October's sound work brought the long delayed storm that marked the opening of winter, and its approach has been a sort of signal of the social season. Dedications are the order of the magnificent new dates, and hardly a week passes without receptions, card parties and fancy dancing parties are beginning to show the bright spokes in the lately starred wheel of pleasure.

• • •

Speaking of fancy parties, the Hesperian club at Christensen's last night initiated the winter's delightfully attractive with appropriate zest. The attendance was large, the guests enchanted, the music inspiring and the affair in the entirety a brilliant success.

At St. Mark's cathedral last night Miss Caroline Zeigler and Mr. Clarence Hoyer Jr., were united in marriage, and after a long and happy honeymoon will be at home at Ogden. The wedding was a fashionable one, and the bride's toilet was elaborate and the gifts were many and costly.

• • •

The ceremony was performed by Canon Hickey, and appropriate music was rendered during the service by A. H. Peabody.

The church was beautifully decorated with palms, roses, chrysanthemums and asters, and a large bower was erected along the pews, and edging the aisle in which the bridal party marched. Bouquets of chrysanthemums marked the pews set apart for the immediate friends of the contracting couple.

The bridal party entered with first usher preceding and followed by the bride accompanied by James M. Hall who gave the bride away. At the chancel they were met by the groom, and the best man, and the party proceeded to the altar where the ceremony was performed. Mr. Adrian Kite acted as best man, and the ushers were George Nye, Frank Pyle, Jay Hoyer and Charles Fields. The bride wore a beautiful gown of white silk crepe, and a long veil was arranged in a fashionable way and completed the costume.

The reception was held in the apartments of Mr. and Mrs. Zeigler, and per the time of the Study Book, the beauty of the rooms being enhanced by the floral decorations and brilliant lighting. The dining room in which the bride and groom received, had a curtain of white as a mantel with the wedding cake before which the newly married couple stood to receive the congratulations of their friends. Palms and potted plants completed the floral decorations, whose perfect effect was augmented by the Marconi rays and shaded lamps and chairs arranged around the room. Punch was served in the middle room, in which there was the wedding table, and at one end of the south room refreshments were served from an artistically spread table, set in a canopy pavilion, and which with the flowers, oranges, candles and wicker bear with which Pyle's place is furnished, made a charming picture. Altogether the affair was one of the most delightful of the season's events.
