Hayes Speaks to the Colored People.

WASHINGTON, 23.—In response to an address by Bishop Brown, colored, this afternoon, the President said:

"Gentlemen—I thank you for this call and for the kindly sentiments which you entertain. I did express anxiety with regard to the future condition of the colored people of our country, especially in the south, and I may add that I was anxious with regard to the condition of all our people. I felt, especially with regard to the former class, that they could not be so well cared for and protected, or their best interests advanced under a democratic administration, however well disposed towards them. It should be my purpose, in the discharge of my official duties, to care equally for all our people; and I assure you that the race represented by you will never be neglected by my administration. It should be understood that the appointment of Mr. Douglass, to which you refer, has more significance than the personal remembrance of that distinguished gentleman. It should be accepted as an indication of my purpose to advance the equal rights of the people of the entire country. I thank you for your call and kind expressions with regard to me, and the policy of peace which I intend to pursue."

Secretary Schurz to the Heads of Bureaus.

The following note has been addressed by Secretary Schurz to all the heads of bureaus in the Interior department:

"Washington, 20.

"Sir—I desire you to report to me in writing, at as early a day as possible, on the following points:

"First—The organization, distribution, and methods of business of your bureau.

"Second—The force employed, and character of their employment, in detail.

"Third—The efficiency of that force, giving your judgment as to the changes that may be desirable in the personal interests of the service.

"Fourth—What reduction may be practicable.

"Fifth—Your observation as to existing abuses, if any there be, and as to the remedies to be applied.

"Sixth—Your views as to the changes, if any there may be, desirable in the business methods of your bureau.

"Your report will serve as a basis of future examination.

"Very Respectfully,

"C. SCHURZ, Secy."

Minister Washburne's Resignation.

The following correspondence explains itself:

"Washington, 22.

"To President:

"In pursuance of the determination long since formed, to return home at the end of eight years' service as minister of the United States to France, I now have the honor to request that I may be recalled, the same to take effect immediately, or upon the presentation of the letters of credence of my successor as may be most agreeable to you. In making known to you my desire in this regard, I beg leave to express to you my best wishes for the success of your administration, for your own personal welfare, and the peace, happiness and prosperity of our country.

"I have the honor to be,

"Very respectfully,

"Your obed't servant,

"(Signed) E. B. WASHBURNE."

"Department of State,

"Washington, March 23.

"To E. B. Washburne:

"Sir—I have to acknowledge the receipt of your dispatch of the 22d instant, accompanied by a letter which you have addressed to the President asking to be recalled as Minister of the United States to the French Republic. I am instructed by the President to say in reply, that your request for recall will be granted, and your resignation accepted on the understanding that you will remain in your official position until your successor shall have been appointed, and shall have presented with his letter of credence. I am also instructed to add an expression of the President's appreciation of the faithful manner in which your official duties have been performed, and of the services rendered to your countrymen in France in a period of unusual embarrassment and difficulty, services which must ever remain on record as among the most important rendered by a diplomatic representative of this government. I am, sir, your obedient servant,

"WILLIAM M. EVARTS."

Mrs. Dr. Walker and the Doorkeeper of the Treasury Department.

Walter R. Baker, the principal door-keeper at the Treasury department, was before the police court, to-day, on the charge of forcibly ejecting Dr. Mary Walker from the Treasury building. The doctor testified that on the 16th instant, she went to the Treasury to attend to some business with the secretary, walked into the ante-room and began writing a letter. When Baker ordered her to leave, she replied that she was a citizen of the United States, and had as much right there as any body. Baker said he had been ordered to keep her out, and if she did not leave he would have to put her out. She caught up her writing, and walked away from him, when he followed her up and caught hold of her wrist with one hand, and put his other arm around her waist and walked her out through the door and down the steps. During this time she called loudly to the secretary and others to come and see how an American citizen was being treated in a public place. The court said Dr. Walker ought to be respected in the department just as much as any one. He would take the personal recognizance of Baker for his appearance for judgment whenever the case was called up.

Mining Decision.

The Commissioner of the General Land Office, to-day, decided the case of Seymour versus Woods and others, applicants for a patent for the Woodville placer mine, in Nevada county, California, in favor of the applicants. Commissioner Williamson, in rendering this decision, announces the following important ruling: No adverse claim will be considered by this office unless filed during the period of the publication of the notice, and the court's judgment rendered in favor of the adverse parties, who fail to file their adverse claim within that period, cannot be considered by this office.

Another Bank Embezzler.

