EVENING NEWS.

Wednesday, July 12, 1882.

CITY COUNCIL.

Proceedings of the City Council on Tuesday evening, July 11th, 1882, Mayor Jennings presiding:

Application for liquor license from Binnis & Schanfele, Commercial street, for three months from July 10th, 1882, was submitted. Granted.

Clint Hammer petitioned to be allowed to retain the right to run his whirligig on Liberty Park, during the time intervening between now and July 24th, and also on that day. Referred to the Mayor.

The report of the police court for the month ending June 30th, was submitted, signed by Alderman Speirs, showing that 130 cases had been tried and 10 dismissed. Cash fines for month $1,585, collections on back fines $17; total cash paid treasury $1,582; labor fines $711.15. Total of cash and labor for month $2,293.15. Approved.

The committee on streets and alleys, to whom was referred the petition of Mrs. Jorgensen for a bridge across the canal on Sixth South between Fourth and Fifth West streets; reported that they had visited the locality, examined into the matter and found five bridges across said canal in a distance of half a block, three of which were seldom used. The committee were of opinion that three bridges, the two at the corners and one in the centre of the block, were sufficient to accommodate the residents of that vicinity at present, provided they move their fences to the line of their lots, and it was further recommended that the Marshal be instructed to cause said fences to be moved to their proper places. Adopted.

The committee on streets and alleys, to whom was referred the petition of W. J. Lewis, and 15 others, asking repairs to a portion of South Temple Street, reported that improvements on said street were much needed, especially in wet portions of the year, and that repairs, as stated in the petition, had been repeatedly promised in the course of business which, owing to the great amount of labor in the hands of the supervisor, might perhaps not arrive for some length of time. The committee recommended that the Utah & Nevada Railway Company be required either to lower its track or grade up each side of the street in the locality complained of during the coming fall season. Adopted.

The committee on municipal laws in accordance with instructions, reported a bill for an ordinance in relation to water works, which was received and laid over to come up in its order.

Councilor Riter made a verbal report in behalf of the Mayor and himself, constituting a majority of the committee to whom was referred the subject of examining into the financial status of the city and making a recommendation as to what, in their judgment, should be the rate per cent. of taxation for the current year, said that from a statement which he had obtained of the condition of the city he learned that at the present time there was a floating indebtedness of about $80,000, and that now, while times were prosperous, was the proper time to get rid of a portion of this debt, which could only be done by an increase of the taxes. That Salt Lake was a growing city, that her improvements should go on, that it would take money to continue them and that the present rate of taxation was entirely too small. The majority of the committee therefore recommended that the rate of taxation for the current year be fixed at 7½ mills on the dollar.

Councilor Clark, representing the minority of the committee to whom the subject of rate per cent of taxation was referred, also made a verble report, in which he stated that he had made an approximate estimate of the receipts and disbursements of the corporation for the current year based upon the average of former years, and the known resources and liabilities of the city at present, in which it was shown that the probable receipts of the city would be for 1882, about $141,000, and the probable expenditures, $109,000, leaving a surplus of $32,000 for contingencies of any nature which might arise, which he considered ample. With these facts before him Councilor Clark stated that he could not consistently vote to increase the tax, and therefore made a minority report, recommending that the rate per cent. remain at five mills on the dollar.

After discussion, the report of the minority was accepted, and the rate per cent. of taxation for the year 1882, was fixed at half of one per cent., the same as formerly.

The committee on public grounds reported in relation to the petition of George Partington for permission to erect a dwelling house on unoccupied city lands in plat E, that it would not, in their opinion, be to the public interest nor materially benefit the petitioner to grant the request and therefore recommended that the petition be not granted. Adopted.

The following bills were submitted and allowed viz.: Marshals expense bills for June $420.49; Adam Speirs, for services as police justice of the city for the month ending June 13th $125; Salt Lake City Gas Company for lighting, extinguishing and keeping in repair 221 street lamps for the month of June, $920.63, gas to city buildings for June, $50.05—total gas bill $970.88; Andrew Burt, jailor, for boarding city prisoners for June 2.359 meals at 15c., $352.85.

A bill of $14 for guarding canal in Fifth Ward, was presented and referred to the Mayor with the request to confer with the authorities of Salt Lake County.

Appropriations were made in the sums of $10,101.46, for the payment of principal and interest of a corporate note, matured July 6th, to Zion's Savings Bank; $1,000 to the water works contingent fund; and $1,000 to street improvement account.

On motion of Alderman Raleigh instructions were given to certain committees and officers of the city to report to the Council concerning subjects referred to them.

The ordinance in relation to water works, reported by the committee on municipal laws came up for consideration, but action thereon was deferred till the next meeting of the Council.

The Mayor stated that he had just received the information that the waters of Jordan River, running through the Jordan and Salt Lake City Canal, were emptying into City Creek, and added that if any of the members desired to witness the out flow, he would be pleased to accompany them to the point where the waters spill into City Creek.

Adjourned till Wednesday, July 12th, 1882.

