DESERET EVENING NEWS.

Monday, July 20, 1896.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

Elders Bert and Wells, President Snow and Elder Stone spoke at the Tabernacle.

President Angus M. Cannon was the presiding officer at the Tabernacle services held yesterday afternoon.

Choir sang:

Glory to God on high,
Let heaven and earth cry,
Praise to His name.

Prayer was offered by Elder Elias Morris.

Choir further sang:

To angels shall who dare
Tie from the path of sense.

Elder Edgar Best, who recently returned from the New Zealand mission, was the first speaker. In commencing he asked an interest in the faith and prayers of the brethren and sisters, because he realized that in and of himself he was not able to address such an intelligent congregation unless assisted by that Spirit. In preaching the Gospel to the nations of the earth, the Elders in general found it a great task—more especially so in lands where a new language had to be acquired. His experience among the Maoris was attended with much joy and he had found that the people in that part of the earth, were well versed in the Scriptures, in fact more so than some of the Elders were upon their arrival in the mission field. Elder Best felt that this was a great work in which the Latter-day Saints were engaged and he felt to urge all to faithfulness that they might consistently be able to ask God's blessing upon them. In conclusion he bore his testimony in the native tongue and asked God to bless all present.

Elder Samuel H. Wells of St. George whirlwind recently returned from a mission to Texas, followed. He appreciated very highly the opportunity of meeting with the Saints at home, but could not say that he felt very comfortable in occupying the position of a preacher. He realized that, comparatively speaking, he had just begun to peep into the great beyond, or the glory of the work which God had revealed in the latter days. The people of the South, were a kind, hospitable, energetic people and he felt that in some instances the Saints at home were hardly as sincere and devoted as they. Though the mission had but shortly been opened in the state of Texas, quite a number of earnest, energetic and prayerful people had been baptized into the Church. The people of Texas, generally speaking, were full of love and respect for their new homes and the Saints who were fast flocking to that locality were doing much to improve the morals and intellectual standard of the people in their vicinity. Elder Wells testified that he did know that the Gospel of Christ was true. He had received his elder's testimony. The blessings which had been pronounced upon him prior to leaving home had been literally fulfilled in his behalf. With advice and his prayer was that the youth of Zion would awake to the serious calling upon them that they might be able to bring about those blessings that were in the morning.

Elder Lorenzo Snow of the Council of Apostles was the next speaker. He said that things which happened in days gone by were very much misunderstood and which often brought sorrow and remorse to the hearts of the people. Such was the case in the faith and prayers of Elder Abraham H. Cannon. He endeavored and expected desires caused a vacancy in the Council of the Apostles, which will not exist very different, looked as though it would be difficult indeed to fill. The calling of such men as Elder Cannon from our midst, led the Saints to look in wonder and amazement, for they could not see why such things should be. But God was at the head of the work. He had certain purposes in view and He would pursue His own way in bringing these purposes about. The Saints believed and knew that after passing from this earth, they had another work to perform. They knew that they were living in this probationary simply to prepare themselves for that other work which was required of their hands. Therefore, it behoved them to strive diligently while here upon earth to make a good foundation, upon which would be laid their hope in the life to come. In this State there was every opportunity for the people to improve and to help build up the Kingdom of God. The Saints were here to enjoy temporal and spiritual blessings which were enjoyed from living good and living pure, straight lives before God. There were certain gifts that followed the Gospel. The gift of faith, for instance, was something which let us judge faith and perform certain acts. It was that spirit with which the young men were induced to going out to preach the Gospel. They felt that in going to perform that duty, certain blessings would be poured out upon them and they left their homes willingly and cheerfully to enter into God's service. In conclusion, the speaker urged the Saints to learn to be contented and promote happiness while sojourning here upon the earth.

