannon, Nephi W. Clayton, L. John Nuttall, Isaac A. Clayton, G. H. Beal, and the plaintiff—took all the capital stock of the railroad corporation. Afterwards—in February, 1892—plaintiff, with the consent of the other stockholders, withdrew and his subscription was cancelled. After speaking of the incorporation of the Inter-Mountain Salt Co., in September, 1892, for the manufacturing and dealing in Salt, the complaint alleges that on August 17th, 1892, the Saltair Beach Co., by Geo. Q. Cannon, its president, and Isaac Clayton, its secretary, in pursuance of a pretended authority conferred by resolution against the protest of plaintiff, of a stockholder and director, by deed to the Los Angeles Railway Co., a right of way on and across the lands and premises of the Beach company. He avers that this deed was given, without any consideration whatever, of a most valuable property and easement, the resolution having been carried by the votes of Geo. Q. Cannon, J. F. Smith and James Jack, directors in the Saltair Beach company, who at the time constituted the majority of the board. That the management and control of these two defendant corporations have since been exercised by Geo. Q. Cannon, Joseph F. Smith, Nephi W. Clayton, L. J. Nuttall and James Jack, directors, common to both companies. Plaintiff then goes on to aver, on information and belief, that these defendants combined and confederated together to subordinate the interests of the Saltair Beach Co. to those of the railway company, for the advantage of the latter, and to that end, disregarding their duty as trustees and directors of the Saltair Beach Co., caused this company to give the right of way and of company to the railroad company; that while the original articles of incorporation of the Saltair Railway Co. (now known as the Salt Lake and Los Angeles Railway Co.) provided for the consolidating of a line from Salt Lake City to a point on the Great Salt Lake, that real object was the construction of a railroad between Salt Lake City and Los Angeles, Cal. Plaintiff says he believes it to be intention of the said directors at some time in the future, if they can succeed in securing an amendment of their articles of incorporation so as to greatly enlarge the scope of its purposes. That in the course of construction of its road bed, by contrivance of the aforesaid directors, the Saltair Beach company has used and occupied the lands, houses and other property of the Saltair Beach company without making any compensation therefor, for ten months. Rumor he charges that the Railway company is indebted to the Saltair Beach company in a large sum, which plaintiff cannot now state; but suggests that upon reference to a Master an accounting could be ascertained. In regard to the Inter-Mountain Salt company plaintiff alleges that the conducting of the salt water or brine through an open ditch or canal is offensive by reason of the stench emitted, and is injurious and detrimental to the interests of the Beach company, being calculated to depreciate the value of the property for the uses originally intended. That three of the directors of the Inter-Mountain Salt Co.—Moses N. W. Clayton, John Q. Cannon and A. H. Cannon—were also directors of the Beach and Railroad companies. That all the defendants named in this complaint, as directors of the Beach company, combined and confederated together for the purpose of the wrongful sale by the officers of the Salt Co. at the expense of the Beach Co., and without consideration and fraudulently, on August 17th, 1892, caused a deed to be executed unto an unincorporated association, designated the Saltair Manufacturing Co., of a right of way over the lands of the Beach company. That the Inter-Mountain Salt Co. was incorporated to manufacture salt for private consumers and gain. Plaintiff then goes on to declare that, with the license and consent of the directors of the Beach company the Inter-Mountain company excavated from the premises of the former a vast quantity of stone of great value. That the latter company has also built a valuable water privilege belonging to the Beach company without compensation and in violation of the latter's rights—to its great and lasting injury and damage. That the transactions of said, as aforesaid, had no connection with the purposes of the Saltair Beach company, but is simply advantageous to the defendant railway company, inasmuch as it enables it to avoid the expenditure in transporting the stone or manufactured salt. Moreover, four of the five directors of the Inter-Mountain company are also stockholders in the defendant railway company. Plaintiff is informed, believes and believes that the control and management of the three corporations are practically one, being in the same hands, and that other affairs have been so intermingled in purchases of the manufacture and embezzlement heretofore stated" that moneys of the Saltair Beach company have been expended for the benefit of the other mountain corporations, the account certainly exceeding $100. The complaint then goes on to aver that the congregating of crowds of people in the pavilion at Saltair for purposes other than bathing will of necessity result in fouling the waters of the Lake in front of the shore line of the Beach company's premises; that the droppings from the engines and cars and the refuse and ordinary debris and filth left by the multitude can only find lodgment in the Lake, and by the action of wind and wave would ultimately be deposited along the beach on the shore line of the Saltair Beach company's property.

