ON A BRIEF VISIT.

Lieutenant Colonel John G. Coburn, who is in the city on a few days' leave of absence from his regiment, stationed at Chickamauga, called in today and with leave of representatives of the newspapers of the regiment as well as of the patriotic men with whom he is associated, Colonel Tarrey, he says, is a Western gentleman, enthusiastic patriotic and popular among his men.

The Utah boys are all well. They are recognized as equal in every respect to the representatives of other states both in physique and in morale. Of the disposition of the regiment, or what services will be required of it in the war now raging in Cuba, at present, but everybody is confident that in actual service it will render a splendid account of itself.

Colonel John G. Coburn came to the city to attend to matters of business and to see relatives and friends. He leaves again for his post of duty to morrow (Tuesday) evening. Congratulations and good wishes of hundreds of sincere friends go with him.

AMERICAN CIVILIZATION PREVAILS

Spain is indebted to the United States for proclamations issued by the chiefs of the insurgents, both in the West Indies and Philippine islands, to the effect that the warfare must be carried on according to the principles recognized by the civilization of this country. General Gomez has told his army that severe penalties await those who violate the rules of civilized warfare and Aguinaldo, in the same spirit, has forbidden the bolo under his command to commit acts of cruelty far beyond those necessary in combat. He says the lives and property of foreigners, including Chinese and Spanish non-combatants, must be respected and protected, and that prisoners of war must be treated humanely. He warns his troops against unarmed hospitals and persons engaged in the work of relief for the wounded.

If the insurgents will act upon these instructions the hostilities will no longer be characterized with the barbarism of which both parties hitherto appear to have been guilty. And the intervention of the United States in the cause of this change. The insurgent chiefs understand that this country is waging a war in the interest of humanity and that it can afford to have no allies but such as respect the rights of others. Here this is a big step in advance, and experience shows that war proceeds more rapidly in this country, it is a question whether the money is not will spent, if thereby what threatened to become a war of extermination is never until has been changed into a contest on more humane lines. It has already prevented the outbreak of massacres of prisoners and scenes of bloodshed as a consequence of victorious war.

The influence of the United States on the sides for whom the war is waged may be regarded as a proof that they are well adapted for the benefits of civilization, and it indicates that under proper guidance their future may be even a bright one. The war will not be in vain, if it releases millions of human beings from the bondage or uncivilized conditions and opens to them the avenues through which liberty and happiness are obtained.

LATEST FROM THE FRONT.

It comes from the Republican church and say up to date, Cuba, there seem overwhelmingly that there has been no engagement between the United States of the United States and some Spanish guerillas near Guantanamo, some fifty miles east of Santiago de Cuba. The fighting, according to these accounts, took place between a very numerous force of Spaniards, as compared with guerillas as they are, and the United States, as it appeared to be that our forces did not win altogether, even if they failed to get the worst of it. Several men were killed and presumably a corresponding number wounded on the American side, while no mention has yet been made of the casualties on the Spanish side. The Spaniards, on the contrary, it is said, claimed that the Americans had lost one of their officers. It seems, however, that the latter succeeded in carrying various positions, leaving nothing but bloody pools and ruins, and, as we said, dead and injured were not present when our forces took possession, of course not even an estimate of the enemy's casualties can be made. The Spanish dispatches modify the accounts so far received, very much, it can be set down as fairly true, a sharp and at times desperate battle occurred without having been foreseen as to any practical result. It is the kind of thing that must be looked for on Cuban soil and the Americans are to be congratulated on their prowess in fighting, which experience of a different character may be counted on.

In line with this latter statement comes a dispatch directly from headquarters at Washington announcing that General Shafter and some 5,000 men had entered at early dawn this morning and were on their way to Caimanera, [illegible] made too soon, as must be evident to anyone who have passed as to the way things are going. Undoubtedly troops in good standing and with sufficient equipment will be marched this, a case that do not to broken. All the men that have so far been landed in Cuba from the United States and all that can be landed within a few days and to not to any great extent be a sufficient force considering them or the rate of at least four to one, if the latter reckon wind of it is Cuba, and what the Americans expect for a while to encounter pills and hold their own, if nothing better, it is only the part of wisdom not to jump the fence too fast.

This all brings to mind once more the expression previously made in these columns that the government is moving with more caution than some people gave it credit for. Its rule not to give out intended movements has only those which have been communicated in a most wise and timely way, as otherwise the Spanish could keep posted as to what is going on against them without having to resort to such endeavor as you are great enough to name their privateers, [illegible] which is permitted to pass through the lines and reach them with its dispatches here than goods that count the time they effect is considerable of force at any point with the exception of taking and holding it. They will find themselves a day or so [illegible] the "Yankee pigs" are there ahead of them and they must fight apparently rather than decline. It is all, [illegible] the question of the time and place, and it goes to show that the government is confident at that a large force had just started for Cuba, the landing place of which is already known, and thereby enable the Spanish to move their forces in that particular possible. So, the chances are that, as previously stated, the Spanish will be [illegible] the past and the troops are now so near the place of disembarkation that it matters not how much the enemy may know of it.

A dispatch just received states that it is considerably doubted Madrid that any Americans have landed. This adds to a certain comfort from the most discouraging circumstance is one that seems to of numerous calls to the dons just now.

CURE FOR CONSUMPTION.

