CHINA'S TROUBLES MANY,

Li Hung Chang Thought to be in Actual Danger.

Mysterious Disappearance of a High Official, Investigating the Murder of Foreigners.

YOKOHAMA, Oct. 4.—No news has yet been received as to the effect of the Japanese success at Ping Yang upon the Chinese court. Previous to that event it was announced that the entire imperial family, led by the sovereign and his mother, was violently opposed to every proposal for peace. The efforts of Li Hung Chang to bring about foreign intervention through the agency of the diplomats at Pekin has been completely nullified by the warlike resolutions of his superiors.

Taking into account statements in a position of some danger is admitted on all sides. The juncture he has faithfully served for fifty years, giving their power and security when their very existence was menaced, and sacrificing ambition and even personal honor in their cause, are now exasperated at the manner in which they hold him responsible and they are ready, according to the best authority, to inflict humiliation if not heavier punishment on him unless the tide of disaster can be turned.

The degradation of Admiral Ting is proclaimed as an indisputable fact by the native Chinese newspapers, though no official notification of his downfall has appeared. The accusations of cowardice and treachery everywhere directed against him would scarcely be permitted if he retained his former power or influence.

The fate of Yuan Shi Kai, whose maladministration in Corea is now held to be the cause of China's serious, is still a matter of mystery. The latest story told by his former friends is that, having gone to Pekin to avoid the wrath of Li Hung Chang, he broke himself so overwhelmed with chagrin that he was forced to return to Tien Tsing that he was received with the promises of forgiveness and invited to lead at the vice-regal palace and that he has never since been seen among the living.

The French minister at Pekin is emphatic in demanding reparation from the Tsing for the brutal and premeditated murder of the French priest Jaccon by Chinese soldiers in Corea. A rigid investigation is proceeding of the case of the French customs officer who was put to death by the Chinese on the border of Tonquin, and whose wife and daughter were cruelly maltreated. No news, so far as known, has been taken towards exacting redress for the murder of Mr. Wylie, the Scotch missionary, killed by a military rebels in the north.

Conflicting reports are published regarding the treatment of two alleged Japanese spies delivered over to the Chinese authorities by the United States consul general at Shanghai. According to one newspaper account they are already beheaded. Another states that they were tried and every consideration permissible in their case.

The foreign community recognizes the indignity of the recent demand to surrender them to a tribunal composed of men who have given up. It is confident that the United States representative had no right to offer protection, neither and they any authority whatever to send the two men, who should consequently have been free on his instructions. But instead of dismissing them, he took them in a carriage to the boundary of the settlement and there put them in the custody of Chinese guards. The American flag, the foreign, was required, it is alleged, to act as a contraband of the native authorities, and in the majority to endanger the lives of the men who had clung to the belief that they would look to him for friendly and secured.

Von Hanneke, the military engineer who swam ashore from the Kow Shing let the time of that ship's destruction, has been appointed commander of the naval station at Wei Hai Wei.

ANNUAL REPORT

Of the Government Directors of the Union Pacific Stock.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—E. Ellery Anderson, J. W. Deane, Joseph Fendon and Fred Hugh Low, the government directors of the Union Pacific reorganization board, today made public their last annual report. They approve of the issuing of receivers for the system, as it was believed the associated roads, aggregating $160 miles, "possessed a greater earning power when operated as a whole than when disassociated."

In administering the several properties, however, separate accounts of the receipts and expenses have been kept, and earnings severally applied to the mortgages covering particular divisions. In this way from the appointment of the receivers, October last, to the end of the fiscal year on June 30th, $5,157,822 was paid on twenty-two new of bonds. Several of the branch railroads did not earn operating expenses, and they are to be turned over to separate receivers on the application of the trustees of the covering mortgages.

In this way and by separate receivership secured by the holders of guaranteed bonds, about 2,500 miles of road have been lopped off from the property entrusted to the original receivership. The government directors urge an adjustment of the government interests in the system, and denote the business plan by saying:

"As far as the part of attempting the collection of the government debt by acquiring title to the railroad property and operating it, the integrable objective to this course, with from popular standpoint and in view of the peculiar and incomplete nature of the government lien, have been so often stated that it is not necessary to repeat them."

Suggestions for a reorganization of the company, founded upon an adjustment of the earning power of the whole system, and than the issue of a great blanket mortgage of a 50 cent 100-year bond, that the accruing interest will not exceed the minimum earning power. The present stockholders is to go to prior liens, and the stockholders to be entitled after an assessment of $10 a share. The remainder of the mortgage result and of the preferred stock issue is to satisfy the holders of the subsequent bonded liens. Tables are given to show how the government would get its present claim of $70,000,000 under this arrangement, and what each class of the present security holders might expect.

NEW YORK POLICE.

Further Testimony before the Lexow Committee.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The charging by Policeman Dunn of Thomas Lonos was taken up by the committee. Lonos's employer testified as to his good character. Dunn swore that Lonos charged him before he went his beat.

A colored woman told a sensational story which implicated Captain Schmittberger and some of his men. She was taken from a West Thirty-fourth street, where she was sued on a charge against Isaac Cohen, a lawyer. Another woman had advised her to drop the suit against Cohen, as he was a friend of Captain Schmittberger. The captain, she said, would arrest her. Later two policemen called and advised her to drop the suit. One of the policemen tried to criminally assault her daughter. Then Mrs. Brown said she was arrested for keeping a disorderly house and Policeman Callaghan told her that Captain Schmittberger would settle for $50. She had now a Gerry agent who threatened to put her child away unless she gave him $—.