Wherefore, plaintiff says he brings this suit on behalf of himself and any other stockholder who may come in and contribute to the expense thereof. He prays that the defendants be required to answer the matters herein charged against them; that an accounting be had between the Saltair Beach company and the other two defendant companies and individuals, and that to that end the case be referred to a special master in Endings and Decrees that the defendants pay all losses or damages which may have resulted to the Beach company by reason of their illegal or willful violations of duty as directors; that the Salt Lake and Los Angeles railway company and the Inter-Mountain Salt company be required to account for and pay to the Saltair Beach company all moneys or property in the latter paid or delivered by its directors for their own use and benefit, together with the value of the use and occupation of the lands, etc., of the Saltair Beach company by the other two defendant companies while constructing their respective works; that the Salt Lake and Los Angeles railway company be enjoined to remove its track from the sands and shore front of the Beach company, and in the meantime be restrained from operating its line within the premises of the same, or be deemed to pay compensation, etc., should it appear that the Saltair Beach company is not entitled to other relief; that the Inter-Mountain Salt Co. be required to surrender the essential and premises conveyed to it by the Saltair Beach Co., and be enjoined from further maintaining its canal or ditch over the Beach company's lands; to fill up and level the same.

C. S. Varian and E. W. Taylor are the plaintiff's attorneys.

Conference Rates.

The Union Pacific and Rio Grande Western railway companies have announced their regular conference rates of one fare for the round trip. Tickets will be good from April 5th to 8th inclusive.

Finishing Up.

The grand jury expect to complete their labors at a late period of the afternoon, but their final report will probably not be ready for presentation to Chief Justice Zane till tomorrow morning.

AN ACTION AGAINST THE CITY.

James Fairclough Presents a Bill for Non-payment of Wages, on a Sudden Dismissal.

The first case tried in Judge Zane's Court this morning was that of James Fairclough vs. Salt Lake City, the plaintiff being represented by Attorney D. N. Straup (from the law office of Powers and Hilton), and the defendants by City Attorney Rigby and Assistant City Attorney Cook. It came to this court on appeal from the judgment of Commissioner Greenman.

The plaintiff was formerly employed as a gardener at Liberty park, under a verbal contract with the city, entered into July 2nd, 1890, the term being, as he says, for one year. He was to be paid $60 per month, and continued in such employment until February 24th, 1891, when he claims he was discharged without any reasonable cause or excuse, and demands the sum of $540, as being what due to him. In the lower court one month's wages were allowed the plaintiff, and the defendant now appealed therefrom.

For the defense it was insisted that the defendant was incompetent, and that the agreement was made under a misapprehension of facts.

The trial was still in progress at 5:30.

In the case of W. A. Clapsons vs. the Salt Lake Pickle Co., leave was given by Judge Zane this afternoon to file notice and motion to dissolve attachment.

The Sugar Directors.

The directors of the Utah Sugar company met yesterday afternoon, but T. R. Cutler, manager of the factory, did not arrive as anticipated, so the meeting adjourned. A telegram was received from Mr. Cutler, stating that he was at Montrose, Colorado, busily engaged in arranging for a beet crop from that section. He will get home some time during the week, and his report will probably be heard by the directors at a meeting next Monday.

AN EXCITING SCENE.

The Bold, Bad Criminal, McDermott, Causes a Big Stir in the County Jail.

One of the most troublesome individuals that has been caged in the county jail for a long time past is the prisoner McDermott, who also has the alias of Connors. He has spent nearly the whole of the last two years either in the city or county jail. As recently as a week ago McDermott was released from the county's quarters, and some hours later was arrested and lodged in the city jail, on burglary at the residence of F. S. Ruch. He is now awaiting the grand jury's action on that charge.

During yesterday he exhibited an extraordinary manner, and penned a letter to his mother, who lives in Scotland, bidding her goodbye. He informed her that he "had plenty of pills in the morning next by, but they were me to jail so much that I cannot get at it." He begged of her not to write him any more, but to consider him dead. McDermott, during the day devoted much of his time to singing hymns and crying.

Last night, about ten o'clock, the prisoner again, after an interval of quiet, burst into melody, and sang very long afterwards. Here came a cry of "Fire!" in which the forty or more inmates of the building immediately joined. When Deputy Sheriff Allright ran in to see what was the matter he encountered volumes of black smoke. The cause was not far to seek. McDermott was discovered in the middle of the cell, in a state of nudity, and as he waved aloft a bundle of burning garments he cried out from the hymn "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," then he would gesticulate wildly. Assistance was soon forthcoming, and while Allright secured the disgruntled man other persons cut off lots of water into the cell and nearly succeeded in extinguishing the flames. McDermott was carried down, turned quietly into his "bed" and went to sleep. His case will be looked into, and then it will be seen whether the prisoner is really labouring in insanity or whether it is an artful dodge.

ORDERS BY JUDGE ZANE.

Sundry Matters Set Off by His Honor at This Morning's Session.

The case of F. J. Campbell vs. Davis et al., was dismissed on motion of plaintiff, without prejudice.

Weir Smith, administrator of the estate of Lil Smith, deceased, Motion to strike out part of complaint argued by Hon. F. S. Richards, submitted and taken under advisement.

Jesse Maggenetti vs. Harvey Hardy et al. Demurrer withdrawn, ten days allowed to answer.

In the case of John Andersen vs. Charles Klausbock et al., judgment was entered by consent for $15 and costs.

COURT NOTES.

In the case of Lorenzo Dahlquist vs. Louisa Pratt et al., a decree quieting title, as prayed, was granted by Judge Zane this morning.