If Dr. J. D. Murphy of Chicago, as claimed, has succeeded in discovering a cure, cure for consumption, he has conferred a great benefit on mankind, modern medicine, for himself immortal fame. At the annual meeting of the American Medical association at Denver he read an address embodying the results of his investigations and experiments.

Dr. Murphy's theory is that if the diseased lung can be relieved of the respiratory exercise for a sufficient length of time nature will heal the ulcer affected. He thinks that the sole work in the cavities and in the tissue of the lung while in constant motion, as in breathing, are prevented from healing by constant irritation. The tubercular sore will heal if left alone and not continually opened to irritation. He claims to cure in twelve, this start of, [illegible] by injecting into the pleural cavity with simple nitrous gas, which has no effect on the tissues and will not be absorbed. The action of nitrous compresses the lung and gives it entire rest, while the outside of tuberculous lesions is sterilized and a new tissue begins to round it. While this reparative process is going on life is easily sustained by respiration through the other lung, which, if diseased, may be treated in the same manner until fully cured.

What makes this discovery, if it proves effective, all the more valuable is the fact that the discoveries not compared it will be an era of mystery, but gives a hope to the profession and the public to come that in years may be [illegible] Consumption to take statistics on the subject of lung disease. It is stated that the States of consumption in the United States are about 10,000 a year. Any remedy that claims to conquer this cause certainly deserves attention.

CARLISM IN SPAIN.

If the news, as reported, again has offered his services as mediator in the war between the United States and Spain, the news report would do well to accept the offer without much delay. For there are indications that trouble at home will follow the war—trouble of such a nature as to endanger the throne itself. Carlism is not dead, it seems, on the contrary, it is only waiting for an opportune moment to assert itself with more vigor than ever.

From Madrid comes the story that Don Carlos has been notified to retire [illegible] and Don Carlos is [illegible] Spain, and who is one of the principal leaders. One report says Don Carlos has made an offer to act as mediator between Spain and the United States and the Pope is to accept the hands for the enterprise more exciting. Don Carlos entertaining the same sentiment that has [illegible] to many other Bourbon princes, does it naturally excited from their own fortunes in the promotion of Carlist aims. The Count of Paris, it may be remembered, permitted the Bourbon Duchess of Orleans advance $100,000 to wind the royalist cause when Dewey destroyed Spanish power, and has never received a penny in return. Lord Rosebery purchased one of the most valuable collection of books and manuscripts in the world. He has not yet paid those treasures, which have been in his hands for months, upon the ground that Lord Rosebery's [illegible] made that [illegible], which he has declared to be the cause of his friend, Don Carlos, Lord Ambrosden is now at Brussels with Don Carlos, making, it is asserted, all arrangements for a rising in the northern provinces of the Kingdom, in Lent, about the moment that Don Alfonso's hours of the throne is weakened by any further disaster to the Spanish arms, either in the West Indies or in the far Orient.

This story, if based on facts, shows that the Spanish government would do well to conclude peace even with the [illegible] Fortune would after all be small, as compared to a civil war at home with the ultimate overthrow of the reigning dynasty.

DISCUSSING A NAME.

The so-called Disciples of Christ are sounding to an exchange, engaged in a curious discussion about the name of their denomination. Some members call themselves Disciples of Christ, but other members object to it, and say they are simply Christians. The other party replies that that is not a distinctive title, that all followers of Christ are Christians. The retort is that all followers of Christ are also His disciples, and that even if the popular name be omitted it should be kept with a small "c." To this the principal newspaper organ of the denomination replies that there seem may be, possibly in the same town, "the Little Ki' church" and "the Big 'c' church." The controversy is an odd one, but was given a serious turn by breaking out by the proposition of another small sect calling itself the "Christian Connection," to amalgamate with Congregationalists. Some of the committee for the first named, which has a membership of about 100, [illegible] suggested that Congregationalists, who number 600,000, adopt their name. The two denominations agree in doctrine, but are not likely to come together solely because they cannot agree upon a name to call themselves. The discussion about a name has started up anew in the large denomination, Disciples of Christ, where there has never been entire harmony in practice ever a common designation.

RUSSIAN RECOGNITION.

Russia has done a little thing of vastly more importance to us than appears on the surface. That country is, as is well known, engaged in sending troops to Port Arthur from Odessa. The route is past the Philippine islands and the ships might possibly find a convenient to land at Manila. The Russian government, instead of applying to the Spanish consul at Odessa for the necessary papers, asked the American consul there for the certificate needed to enter an American port, and as this was done by the Russian government and not by private parties, it is clear that Russia officially recognizes that the Philippines are to all intents and purposes an American and not a Spanish possession, or, at least that the capital of those islands is held by the United States.

Russia is by a position to do little things of that kind without consulting other powers, and her initiative will undoubtedly have influence and facilitate a final settlement of the pending trouble.

Philosophers have written on the probable effect of the boycott inaugurated by American women on French dressmakers and milliners. Mme. Faure, the wife of the French president, leads at the head of the ways she admires American women, and that many of them are well educated, witty and refined, but that fondness for dress is their weakness, and they will continue to patronize Paris, regardless of any boycott.

The opening of Saltair for the season has taken place under favorable auspices. That popular health resort should be well patronized by the people. Summer is here in earnest and everybody is longing for the refreshing breezes from the lake.