At the afternoon session a little woman dressed in black took the stand. Mr. Goff prefaced her explanation with the statement that an attempt was made to get her out of the country. Mr. Goff drew from the witness how she had invested her money in saloon. Warnimon Frank Wilson, formerly under Captain Alaire, then was a keeper of a house of infamy on Eighteenth street. Under threats of "pulling the house" he got from her about everything she possessed. She finally collected his bonds, bought a silver set, diamond rings for his wife and clothing for his children. Wilson, she said, resigned from the force the day the committee opened its campaign. He was now in Philadelphia.

Inspector McLaughlin's name was dragged in. McLaughlin was formerly captain of the seventh precinct. The woman swore that she paid $500 initiation fee toward getting Matt Burns under Captain McLaughlin. Every month she paid $50 to Burns. When Burns wanted a diamond and he got $125 from her to purchase it. She said she was now penniless. Her money had gone into the police offers.

Referring to the Gerry society agents, she said they collected money from all women whose girls under age were kept. She told how Captain Cross had trapped Gerry Agents Beeker and Finn when they took $50 from her. The men were brought to court. Beeker was acquitted and Finn was sent to prison for nine months. Beeker escaped, she said, because he was acquainted with Superintendent Jenkins of the society.

When she left New York she opened a saloon in Newark. It was raided by the police. She went to Captain Cross and he sent Alderman Smith of the city to Newark, and the police there gave her protection.

"This morning," she said, "a man came up to me and said:

"'You are subpoenaed before the Lexow committee.'

"'How do you know?' I asked.

"'I know,' he answered. 'You go right up to Inspector McLaughlin and he will buy you off. Don't go before the committee.'

"I refused his advice."

When asked by Mr. Goff how much she had paid to the police she answered about $8,000 or $10,000.

Warden Ledwith of Jefferson Market prison was then blamed over the coals for visiting David Pender, gambler in Blackwell's island.

Pender was mentioned in the testimony of Applegate, and it appears the warden, who is a friend of Detective Sergeant Ansley, removed himself to get a statement from Pender which would keep Ansley.

Hyers, the Wealthy Iron Merchant, in a Lunatic Asylum.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 4.—Alexander M. Byers, a wealthy iron merchant, was today declared a lunatic. His wife, who spent the last two years searching for and trying to regain possession of her husband who she alleged was being kept from her by his brother, A. M. Byers, asked for an inquest into the husband's sanity. The physicians from Peach hospital for insane, where Byers is now under treatment, and from Kirkbride, Philadelphia, testified that Byers had so lucid intervals and his mental recovery is impossible. It was stated that the lunatic's interest in the firm, A. M. Byers & Co., was worth over $200,000. No statement was made of his other property. Mrs. Byers will now go into court and ask that she be made the trustee of her husband's person and property.

POLITICAL ASSESSMENT.

No Particulars obtained Concerning the Alleged Circular.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Civil Service Commissioner Lyman said today that nothing has yet been received concerning the political assessment circular alleged by the San Francisco Chronicle to have been sent Federal officers of San Francisco. As soon as evidence was secured measures would be taken by the commission against the authors of the circular.

The Slayer of Jefferys.

TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 5.—The murderer of Constable Jefferys is believed by common officers and deputy sheriffs to be Brown, the swindler, who escaped from McNeils island last Thursday. Officers have discovered at Puyallup a value left by the murderer which contained clothes worn by Brooks in the county jail. Officers claim to possess clear evidence establishing the criminal's identity as Brooks.

Murderer captured.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 5.—The murderer of Minnie H. Hindell was captured in a logging camp by Detective Cudahee and Officer Curtett after a desperate encounter in which Cudahee came near losing his life. The murderer said his name was Robert Bass, afterwards admitting that it was assumed. At the police headquarters he was identified as the man in question and that he shot Hindell in self-defense.

Death of a Veteran.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Oct. 5.—Colonel Smith W. Fowler, aged 65 years, died at his home in this city, the result of the amputation of a leg on account of gangrene in the foot. His son, F. L. Fowler, came hither from the East and will take the remains to Manlesse, Mich., Col. Fowler's old home, where he was prominent and conspicuous as a lawyer. He served in the War of the Rebellion with distinction.

Mexico and Guatemala.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Special to the World from Mexico City says El Fabrado, a liberal semi-official paper, comments as follows on the relations between Mexico and Guatemala:

Guatemala cannot go to extremes. It lacks the necessary elements for war and the result of war would be disastrous to her. But we must be on the alert, not for fear, which would be childerical, but to avoid the expenses and effusion of blood. Central America, at this moment, is worse prepared than ever for war. The intemperately, greedy and tyrannical character of its rulers has reduced it to the worst conditions. Some of those countries are justifying the defensive plans of an eloquent Mexican orator, who characterized them as a "bottle of democratic Raffles." For this reason certain American statesmen have expressed a wish that Mexico should assume a protectorate over all Central America, to maintain the public peace. This idea is repugnant to us.

Mrs. Alice Davis has removed to 16 East First South Street.