Mr. J. J. Thomas, foreman of the grand jury of the Third district court, and Mr. Samuel Eldredge, clerk of that court, yesterday were presented with a handsome silk umbrella yesterday afternoon, by their fellow jurors, as a token of esteem.

Sheriff McQuinn last evening hacked from the county hallway one Fritz Dorr, aged forty years, a demented German, who had been kept in a cell keeping in the county jail. He was to have an examination by the commissioners in lunacy this afternoon.

In the case of J. L. Clark vs. Mason & Co., Booker merchants of this city, reported in yesterday's NEWS, the jury rate in a verdict for the defendants. Plaintiff was in the company's employ as a carpenter, and while working at a boat saw lost the thumb and forefinger of the left hand. He demanded the modest sum of $5,000 as damages.

In the matter of Marion Ann Combs vs. the Salt Lake & Fort Douglas and Utah Central railway companies et al., trial some days ago, before Judge Zane, judgment in favor of plaintiff for $300 has been entered, and an injunction pending payment of judgment denied. The plaintiff was allowed thirty days to prepare bill of exceptions on appeal from denial of injunction.

W. P. Aldrich, the youthful forger, was taken before Judge Zane, of the probate court, yesterday afternoon, to be examined as to his sanity. Aldrich's father was questioned as to his son's mental condition after which the hearing was postponed until 2 o'clock this afternoon. Mr. Aldrich stated that the boy's penchant for forging checks was seemingly unconstitutional. There had never been any cause of his employing such means to secure money. His forgeries during the past few years amounted to over $1,000. He had promised time and again to desist, but in a few days the forged checks would again turn up and witness had to make them good. Mr. Aldrich also stated that the boy acted rationally at all times, and showed no signs of being insane. Attorney Jones at present under an indictment for check forging.

THAT "KISS CASE."

Dr. Yellowstone Appears for Trial but the Charge Against Him Are Dismissed.

H. F. Yellowstone, the Indian doctor who was arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of drawing and exhibiting a deadly weapon, appeared before Justice Orme for trial today. The case, however, was dismissed on the ground that the "weapon" referred to was a pair of scissors and not a revolver and that no offense was intended to the lady whom, it is said, the doctor unwisely asked to kiss him. Commenting on the incident Dr. Orme well penned the following lines:

"I wish to state that the lady referred to was my wife, and that upon investigation, am quite certain that no insult was meant, and that by mutual consent the doctor has been exonerated by the court. I voluntarily publish this that no injustice may be done Dr. Yellowstone."

ONE OF SIMONDS'S JOKES.

He Makes a Statement, Then Says He Didn't Mean It, but Afterwards Says He Did.

The following is from this morning's Tribune: "Cannelman Simonds was represented in the NEWS last night as saying that he knew the copper recently was to be located in North Salt Lake. Seen by a Tribune reporter last night, the cannelman said he was only joking when he said so."

Seen by a NEWS reporter today Mr. Simonds, smilingly, reaffirmed what he stated on the street yesterday and maintained that the information he gave the NEWS was correct. In the face of these rather informatious statements it appears that the cannelman treats humorist from the Fifth precinct has been joking "the other day."

Italian Waldenses Seeking Homes in the United States.

SNOW SLIDES IN WISCONSIN.

Our Next Minister to France, Delays of Congress Today.

VIENNA, Feb. 28.—A terrible calamity has overtaken the village of Gergely, near Paks, Hungary. Owing to the sudden rise of the Danube, fifteen hundred inhabitants were forced to flee from their dwellings to the church and school. The advancing waters finally compelled them to leave even those refuges or to be drowned in them. When they turned out again the flood surged nearly to their waists. Children and the infirm were seized by the stronger, as they struggled along toward Paks with the waters continually rising. First one mother with her five children gave up, sank and perished in the flood. Others were followed by many others, the number of which is unknown, and the survivors reached Paks in an exhausted, pitiable plight. There is no doubt that the number of the drowned is very large. The people of Paks are deeply concerned for their own safety, as the Danube is steadily just above the normal level.

When the blocks were removed the huge ship slid down the well greased ways, and sped in to her air the waters of the Delaware river and settled in position. Then she was towed back to the wharf, and in about a year will be ready for service and turned over to the government. The vessel was named by Miss Jessie Miller, daughter of the military general.

They are sending agents to North Carolina to make inquiries, looking to a settlement there. If the reports are favorable two thousand of them will emigrate in the spring. They are a hardy, thrifty people, retaining to a remarkable degree the virtues of their ancestors.

Joseph Mace, a brother of the dead girl, testified that he was with his sister on the day she died. A short time before she expired she said: "Now, Maggie, tell the truth." She said Florence Dixon was at the office of the girl's aunt, furnished money for medicine to open her. The jury's verdict was to the effect that Miss Sherman died from accidental swelling from a criminal operation performed by Sarah B. Chase and E. F. Dupont, and that Florence F. Dixon is accessory before the fact. Dixon is a well-to-do arbitration commissioner of New York.
