DESERET EVENING NEWS.

GIVING ADVICE TO UTAH.

Suggestions as to Constitutional and Legislative Provisions.

By One Who Evidently Is Not Up on the Status of Affairs and Politics Here.

The following article is by John H. Titcomb, in the Denver Republican. Mr. Titcomb is reported as high authority in Colorado on irrigation matters. His article is reproduced in the News at the suggestion of Col. Stevenson, secretary of the Utah irrigation commission. As to the value of the ideas advanced by Mr. Titcomb that is materially lessened by the fact that he is proceeding upon a misunderstanding of the situation and being on the subject in Utah. For instance, the opposition to state legislation and control to which he refers is a myth. The fact is that Utah is good fully without expensive or irrigation organization and control, and in locating and constructing canals, etc., was other from a whole region location at affairs here. Nevertheless the article is reproduced as showing the attention Utah is receiving and what our neighbors are thinking and saying of us:

The Convention, now assembled at Salt Lake City, to frame a Constitution for Utah, on her admission as a State, has appointed twenty-six committees, to whom will be referred the various subjects and interests on which and for which constitutional declarations, provisions and limitations are to be made and provided. Not the least important of these committees is that on irrigation and agriculture. These subjects and interests are so intimately interwoven, that they must be considered as one pair of complementary and effectual legislation.

The general work of sound reform, or other, sentiment exists to use as the foundation in the Bill of Rights as to the invaluable and essential use of water in natural streams, lakes, etc. Colorado, notwithstanding her declaration as to her ownership, has never yet let, hindrance or regulation of any kind upon the claiming of water, or the amount to be claimed, from any of her streams. By-noting, profiting by the experience of other commonwealths, she carried out her constitutional declaration, by wise legislation, and no water can be taken, or any irrigation works be constructed without authority of the duly constituted state board, created for that purpose.

Utah, then, will do well if she follows the precedent established in Wyoming, in constitutional and legislative provisions on this point. But it seems to me that the declaration as to the unappropriated waters and the regulation of how they may be appropriated, must necessarily develop another duty and work on the state; and that is the determination, as to any stream, of how much water there is therein not already appropriated. This, of its, would require an officer or department whose duty it should be to make such determination, and this, of necessity, demands the creation of a state engineer's department and the appointment of a state engineer. This officer should be at his desk in the board of control of public waters. And it should be within the provisions of the board, by the state engineer, to have some control of the manner in which water may be appropriated, at least for irrigation works. That is to say, so far as possible, that canals be located and constructed so as to obtain the greatest possible economical result from the water to be taken for such canals, etc. In this line, then, Utah has her created opportunity (as Wyoming) to lay down the foundations of a most wise and comprehensive code for her irrigation interests in every phase and direction. She will doubtless copy all the best points from the constitutions and systems of Wyoming, Colorado and California, probably including a district organization on the lines laid down in the "Wright law" in the last named state. The Utah irrigation commission, and the civil engineers of the Territory, have worked on a long, strong and most valuable code in draft of preliminary work, to get the matter of most approved irrigation laws and code evolved in the prominent and prevailing position it now has in the commonwealth. Many of the other states, particularly among the Mormon element, as I understand, have opposed to any state legislation and control whatever.

Let us hope that the Constitutional Convention of Utah will be equal to the opportunities and demands confronting it in respect to their irrigation interests, and place them on firm and fair legislation.

The G. W. Shores Company.

The G. W. Shores company, with a capital stock of $50,000, divided into 50,000 shares of the par value of $1, has filed its articles of incorporation. G. W. Shores is president and treasurer, J. W. Hogan, vice president, Phil A. Tarbet, secretary and secretary. The purpose of the company is to establish and conduct in the various states of the Union and foreign countries hospitals and medical institutes, to employ physicians and surgeons for the practice of medicine and to manufacture drugs, chemicals, etc., to buy, sell and operate pending patents, real estate and mines, and to engage in a general merchandise and drug business.

Probate Matters.

In the probate court an order has been made authorizing C. F. Loofbourow, administrator, to assign a judgment in favor of the estate of H. M. Halverson, deceased, and against the Niagara Mining company, to the amount of $5,000.50, upon payment to the administrator of $3,000.

A citation has been issued out of the probate court directed to Otto Stallmann as administrator of the estate of Stephen A. Cobb, ordering him to appear April 25 and show cause, if any there be, why he should not give further and additional security as administrator. As Stallman is outside of America, it is quite likely that he will be required so soon as the proper time arrives.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Committee on Teachers Recommend a Reduction of Salaries.

The board of education met last night, with President Doty in the chair and all members present.

A report was submitted by the committee on teachers recommending economy in the payment of teachers. The report began with a comparative statement of figures showing what revenues may be expected, as follows:

	Current and Est. Revenue.	Per Pupil.

In view of the fact that receipts have decreased and expenses increased it is necessary that salaries of teachers be cut.

The report makes the following recommendations:

Salaries of principals of Lincoln, Sumner, Wasatch, Franklin, Fremont and Hamilton schools, $125 per month.

Principal Bryan school, $100 per month. Principal Seventh and Tenth schools, $90 per month. Principal Lincoln, Ottinger, Twenty-first and Twelfth, $80 per month.

Salaries of the principals not included in the above round to be fixed regardless of the number of teachers in accordance with the schools of grade teachers.

Salaries of teachers in the primary grade who may be re-employed to remain as they now are, except where promotions are made for merit, provided that no salary be advanced to an amount greater than the maximum fixed for the employment of teachers under the new schedule, viz., $50 per month.

The minimum salary is to be $40 per school month, with an annual increase of $5 per month on account of merit, provided, that no teacher shall receive over $50 for ten days service.

Salaries of high school teachers to remain as they are, except the principal.

Superintendent of music, $1,000 per annum. Superintendent of drawing, $1,000 per annum. Superintendent of physical culture, $900 per annum.
