FRAGMENTS

HOME missionary meeting Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

The First quorum of Elders will meet in the Fourteenth ward assembly rooms this evening at 7:30 o'clock.

DR. UPSON'S illustrated lecture on India was repeated at the Tabernacle last night to a fair sized audience. It was very interesting throughout and replete with valuable information.

ALL that was mortal of Mrs. John L. Dooy was laid to rest in Mt. Olivet cemetery yesterday afternoon. The funeral services commenced at the residence and concluded at the grave, the Reverend F. W. North officiating. Many surrowing friends were present to pay their last respects to the deceased and extend their sympathy to the bereaved family.

THE Wasatch Democratic society of the Third precinct will hold a meeting in the old Democratic ward school house this evening, beginning at 7:30. The speakers will be A. W. Ricketts, Hon. W. H. King and Judge Powers. It was originally intended that the Republicans would occupy the school house tonight but their meeting has been postponed for one week.

County Teachers' Meeting.

A regular session of the county teachers will be held in the University building on Saturday, March 31st, at 10 o'clock. At this meeting, the county commencement exercises will be discussed, as well as the advisability of establishing high schools in connection with the county schools, the ensuing year.

Death of Colonel Estes.

The death of Colonel Stephen A. Estes, whose sad event occurred in the city shortly after 8 o'clock yesterday (Sunday) morning at the residence of Otto Stalman, was entirely unexpected by his friends and business associates, of whom he had a host both here and elsewhere.

About two weeks ago he was stricken with pneumonia of the heart and at times he was very sick now, for it was supposed during the last few days that he was beyond the danger line. The colonel had been compelled to spend a good deal of time sitting in a chair, as he was easier in that position than when stretched out upon his couch. Early yesterday morning, however, he asked one of his attendants to assist him to the bed as he believed he could get a little sleep. His request was granted and a few minutes later it was proven that his sleep was the sleep of death.

Colonel Estes was best known in Salt Lake by reason of his identification with the copper plant movement and of which company he was secretary and treasurer. He was 54 years of age.

TABERNACLE SERVICES.

Elders Josiah Harrows and Joseph E. Taylor the Speakers.

Services were conducted in the Tabernacle on Sunday afternoon, commencing at 2 o'clock. Elder Joseph E. Taylor, of the Seventy Presidency, presided.

The choir sang:

Great God attend while Zion sings.

Prayer was offered by Elder Marcellus S. Wooley.

The choir sang the anthem:

Jesus, I my cross have taken.

The Sacrament was administered, the Priesthood of the Fifteenth ward officiating.

Elder Josiah Harrows addressed the congregation. He had an abiding faith in the future progress of the work to which the Latter-day Saints were engaged, and which has for its object the welfare of mankind. The Savior taught his followers to take no thought for their future temporal welfare, for after the temporal things of life do the Gentiles seek; but he admonished them to seek first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness and promised that all things essential to their temporal welfare would be added unto them.

According to the prophecies of the ancient prophets the laws and ordinances of the Gospel have been changed by the world, and there has been a falling away from the true Church established by Christ. In the days of the early Apostles a general apostacy began to appear. The speaker quoted freely from the Scriptures and other records of wonder history showing that the early Christian Church established by Christ was to become extinct upon the earth, but the Latter-day Saints believe that the Gospel instituted by the Savior has been restored to the earth to fulfill most of the ancient prophecies, also the Revelator, while on the Isle of Patmos, saw in prophetic vision an angel having the everlasting Gospel to the inhabitants of the earth. Inferences were made to the claim of the Latter-day Saints that this prophecy has been verified, Joseph Smith being the humble instrument to whom the Gospel message was delivered by the angel for the children of men. The Latter-day Saints did not depend on their belief alone for the truth of these happenings. The Savior gave promise that if any man would do the will of the Father he should know whether the doctrines which He (Jesus) advanced were of God or not.

Elder Harrows said that very weighty responsibilities are placed upon the youth of Zion, and he was proud to welcome to his own section of country a generation of young men coming forward in regard to the religious obligations placed upon them. He rejoiced in having a testimony of the truth of the work put and believed the destiny of the Latter-day Saints to be a great one.

As it was understood that a number of visitors desired to leave the building to catch an afternoon train, Elder Joseph E. Taylor said that an opportunity to do so would be granted them during the position of "Oh, my Father," which was sung by the choir.

Elder Joseph E. Taylor read a portion of the 15th chapter of the third book of Nephi relative to the observance of the sacrament. The speaker referred to the general observance throughout Christendom of the day (Easter Sunday) in commemoration of the resurrection of our Lord. The Latter-day Saints have been taught more fully concerning the sacrament than any other people on the earth. Doubtless there is much pertaining to the Gospel which even the Latter-day Saints do not know, but enough has been revealed to mankind to enable them to attain to a salvation in the kingdom of God.

It was stipulated in the councils of heaven that Jesus should be the one who should come forth in the day time of the fulness to make atonement for the fall, and through whom the children of men should be reconciled from death.

The speaker dwelt upon the great importance of observing the Sacramental prayers. It was, he said, perhaps unfrequently and through carelessness, almost immaterial whether a man fetch bread from the house of God, and in this way fail to observe the commandment of the Savior in regard to this sacred ordinance. It has been made sure by authority, and that wisely, that the Sacrament should be administered in the Sabbath meeting to the children of the Latter-day Saints.

