A HALF WITTED HERO

"Talking of wonderful escapes," remarked the commercial traveler, "I know very few to equal that of a friend of mine who lives, and would live much, when I met it, as travelling agent, thinking he deserved to do it years ago. At that time I was doing my traveling mostly on the road, stopping now in Ireland and now in Scotland, or in Wales, as the fancy took me, or the business demanded.