desire on the part of the jury to go out of its regular duties, or to do anything beside an honest and impartial investigation of an alleged crime. The United States attorney was not present at the taking up of the case, did not in any way sought to influence the jury or any member thereof in this or any other case.

We refer to this matter on account of the charges made in open court that the case was forced upon the jury by the district attorney.

In the matter of the charges brought in open court by Chief of Police Pratt, that members of this jury have violated the secrets of the jury room, we beg to report that we have examined all the witnesses named by Pratt and others, and failed to find one who has heard any one of this jury reveal any of its secrets.

In the matter of the Tyre case, we find that Mr. Tyre was arrested and held for eight days without any complaint being filed against him, or warrant issued for him, and was then discharged by order of an officer of the court. We believe that a great mistake was made in this matter. All this was done during a recess of the grand jury. Upon reconvening, Mr. Tyre was included for endorsement. We recommend that the law governing these cases be more carefully enforced.

We call special attention of this court to the unwarranted attention taken by a portion of the press in trying to influence the action of the grand jury by their editorials, interviews and recommendations. We believe it is within the province of the court to take cognizance of the flagrant attacks upon its juries and officers, and shield the same by giving the offenders the limelight. If juries cannot be protected against the assaults of the press, we are to be held up to public contempt and scorn while they are investigating crimes against people of influence or wealth, it will only be a short time until the press will contain who shall or who shall not be punished in this community."

The report was signed by Foreman H. C. Hill and all the other members.

CONTEMPTUOUS.

Upon the conclusion of the reading of the foregoing report Attorney Judd arose and said: There is no further business, may it please your honor, now to come before this grand jury and they are ready to be discharged. I want to say to your honor that it is the testimony of Judge Howat, Mr. Richards and myself that this grand jury has done more work and done it better than any grand jury we have ever had assembled here. They are entitled to the praise for it, and they are entitled to better treatment than they have received from the public press of Utah Territory.

Judge Bartch then said: Gentlemen of the grand jury, it gives the court much pleasure to learn from the prosecuting attorney that you have endeavored to perform your duties well. It seems to me the highest recognition you can receive for this is that of your own consciousness of matter. What has been said or done by any other person, No matter what criticism a person may be subjected to, if he himself, in his own consciousness, knows that he has done his duty to the public to whom he is responsible, it can matter little what is said. I have noticed myself that you, gentlemen, have appeared time and time again before the court, and it seemed to me to be your honest desire to do your duty as you saw it under your oath. As this court has already expressed itself, it has had no reason to question your motives in the consideration of anything that has come before you. I have known no facts which would warrant me in doing so, and I am pleased this morning that those who have had charge of you speak of you in the favorable terms in which they do. After all, the safety of society is almost entirely in the hands of the grand jury. If they do their duty prisoners may be brought to justice and society may be freed from those who are unworthy members of it. It is not for the court to inquire into the modes and motives by which you arrive at your judgment. In discharging you this morning, gentlemen, you have the good wishes of this court. You are discharged for the term.

FEES AND OIL, NOT FEES.

District Attorney Judd then arose in all his official dignity and said—May it please your honor. Coming now to the case of Arthur Pratt, George A. Sheets and Fergus Ferguson, who are held in custody under a commitment by this court for contempt, I move that an order be now entered discharging them from such custody. In doing this I do not desire that it shall be understood that the prosecution has decided or intends to recede from the position it has taken with reference to this matter. The grand jury has reported before your honor that the case concerning which they were committed for contempt was a case as regularly before that grand jury as any other that has been before it during its sittings. But for reasons which are in the manner known to your honor, I have thought it best not to ask the court to continue this grand jury any longer, and to let Mr. Pratt and his associates be discharged. We do not, however, desire this to be understood as a precedent for any future cases. This matter stands open to be taken up by the next grand jury, which in all probability it will be if that be done, then there will be ample opportunity for the court again to assert itself, as it has done in this case. It was unfortunate matter that officers of the law, charged with its enforcement should come before this court and say, "It is true we caught parties in crime, but they are of such high standing in the community that we grabbed we could not give their names," and then stand upon that position before a justice-loving community and before a court. I say it is unfortunate that such should be the case. But it is cheerful that it were probably better to let the matter stand where it is for the present and let the next grand jury, of this court, at the February term, take the work up where this grand jury has stopped. They have worked hard. Some of them have stayed here away from their business when the interests of their business interests called them elsewhere. I felt it would be wrong to continue them over, that it would be an injustice to them, and that they ought to be now discharged. That discharge accordingly, as I understand the law, would amount to a release from those who are held in contempt of this court for not answering have them, for the reason that being finally discharged, there would probably be no way for the prisoners held in contempt to purge themselves by making answer, but all technicalities aside, I have felt that it was best for the community under the circumstances, and for reasons which your honor privately and candidly, to take this course in this matter, and I direct an order be entered discharging the United States marshal from the custody of these parties.