The speaker in very touching words cited some instances witnessed in his own experience relative to the subject of the Sacrament. In very convincing language he bore testimony to the truth of the doctrine of the resurrection, and to the grand hope it affords and attitude it lends that after the resurrection their children given them in the celestial state to mingle in home or social enjoyment.

The choir sang the anthem:

Where is the tomb.

Benediction was pronounced by Elder Seymour B. Young.

Church University Theological Class.

The class met at the usual time and place, over 1,100 students enrolling. Leaflet No. 17 was distributed at the close. Opening prayer was offered by Elder Madsen. After the consecration of sacred instruments, Dr. J. E. Talmage gave the class the story of the tomb middle of faith, for that part of which Sunday, the Bishop's in the Blessed, celebration of the Lord's Resurrection of the Day Friday, "Who are Infants?" was the question that Pat Fourteen's Bishop, Joseph Smith, received of Abraham Strongly Isaac and Jacob, with each of whom the Lord covenanted that through their posterity should be blessed all the earth be blessed. By divine authority Jacob was named "Israel" which means "a prince of God." His descendants are known as the children of Israel or as Israelites. The course traced their history to the time of the division into the kingdom of Judah and that of Israel.

He then turn up the disposition of Israel, which most authority gave to the scattering. Through prophecy it was made known that Israel Israel should be gathered. It was shown how the purpose of Israel and redemption the Israelites spread, while redemption was carried out slowly. About 721 B. C., the kingdom of Israel was taken into captivity by Assyrians. Then other conquests made their way to the north. The supposed course of their captivity as recorded by the Prophet Ezra, was traced and it was explained that of such a large people, many colonies might have been left behind, through the fatigue, weariness and inability to travel. The subject matter was carried on the next session in connection with the gathering. Closing prayer was offered by Elder Winters.

DEATH IN THE BLIZZARD.

Robert Baker Loses His Life in the Storm—Saved by a Dog.

Now that the terrible storm which visited Wyoming a few days ago has spent its fury and the weather has become milder, stories of awful suffering are being related. Stiney and cattle men were subject to the most intense cold. Among those whose experience was fearful is a sheepherder name A. King. His flock of sheep were scattered and broken into small bunches and many of them froze to death. King remained with them until he was exhausted. When he reached Lamanie his feet were badly frozen and he was almost dead.

He had two companions in the persons of Milton Smail and Robert Baker, but they became separated during the storm. Smail is a Summer Goods. After three or four days and nights, says the Rawlins, Smail arrived in the city. He's now was nearly frozen and the dogs which came with him were covered with snow and frost. One of the dogs had been frozen to death. He had cutting the animal in half so that he could be would be unable to reach town with it, and he had it down in the snow, when it was drifted over and found an icy grave. It was a fine, well trained animal.

Mr. Smail says that he last saw Baker about 4 o'clock Wednesday night. Baker at that time complained he was tired, and Smail told him to take his horse. Baker accepted the animal and that is the last seen of him. A few minutes later Smail heard Baker call. He answered the call but did not receive any response and could not find him after his horse's search. About 7 o'clock Smail decided he had better try and reach town, and he arrived as above stated. There were the gravest apprehensions that Thursday morning concerning the safety of Baker. The storm raged all night and if Baker did not find shelter there is the strongest reason for believing that he perished. Neither of them had had anything to eat for forty hours to the time of Smail's return, which would have tested the endurance of a strong man with regular rations. It is impossible, however, that the horse took him to a place of safety. This morning Messrs. Smail and King, with a brother of Baker and one or two other men, secured horses and left for the section night to ten miles from there along the Pioneer drive, where the sheep were left and near where Baker was last seen.

Later, Baker was found frozen to death. His body was standing erect against a wire fence into which he had drifted during the fury of the storm. It is learned that other herders have suffered a similar fate.

THE SILENCE BROKEN.

Fountain Green Also Sends a Brief Report of Itself.

Editor Evening News.

Please allow space for a few lines from this quiet and peaceful city. It is not thus that Fountain Green is mentioned in your columns. I believe this town should be thought of by editors at least once every tenth year—like Ephraim, through the correspondence of "Wilderness" once every five years.

This town is noted for its many brick residences which is noticeable wherever the stranger comes this way, for in grandeur the many beautiful buildings will so say to your subscribers. The people who live in these elegant houses are under the jurisdiction of Bishop C. J. Christensen, and they constantly do a lot of kindness, for he is one big bee in an apiary and a big one at that.

The Young Mutual Improvement Association are advancing, for they are getting well versed in body and mind, which is certainly gratifying to the top guardian of Abraham Strongly. I will say in passing that the Sabbath school in Southbury, but in which Fountain Green is the brightest, drew from the treasury to draw the attention to purchase each other lesser, sound and instructive books as will awaken greater interest among the children locally and abroad.

Yours very respectfully,

Z. C.

Fire Insurance in Hard Times.

Insuring people of importance the property upon which they depend for their support, is a matter which should receive their most careful attention. Fire is the most destructive agent we have to contend with, and it is a matter of congratulation that the business of insuring against its ravages is so well and so ably conducted in this city.
