NEWS OF THE WEST.

An Immense Arrowhead Found Near San Bernardino.

A MODERN MAZEPPA FOUND.

Ran Away from Home—Cattle Thief Arrested—Monster Fossils, Etc.

Wallace (Idaho) Miner: On Sunday evening John Ecklund, a miner, was brutally beaten and robbed and run out of town by members of the miners' union and their sympathizers. When he arrived in Wallace he was taken to the Holland hospital, where Dr. Sims dressed his injuries.

The Tempe, Ariz., News relates that a modern Mazeppa was found a day or two since in the mountains of Washington state. It is charged that Indians tied a 12-year-old girl to a cayuse and turned the animal free. A number of white men are in search of the suspected Indians, who, if found, will without doubt be turned into good Indians.

Last Saturday night, says the Los Angeles Express, Beatrice Moorer, the daughter of L. Moorer, just 17 years old, disappeared from her home and her parents are very much broken up about it. She had been receiving attentions from a young man and meeting him on the street against her father's wishes, and is supposed to have run away with him.

The office at Butte, Cassia county, has been discontinued. The mail will hereafter be taken to Three Creek. The star service from Three Creek to Butte has been discontinued. In the star service from Bliss to Briggs the mail will hereafter leave Bliss Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 7 a.m.; leave Hagerman the same days at 2 p.m.; leave Bliss Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at 7 a.m., and leave Briggs the same days at 3 p.m. The commission of Rose Burke as postmistress at Shoshone has been signed.

It is alleged that Meyes and Vanderkarr, with their accomplices, have stolen over 3,000 head of cattle in the last three years in Antelope Valley, Cal., the value of the stock amounting to nearly $60,000. Mace Meyes has been arrested and placed in the custody of the sheriff by Judge McKinley, as the fight between the law-abiding citizens and the band of cattle thieves in Antelope Valley is growing so hot and strong that it was deemed no longer safe to leave the alleged ringleader at large with only a bond to prevent his fleeing to the mountains.

Baker City (Ore.) Democrat: Mr. John Southwell brought some fossils to town this morning, says The Dalles Mountaineer, that are monsters. The specimens were found in a bank of blue clay on his place on Ten Mile creek about two months ago. The creek had cut through the clay bank and the bones were exposed at a depth of about 8 feet. One of the specimens was a horn 5 inches across the base, about a foot long and slightly curved. The other was a hip bone, showing the joint and about 18 inches of the bone. It had been broken in getting it out, but was glued together. The joint measured a foot across. Mr. Southwell says he has the ankle bones, which are in a much better state of preservation, at home, and that when spring comes and the ground gets softened, he will dig out the balance of the skeleton.

A dispatch from San Bernardino to the San Francisco Chronicle says a relic of the stone age was discovered near this city yesterday. It is an immense arrowhead made of stone. It measures four feet four inches in length and its weight is over 200 pounds. Whether the arrowhead is simply a work of art or an object of worship or a copy of the immense arrowhead which nature formed on the mountain side above where the discovery was made, can only be conjectured. The arrowhead is of bluish granite and shaped as are those smaller ones which are found in various parts of the country, but its weight indicates that it could never have been used as a weapon. Its edges are regular and its base smoothed by the torrents which come rushing down City creek canyon every winter. Workmen were engaged in blasting bowlders in the canyon and made the discovery. Later the arrowhead was taken to East Highlands, where it has been placed on exhibition. The theory that it may have been a copy of the arrowhead on the mountain seems plausible. There overhanging the site of the burned Arrowhead hotel is an arrowhead many feet in length and visible for many miles. This was probably an attempt to copy it by some prehistoric sculptor.

His Account With His Dentist.

Brown has the reputation of being one of the most miserly of men, but he plumes himself on his incorruptible sense of justice. For 15 years he owed a dentist $22 for filling a front tooth with gold, refusing to pay it because he said the bill was exorbitant. The other day the filling came out. He took the gold to a jewelry store and had it valued. Then he wrote to the dentist and inclosed a check for his account, based on the following computation: "Actual value of the gold, $2.50; amount of labor (which I deem liberal), $5; for use of the tooth 15 years, $5; total, $12.50. I retain gold on account and inclose check for the balance, $10."—Washington Post.

Her Choice.

A woman who has traveled largely in Japan mentioned in the course of a lecture the fact that the Japanese language does not contain an impolite word; hence there is no swearing in that happy land. She also stated that osculation was an unknown pleasure. As the audience dispersed, commenting favorably upon different points, an old woman remarked in a voice loud enough to be heard by all, "Well, for my part, I prefer a country where they kiss and swear!"—Atlanta Constitution.

The Diamond.

None can tell where the diamond goes in combustion. Burn it, and it leaves no ash, the flame is exterior like that of a cork, and when it has blazed itself out there remains not even so much as would dust the antennae of a butterfly.

At Gibraltar, during the most famous of its sieges, the French commander, learning that Elliot's men were suffering from scurvy, sent them as a present a hundred of citrons.