Elder Heber J. Grant, also of the Council of the Apostles, next occupied the pulpit. He rejoiced in the Gospel of Jesus Christ. He knew it was true and that knowledge gave him joy and happiness. In listening to the young Elders make the statement that they knew Joseph Smith was a Prophet of God, he appreciated the fact that that knowledge had been given to them because of their having done the will of the Father. This testimony was a blessing to the Saints, but in order to retain it, it was necessary to feed and nourish it, or it would wither and die just as a tree would for want of sufficient moisture to keep it alive. The Saints who had received a testimony of the Gospel should lead lives which were above reproach, for they should be the best people upon the face of the earth. The Saints should aim to live lives of purity and holiness, and should try to improve upon every talent that God had blessed them with. Men might at times doubt the testimony of the people of God, but if the latter lived lives consistent with their knowledge and profession, men would their testimonies grow within them and their errors and teachings would have a great bearing among those with whom they associated. In proportion to the diligence that the Saints exercised with regard to their religion, just in that proportion would they be blessed. The harvest would be equivalent to the energy displayed in the sowing. Elder Grant said that we were engaged in the work of God; he knew that blessings were in store for the people of God, and he therefore adjured all to diligence before Him, that their labors would be pleasing in His sight.

Choir sang the anthem:

Hark, hark my soul.

Benediction was pronounced by Elder Rodney C. Badger.

The Weather in June.

The month of June 1896, was notable for its high temperature and deficient precipitation in all sections of the State. The departure from normal conditions was greatest throughout the southern portion of the State where it was extremely warm and dry during the entire month. In the northern portion the temperature was slightly above the normal, while the precipitation was about half an inch below the normal amount for the month of June.

The average temperature for the State was 77 degrees, which is about two degrees above the normal of Salt Lake city computed for seventeen years. The highest monthly mean was 84.8 degrees at St. George, and the lowest monthly mean, 66.6 degrees at Bessie Summit and Park City.

The highest temperature recorded during the month was 112 degrees at St. George, Washington county, on the 10th, and the lowest, 32 degrees at Bessie Summit, Utah county, on the 13th, making the range of temperature for the State 80 degrees. All the points at stations the highest temperature occurred about the middle of the month, and the lowest from the 10th to the 15th.

The average precipitation for the State was .59 of an inch, which is about half an inch below the normal. The greatest amount recorded was 2 inches at Tintic, and the next amount came at St. George, Pahreah and Park City. A trace of rainfall was received at Gunn, Manti and Scipio.

There was an average of 16 clear days, 11 partly cloudy days and 3 cloudy days during the month. The average number of days on which .01 of an inch or more of rain fell, was 7.

The prevailing winds during the month were from the southwest. The total movement of the wind at Salt Lake City was 4,669 miles, and the highest velocity 40 miles per hour on the 20th, from the south.

Thunderstorms occurred at Fort De Chesney on the 20th, 23rd, 24th and 29th; Gilson, 19, 21; Grove, 14th, 15th, 17th, 27th and 28th; Heber, 20th and 21st; Levan, 17th, 22nd, 23rd, 24th and 29th; Mammoth, 19th; Lehi, 20th, 24th, 25th, 26th, 28th and 29th; Manti, 20th, 24th, 26th and 29th; Paragonah, 23rd and 24th; Tintic, 16th and 20th; Snowville, 16th, 17, 18th and 23rd; Scipio, almost daily last two weeks of the month.

Hail fell at Grover on the 1st, 2nd and 3rd; Levan, 22nd; Mammoth, 22nd; Snowville, 16th, and Soldier Summit 20th.

Light frost occurred at Heber and Manti, on the 11th; Lehi, 14th; and Scipio, 16th.

REMARKS OF OBSERVERS.

Parowan—The warmest June for many years. No frost during month. Our water supply holding out good considering the dry month.—James Connell.

Grover—A generally prosperous month, the extreme heat causing vegetation to grow fast and rank. Haying earlier this year; cutting began 22nd June—general by end of month.—Henry Uelmen.

A Correction.

To the Editor:

Will you please correct the statement in your issue of July 7th, which says the "McBurney, arrested for counterfeiting, resided at Provo a few years ago and engaged in the galvanized iron cornice business." This is a mistake. W. J. McBurney resided at Provo and is now located at the Silver Lion mining district, engaged in a legitimate business.

W. J. McBURNEY.

The News takes pleasure in making the correction and regrets that such a statement appeared. The information, however, came from our Provo correspondent and was contained in the letter of July 5th.
