Anti-Treasury's Heavy Defalcations.—The Shipping Season in North ra Montana.—An Iowa Train Wrecker.

SAN PEDRO, ARIZ., the Sidney of group of silver mines at White River, 70 miles east of G. W. Berry and R. T. Hunt, mining men of Denver, for [illegible]

The shipping season in northern Montana has almost closed, the shipments of cattle being a little lighter than last year. On Friday the Bear Paw had shipped sixteen cars from Chinook, and sixteen cars more in the yards with today. There will probably be the more shipment from Fort Benton, and the shipments from other points will be by McNamara, Kohrs & Co., from Sun River and the Home Land, shipments closing early next month.—Salt Governor Journal, Miles City.

TIM. McGRIFF, a young man in the employ of the California Conservation company, has been seriously injured while engaged in blasting rock on Mount Diablo. Through the premature explosion of a blasting cartridge he lost the right eye of his face badly lacerated and one of his hands badly lacerated and the left eye. His right eye was so badly injured that it has to be removed, and it is expected that he will lose the sight of his other eye. The attending physicians say his condition is very serious, as brain fever is likely to set in.

Judge Sanity has returned from San Francisco. Regarding the status of the appeal in the case of the Coeur d'Alene miners now serving sentences in the county jail in this city (Helena) he yesterday, Judge Sanity says that District Attorney Wood had filed his brief with the court of appeals on behalf of the United States, but that the attorneys for the complainants had not filed their brief at the time he left San Francisco. He, however, thought the brief would be filed in a few days by Mr. Bailey, of counsel for prisoners, who is now in San Francisco.—Butte Daily Standard.

When one of the W. C. T. U. excursion trains stopped yesterday (Nov. 10th) at the Lake Springs depot, Utah, there was quite a crowd of school children to get a view of the visitors. One of the ladies of the excursion, addressing the little ones said, "I suppose you are all for temperance. All who are in favor of temperance hold up your hands." All except one little girl held up their hands. Turning sharply to the exception mentioned, the good lady said, "Aren't you for temperance?" "No," replied the little tot, "I am for free rum." The train moved out, while the little one shouted, "Hot Weaver."—Beaver News.

Smith, the man who was sent to the Idaho penitentiary a few months ago for attempting to wreck a train on the Oregon Short Line near Caldwell, has become violently insane. For two or three days Smith acted in a strange manner. He entered his cell a day or two ago, stripped off all his clothes and tied his face and kneed with his fists until he was covered with blood. The guards, attracted by the noise, entered Smith's cell and found the crazy convict deliberately giving himself a massage with the blood that flowed freely from his bruised face and head. Smith was specially overpowered and has been taken to the insane asylum at Blackfoot.

A week ago, says the Pocatello Record, a young man named M. P. Jolgenson, who was well and favorably known in this section, lost his life in a somewhat similar manner. It appears that he and some companions left Helena on a hunting trip to Pahsimapi lake, and were returning when the accident occurred. Jorgenson had the driver of the wagon in which he was that he would lay down in the bottom of the vehicle, and in changing position his gun dropped and exploded, the ball entering his body above the navel, and, ranging upward, entered the heart. He never spoke, death being instantaneous.

KIT CARSON, JR., is on trial at Las Animas, Colorado. He is a son of the famous scout of that name. The crime with which he is charged is the murder of his mother-in-law, Mrs. William Richards, wife of old Billy Richards of Nine Mile. He is also charged with an assault with intent to commit murder on his father-in-law. It was the 10th of last December, about a year ago, that Nine Mile bottom was thrown into a fever of excitement by the accumulation of what is believed to be one of the most bloody crimes ever committed in that section. In the afternoon of that day young Kit Carson came to the house of old Billy Richards, and soon after Mrs. Richards lay dead with a bullet in the back of her head, and Richards was prostrated with a bullet through his hips, and young Carson was a fugitive from justice.

A. J. McPeak, ex-treasurer of Furnas county, has been found a defaulter to the sum of $16,000.02. Five years ago Mr. McPeak (of Arapahoe) was elected treasurer of this county. He held the position for two terms, and his administration has always been supposed to be beyond reproach. At the expiration of his official career last February the board of county commissioners examined his work for the last four years and made an official statement that all was correct. The new county treasurer, in the course of his duty, discovered that the school fund amount was short, and another investigation was called for. This resulted in proving that the books were in a most deplorable condition.

An order will soon be issued for the opening of the Lemhi Indian reservation, dividing the lands in severalty to the Indians and giving the white man a chance to prospect on this valuable territory. There are a number of fine copper properties on this ground which the white man is anxious to get hold of and develop, while there are some fine ranches on the Upper Lemhi, which if reached and developed would prove as rich and productive as any of those now prospering on its outskirts. We are told that there are several fine copper and gold veins on the ground, which if opened would prove valuable. A party has been looking after these this week comparatory for starting development work as soon as practicable.—Salmon City (Idaho) Miner.

The murder of Joseph Smith by Amos Woods near Berkeley, Colo., on November 2, is a crime unparalleled in the history of Colorado. The self-confessed murderer is but eleven years old and not nearly as tall as the gun that he used to commit the horrible deed. He was found hidden under a bed in his father's house by Deputy Sheriffs Thompson and Holloway. The watch and the knife of the murdered man were found in Hessian room. Without hesitation little Amos confessed to the deputy sheriffs. "I killed him," he said, "because he made me think I had done something which I did not." At the jail he said, "I also wanted his watch and knife and new gun." The boy has no idea of moral responsibility and does not appreciate the condition he is in. Soon after the murder he told his father and mother that he had killed a man. His father told him not to say anything about it, and they agreed to bury Smith between four pines in the front yard. The coroner held an inquest and the jury brought in a verdict charging the little boy with the crime of murder. His father, Thomas Woods, and his mother, Maggie Woods, are charged with being accomplices after the fact. At the request of Deputy Sheriff Thompson, it was that the boy at first told the truth that his father told him to kill Smith. This cannot be verified. The little boy has a pure, simple face, with none of the characteristics of a born criminal. No one would imagine after gazing into his innocent eyes that he could commit or had a crime. His father and mother are common specimens of the laboring class of Prussian Poland.—Denver News.
