Thomas Borlase asked for the transfer of the unexpired term of his liquor and pool table license at the Morgan Hotel, to J. H. Clark. Committee on license.

City Recorder Jack reported the events of publication of water main extension notices Nos. 121 and 122. Received and filed.

WANTS TO TRADE HORSES.

W. A. Stanton, chief of the fire department reported that he had sold the old hand engine for $125 and asked that sum be appropriated to the department for the purpose of trading and buying horses. Referred to the committee on fire department.

DOG TAX REFUNDED.

Dog Tax Collector Joseph Silver reported that he had collected $240 on canines assessments for the month ending November 30th. Received and filed, and $40 the amount appropriated to Silver.

SEWER EXTENSION.

Recorder Jack reported that the notice of intention for the extension of sewer mains of South Temple from State to midway between I and J streets in sewer district No. 1 had been published in accordance with law. Received and filed.

PRIVATE PATROL SYSTEM.

The committee on police, to which was referred the petition of E. A. Franks for appointment as special officer, be granted; also that the following be appointed special officers without pay from the city, Benjamin Johnson, John H. Hardman, A. W. Harvey, and J. H. Rosen, and that they furnish the recorder a description of the districts which they patrol. Adopted.

THE COMPANY ORDERS.

The city engineer reported that in the matter of crosswalk pavements to be laid by the Salt Lake City Railway Company, he had been informed by Superintendent Reed that there is no obligation on the part of his company to pave more than four of the seven feet between tracks and that he objects to doing the work. Referred to the city attorney.

STATE STREET RETAINING WALLS.

The same officer reported that in the matter of the retaining walls to be constructed on State street, under a resolution passed by the Council on November 24th, he had been requested by Mrs. Kings to carry the wall to a height of two feet above the sidewalk grade and to provide stone steps in front of her property. Referred back to the special committee.

CITY CREEK CULVERT.

The same officer reported that in accordance with a resolution recently passed by the City Council he had advertised for bids for the construction of a masonry culvert for City Creek, near the intersection of State and North Temple streets, and received the following bids:

Mountain Stone company	$2,750 00
William A. Fetzer	2,000 00
R. N. Stimpson	3,000 00

He stated that he had prepared a form of contract with the Mountain Stone company, its bid being the lowest, and asked that it be approved. Referred to the Mayor and city engineer with power to act.

NATURAL GAS.

The American Natural Gas company represented that it had several flowing wells of gas on its grounds in Davis county, twelve miles north of Salt Lake; that the company had since its organization expended $50,000 in the purchase of lands, machinery, etc., and had sufficient capital to sink other wells and conduct gas by mains to this city and distribute the same for mechanical and domestic uses. The petitioner therefore asked for a franchise granting the company the right of way to construct gas mains through the streets of this city, for the purpose of supplying gas for heat, fuel and motive power. A franchise for illuminating purposes was not asked for. In asking for the franchise, the company offered to furnish gas to private consumers at a cost of $1 1-2 per cent. less than the present cost of coal, and to municipal and county buildings less than 50 per cent. of such cost, and would guarantee to the city a supply of natural gas sufficient for all present or future requirements. In making this offer the company had in mind the almost certain stimulus to the city's growth which such an enterprise as this insured, and which had promoted a growth in population equal to 100 per cent. in three years in the gas fields of the East.

In view of the enormous cost of developing the plant, laying seventy-five miles or more of mains, etc., and the stimulation to all industries in the city which this enterprise insured, Mr. Whitmer confidently considered the company entitled to the franchise asked. Committee on improvements.

HACKMEN'S ORDINANCE.

SALOON LICENSE DENIED.

The petition of Greenhalgh and Livingstone for a liquor license at 379 State street, was refused on Councilman Young producing a map which showed that the saloon was within fifteen rods of a school building while the ordinance recently passed prohibits the council from granting a franchise to a saloon within twenty rods.

The vote was as follows:

Ayes—Karrick, Spafford, Heath and Pendleton—4.

Noes—Young, Toddenham, Folland, Hyde and Hardy—5.

FOR THE PREVENTION OF FIRES.

An ordinance for the prevention and extinguishment of fires, introduced in June last, came up and was referred to the committee on fire department.

ILLEGALLY PASSED.

City Attorney Hall sent in the following written opinion:

Gentlemen—In answer to the inquiry made by your honorable Mayor "Was the action of the City Council in passing what was entitled 'An Ordinance Abolishing the Office of Captain of Police' on the 19th of June?" I have to say that I have not been able to find a precedent for the manner of procedure adopted.

The usual rule is, that when a vote has been taken, the presiding officer must then declare the result. I do not know of any rule by which, if the presiding officer has a vote and fails to cast it, the result of the vote could be withheld and carried over to another meeting, and be then be permitted to vote and announce the result of the vote.

My conclusion is that when a vote is taken upon the passage of an ordinance, and it requires the vote of the presiding officer (the Mayor or Acting Mayor) and he does not vote or then declare the result of the vote, the question could not be carried over to another meeting to enable such presiding officer to make up his mind as to how he would vote, if at all.

If such a rule should be adopted as in the presiding officer, it would be in any member of the Council, and it would be a very dangerous precedent to adopt. Therefore, the so-called ordinance, in my opinion, was not legally passed and is of no binding force.

Mayor Scott—I believe that opinion is correct, and I therefore hold that the ordinance creating the office of police captain has not been abolished, and that there is a vacancy in the office caused by the death of Captain Parker. Accordingly, I shall make the following appointments, which were unanimously arrived at before the police committee:

Gentlemen of the Council,—I recommend the following appointments be made: Edgar M. Janney, captain of police, vice William D. Parker, deceased, and Theodore J. D. Brown to be police sergeant, vice E. M. Janney, promoted to the captaincy. GEORGE M. SCOTT, Mayor.