Judge Bartch—The order may be entered.

Judge Powers—This is not a matter of pleasure or comment upon the part of the public prosecutor, but it is a matter of right over the law. The suggestion that in this (the district attorney) might have held the grand jury over is not one that the law would hear out, and it is due to my client that I should say that the further suggestion by his counsel—Mr. Pratt—to answer his and notice out by the bar. Whether a future grand jury may do, it is not for him or me to say or criticise. As a matter of right there was no one entitled to ask the discharge; at the time he expired the grand jury, by the statute, would have been discharged. I think they were held over with the idea that his matter might be settled.

Judge Bartch—The report of the grand jury contains a number of recommendations, some of which should receive serious consideration on the part of the officers of the law, and also of the juries to which the report refers, namely, the reference to the city jail and other matters. For the reason I will refer the report to the prosecuting attorney, who will give it such reasonable consideration as he deems proper.

District Attorney Judd said it had come to him unofficially that some men pending which had they respond here in time would have gone before this grand jury. To save any technical objection to future question he desired the court to now make a general order that all criminal cases be continued and not disposed of by the grand jury to continued over until the next term. He had been advised that a case of murder—not yet in shape to be sent here—would probably come from Park City.

Judge Bartch directed that such an order be entered.

It being now 1:30 the September term at court was declared closed and the courtroom was soon empty. Ten minutes later Judge Bartch again took his seat upon the bench and Rudolph Nielsen was sworn the opening of the December term.

The release of Chief Pratt and his two officers was immediately directed by a telephone message to the penitentiary from the United States marshal's office.

Well and Happy

Thanks to Hood's Sarsaparilla—Dull Headaches—That Tired Feeling.

Mrs. W. H. Toles
San Francisco, Cal.

"One of the greatest blessings people make is to look the door after the horse is stolen, or in other words, to wait until they are sick to feel before they act. Anything for the poor body. Neither my wife nor myself ever took sarsaparilla before taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and the result was perfectly satisfactory. I believe Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best."

Saved Us a Severe Sickness

And a big doctor's bill. If people would only remember that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" how much sickness would be in the world. We advise all who do not feel well to take Hood's Sarsaparilla according to directions, and you will be well and happy.—W. H. Toles, 107 11th St., San Francisco, Cal.

Gentlemen:—Beginning to-day Sunol (the fast horse) will shoe that I have used the Putnam Nail and others. Both are equal to the task with the horse when I will tell you which I prefer and to be sent than the Putnam nail. Forget Nail if not convinced. With these my be return or good I know which these are and cannot effect to make experiments.

Very respectfully yours,

Chas. Marvin

The Putnam Nail is the only exclusively Hot-Forged and Hammer-Pointed nail.

Look in your smith's shoeing box, if the nails have smooth edges for the whole length they are the PUTNAM, for they are Hammer-Pointed and are not sheared.

The above gentleman, with a little research, may be found on the nail of Sunol's shoes, while experimenting the shoes of a horse, with horses in the front of a bold kick, one, two, or three, while front, with nails, or hangs of a cool steady for years, etc.
