First District Court.

Business was transacted in the First district court as follows:

Henry Shaeffer, an aged German, was found guilty of horse stealing. The jury recommended him to the mercy of the court. He was sentenced to one year in the penitentiary. In the case of N. H. Smith vs National Bank of Commerce and Elmer B. Jones, in which defendants are charged with collecting for plaintiff $9,000 and failing to turn over the amount, a special demurrer to the complaint on the ground of ambiguity, was overruled, and the time to answer complaint was extended until March 15th to answer.

Notes.

Washington's birthday was honored in a quiet, unostentatious way in the Garden city. The G. A. R. veterans held services in the Methodist church in the evening, and an entertainment was given by the "King's Daughters" at the Baptist church. A Primary conference was held at the Tabernacle. The schools and principal business were closed during the day.

A dozen of Provo's people had intended attending the Legislative ball at Salt Lake, but their minds were altered by the snowstorm which blockaded the train at the point of the mountain. They went to Lehi and then returned home.

A letter from B. Cluff, Jr., at Ann Arbor to David John of this city, conveys the intelligence that the professor has passed his examination, and in June next will receive a master's degree.