A Murderer's Warning.

EXTRAORDINARY BIOGRAPHY OF A CONDEMNED BRITISH RUFFIAN.

The English papers publish a long and curious statement made by one Thomas Fury, alias Wright, alias Cart, After being found guilty at Durham assizes of the willful murder of a woman of ill-fame, named Maria Fitzsimmons, at Sunderland, in 1869. He was sentenced to 15 years penal servitude for robbery and attempted murder in Norwich, in 1879, he voluntarily made a confession of the murder of Maria Fitzsimmons. He was put on his trial and found guilty. Fury manifested the keenest desire to be convicted, and received the sentence of death with the utmost satisfaction. His autobiographical statement is a psychological curiosity and not without public interest as a contribution to the study of "crime causes." The following extracts give the main part of his history. He says:

"Although my past career, both as a thief and a liar, would not, under ordinary circumstances, entitle me to receive any credit in regard to my statements, yet, as now I stand before you for the last time as a dying, or rather a dead man, I beg your attention to the few words I now address to you—not for my own benefit, but for your own. Every cause must have an effect, and every effect an antecedent cause, or series of causes. I stand before you now as the resultant of the forces of persuasion, example and compulsion; and Maria Fitzsimmons, whom I murdered 13 years ago, was another of those terrific results. The injustice of the land laws in Ireland caused my relatives to join the Ribbonmen, and leave their country, and then induced my mother to come to England to meet my father. Perhaps crime is hereditary in my case—another fact to strengthen Darwin's and Huxley's theories. I do not know nor have I heard of but one member on either side of our family that was not strongly addicted to drinking. My father was a drunkard—my mother was forced to become one—held down by her nearest relatives while they poured rum down her throat until she promised to be sociable. As regards myself, I know that I was raving drunk before I was eight years of age. One of the reasons for giving myself up is to get rid of that craving for drink for which, in my case at least, extinction is the only cure. I shall be quite reconciled to die a shameful and dishonorable death—in fact feel happy—if by my fearful doom some, a few at least, may be warned by the dreadful example I have become to avoid that habit while they have yet strength to resist it.

"I was early initiated into the accursed habit, and it was more fully developed during four years spent among seamen, who seemed to think it the summum bonum of human life. After this, it was my fate to spend more than four years in prison. Upon my discharge, and obtaining another ship, I determined not to drink. Upon the mate offering me my share of the beer, I civilly declined it, receiving a storm of abuse in return, accompanied with an order to leave the ship and go ashore if I did not like to drink. Thirty miles from home, without a penny in my pocket, what was I to do? I saw the good, the evil I had to follow. I drank the beer, was praised for being a man, and the result therefrom, as if human blood had been given to a tame tiger, was, that drink was all that I lived for; for this only did I work; for it I neglected my duty to myself, my mother and my employers; for it I again became a thief by using money entrusted to me by shipmates; for, by and through it I now stand before you as the murderer of a woman.

"It would only be a waste of time to detail all the other crimes I have been guilty of since February, 1869, while under the influence of drink; mostly crimes of violence. One of the effects of drink upon me is an irresistible desire to do injury, even though they may have given me no provocation. Once I threatened my mother with a knife, shame being the only cause of not executing the threat. I have been in prison more than thirteen years, extending over a period of eighteen years. During that time I have spoken to many hundreds of prisoners, and only met one who had been an abstainer previous to his conviction. And if any of you have the slightest feeling of pity or commiseration for that poor unfortunate woman whom I killed in my stupid, mad, drunken fury, and for others—not only of her class, but of every other class—let me beg of you who call yourselves Englishmen to try, by will, word, act and influence, to banish those habits, tastes and customs which are the sources of so much misery, vice and crime.

"Upon my return from China in 1863 I was reduced to a state of the most extreme poverty; I fell in with some habitual criminals, who, perceiving my necessities and inexperience, easily persuaded me to join them. With them I was concerned in several burglaries, each of which was marked out previously by a man in the employ of an officer in the police, commonly called a 'putter-up' and a 'nark.' This man induced me to bring part of the proceeds of one of the burglaries upon me into —— district. When the officer apprehended me, by threats of imprisonment and promises of obtaining employment for me that I might live honestly, he induced me to entice my companions, with their tools upon them, into his district, where they were apprehended. He did not fulfill his promises to me, but gave me every inducement to draw other criminals into his district in order to profit by their crimes. I avoided them and tried to obtain work, but unsuccessfully, and at last took to burglary on my own account. Being at last detected, and sentenced to penal servitude, when my time expired, to avoid the police, I again went to sea, and thus I was led to Sunderland, to meet and murder Maria Fitzsimmons."

R. H. Cameron, 23 Park Row, New York City, Publisher of Business Directory, of Merchants in Mexico, Cuba, Porto Rico, W. I., says: "I, myself, have suffered a great deal from rheumatic gout, and about six months ago, was induced by a friend to try St. Jacobs Oil. I used two bottles and haven't had a twinge since; previous to that I have generally had an attack about once a month.