Adopted.

The Mayor then appointed Chas. W. Milner to the position made vacant by the promotion of Patrolman Brown. Confirmed.

APPROPRIATIONS.

The following appropriations were made:

Mountain Stone company	[illegible]
Daughters & Griffith	[illegible]
Jos. Scott	[illegible]

"Yon Yonson."

Editor Deseret News:—

Seeing that the Salt Lake Herald theatre critic treats the performance of this harmless little farce with rather unjust severity, I would like to say that in my opinion at least three lessons were conveyed to the public by the genial Swede. The first is that manliness, gallantry, honesty and a brave spirit can be found under a rough surface. The second is, that true ladies recognize and prefer these virtues in a policeman, whatever his personality and dimensions dwell. And the third is that it is possible to amuse the public without bringing up on the stage battalions of the lowest types of criminals that ever disgraced humanity, and without having recourse to outcomes for which modesty and virtue must blush. That the Scandinavians of this community appreciated a play of this kind ought not to be counted against them by the Herald's critic, nor by anybody else. J. M. S.

SPLENDID PENURY IN BELGRAVIA.

MR. LABOUCHERE MAKES SOME INQUIRIES ABOUT LONDON'S PAUPER MILLIONAIRES.

(London Truth.)

We have all grieved over Lazarus, but few among us have ever yet wept for Dives. The "Bitter City of Outcast London" affected many, but who has considered the "Bitter City of Prosperous Belgravia?" If plain poverty is distressing, how far more appalling is splendid penury! The cruel problem of "How the Poor Live" is as nothing when compared to that of "How do the Rich Live?"

Appointing myself special commissioner, I started last week upon a round of inquiry, and I now proceed to report to you some of the typical cases that have been brought under my notice.

The Duke of X—— occupies a pretentious mansion in the neighborhood of Belgrave square, the family consisting of himself, his duchess, four sons and three daughters, with a joint income which need to be roughly estimated at $40,000 a year. From this no per cent. must, however, be deducted for depreciation of rent; the absolutely necessary expenditure connected with the property, defaults and arrears, rates, taxes and tithes. Changes upon the estate, jointures, interest on mortgages and insurance premiums only absorb the entire remaining balance, but together leave an annual deficit amounting to close upon £3000. The result is therefore both a millionaire and a bankrupt. On seeking admittance the door was opened to me by three liveried servants, a prosperous-looking under-butler conducting me to the duchess' presence, while I observed on every side the tangible evidences of opulence and appropriate luxury.

"We are compelled," Her Grace explained in the course of the interview, "to keep up appearances. Our purpose and only hope is to marry the girls to wealthy bankrupts, and through our influence and interest to procure, if possible, lucrative employment for the boys. Were we to break up the establishment and retire to a semi-detached villa somewhere in the suburbs, the world, of course, would be informed, and nothing then but absolute ruin would await us. Meanwhile, my servants live at the rate of £40,000 a year, while we ourselves have to endure the innermost tortures of abject poverty. We are compelled to live on expensive food in order outwardly to attain independence, and, while practically unable to afford a crust of bread for our own consumption, we are forced to provide 84 champagne and all the latest luxuries for the gratification of our numerous friends and acquaintances. To compare such poverty with the indigence of the merely destitute is utter nonsense. We are the pauper inmates of a golden workhouse, surrounded by all the pomp and pageantry, and suffering all the pangs of penury! Slaves in an ivory galley chained to a jewelled oar!"

Mr. and Mrs. Y. Z. having no resources whatever of their own, but being both equally disposed to live luxuriously at the expense of their neighbors, established themselves in an attractive 60-per residence in the vicinity of Hans place. Mr. Y. Z. is an intuitive "something in the city," and his pretty wife is considerably in evidence in the west end. Having no private income of any sort, were they to retire to the seclusion of Peckham, Brixton or Camberwell they could scarcely, of course, continue to subsist for even a week. Instead Mrs. Y. Z.'s opulent friends support the average dinity, while the occasional commercial transactions of Y. Z. with others constitute indirectly toward its further maintenance. Each day almost brings its individual burden of annoyance—importuning letters, county court summonses, writs, bailiffs and attachment orders. Any single miscalculation might accomplish their ruin, and the Y. Z.'s perpetually live on the summit of an ever-threatening financial and social volcano.

Here then, is an outline sketch of the "Bitter City of Prosperous Belgravia," and in view of the approaching winter, the continued financial depression and the prevailing distress, I purpose at once devoting a fund for the relief of the pauper millionaires of the Westend.

A Georgia Mule Mine.

(Atlanta (Ga.) Times.)

Squire Spangler has just discovered an extensive lump mule mine on his farm near here. The Squire was hoeing down by the creek near where an old Indian mine was worked for mules, and he was attracted by a sound resembling the bray of a mule coming from a little cave in the bank of the stream. The Squire commenced a search and soon discovered the ears of a mule protruding above the soft earth near the water. Work was at once commenced and several fine specimens were unearthed. The Squire's son-in-law started with one fine specimen to a mineralogist to have it assayed, but it kicked and jumped with him, and, after sending him off on a voyage of discovery toward the planet Saturn, went on a grazing spree in the adjacent corn lot. It is believed that the mine will prove very profitable, and fodder and corn have advanced to $50 per front foot.
