THE VENEZUELA WAR.

The Battle Between Palacio and the Insurgents.

PARAMA, April 1.—The French steamship which arrived here today, brings authentic news of the uprising in Venezuela against President Palacio. The recent battle between Palacio and Falcon's troops and the insurgents under General Joaquin Crespo was fought near Caracas and lasted for three days. Reinforcements for Palacio's army arrived as the contest was beginning to wane, and the Government troops made a stand. Crespo's men were entrenched almost three miles apart, and the Government having 7000 men to their 3000. They tried to station Palacio's position there, but he was driven back with the loss of all. The insurgents then retreated toward the eastern coastland with the intention of joining another insurgent army, which is said to be near Maracaibo. Detachments of Government troops went in pursuit and several skirmishes took place, in which the revolutionists repulsed Palacio's men. Both Valencia and Caracas are already governed as if in a state of siege. Spies are in every place of public resort and in no music they way into many private households. Arrests made without any apparent cause, and men are held for months without an examination or trial. The French officers say that the war at the outset was a popular one, and that, in case of two or three victories so far Crespo, the great majority of the people would throw off the semblance of loyalty and join their fortunes to his.

THE BATTLE ON CLASSY DESIRE.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—A telegram to the Department of State from the minister to Venezuela contradicts the report of the battle fought between the revolutionary and government forces near Caracas, and says there is no such in Venezuela. Both parties, however, are preparing for hostilities.

Dressing in Mellow cut.

MELBOURNE, April 1.—This morning the steamer "Gallara," arrived at the wharf and Dressing was quickly brought ashore at 11 o'clock. The nurse crowds assembled to get a glimpse at the prisoner, not too close to the prison was strongly guarded by the police, and it would hardly have been possible for the excited populace to have taken him from his capture.

Shortly after he landed Dressing was taken to the police court, where he was formally charged with the murder of his wife at Windsor. The magistrate remanded him for the week.