NEW YORK, 23.—George L. Whiting, head bookkeeper of the Brooklyn Bank, was arrested, charged with having robbed the bank of $160,000. In a valise which he carried at the time was $120,000, leaving $40,000 short. The circumstances of the robbery are as follows: On Wednesday afternoon, after bank hours, Whiting was correcting some clerical errors in company with another clerk, and remarked that he heard the officers intended reducing his salary, but he did not propose to let them do it easily, adding that he would get a leverage on the bank, and compel a compromise. Whiting remained after the other clerks, and having the combination, opened the safe and abstracted $100,000 in negotiable bills and $60,000 in greenbacks. Next morning the president found a note from Whiting, saying the bank must give him $80,000 and satisfy him that he would not be prosecuted, and if they did not do that, he would start off with the cash and burn up the bills that were in his possession; and further that if it were necessary he would burn up all the money rather than return it. The case was placed in the hands of detectives and a personal put in the Herald stating that the proposal was agreed to. Notwithstanding, no trace of Whiting could be got until this morning, when he was seen entering his residence, and on making his exit again was arrested and taken to the police headquarters. He refused to state the whereabouts of the remainder of the money when first questioned, but late this evening he confessed that the missing $40,000 was concealed in a closet in his room at the Vandyke House, corner of Bayard St. and Bowery, New York, where the detectives found it. The money was counted at the Brooklyn police headquarters and found correct. Hall, the teller, was supposed to be the only one who knew the combination of the safe, and he had the figures entered in a book, which Whiting one day asked to look at, when he quickly copied the combination and handed the book back.

The Brooklyn Bank officials have recovered and counted the money, and found it $10,000 short. Whiting refused to say what was done with the deficiency. He finally stated that he had spent it; but being asked what for, replied that was his business. The officials doubt his story.

The Rival Governors.

The Times Washington special says Patterson and Corbin telegraphed to Chamberlain, to-day, asking if he would come to Washington obedient to the President's request. He replied yes. It is generally thought that Hampton will also, though his friends and supporters advise otherwise. The latter think the President wishes merely to gain time, and that the letter is really in Chamberlain's interest. They only desire the troops to be withdrawn, so that they can settle matters their own way. They say further that Stanley Matthews and Foster signed an agreement by which they pledged the administration to remove the United States troops from Columbia and New Orleans. It is claimed that a copy of this agreement is now in Washington, and it was stated to Matthews that Evarts' letter to Governor Chamberlain was a part of the programme then agreed upon. These charges are made with a good show of authority, and they are creating some excitement here. The democrats say the programme to oust Chamberlain is as follows: In 1868 the republican legislature passed an ejectment law, which gave authority to any judge of the several circuit courts to issue a writ of ejectment and compel the persons served upon to appear and show cause why a writ of ouster should not be entered against him. The law was passed as an emergency measure to compel two democratic officers, who refused to vacate their offices, to step aside. It is still on the statute books. It is the intention to have such a writ served on Chamberlain, to be issued by Justice Willard, who is in Hampton's pay. If the troops refuse to allow the writ to be served, the issue will be made with the United States. Chamberlain will be compelled to plead, and the judgment, it is believed, will surely be against him.

Grand Duke Alexis and Suit.

Neither the Grand Duke Alexis nor any of his suit came ashore tonight. They remained quietly on board the flag ship Svetlana. The squadron is anchored off Twenty-third Street. Many of the Russian officers, however, came ashore and attended the theatres. The civilities of the port were tendered them by Vice-Admiral Roman. It is said the imperial party will remain very quiet during their stay in the harbor.

Railroad Earnings.

BOSTON, 23.—The annual report of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad, shows the net earnings for the year to be $5,189,249; gross earnings $12,057,794.

$40,000 Fire.

PITTSBURG, 23.—Weldon and Kelsey's furnace manufactory and some adjoining buildings were destroyed by fire to-night, loss $40,000.

Packard Not Wanted.

NEW ORLEANS, 23.—The cotton exchange held a meeting and adopted resolutions strongly endorsing Nicholls, and denouncing the statement that business men were willing to recognize Packard, and expressing the firm belief that an attempt to foist Packard on the people would lead to civil strife, and to a resistance which would speedily assume such formidable proportions as would endanger the peace and prosperity of the entire country.

A Brutal Outrage.

FORT SMITH, 23.—On Sunday night, four men, who had all been drinking, entered the house of a widow woman in Sebastain county, and remained all night, each one gratifying his brutal passion by force. The woman died next day. She leaves four children.

FOREIGN.

AUSTRIA.

Promised Aid.

VIENNA, 23.—Upon Cardinal Antonelli's death the Emperor of Austria wrote to the Pope urging him not to deviate from the present policy which Antonelli followed after the overthrow of the temporal power. If this policy was maintained the emperor promised the Pope the fullest support in case Italy should attempt to alter the papal guarantees law, which law the Catholic powers considered as the King of Italy's title to the possession of Rome, and which King Victor Emanuel and the Italian minister had, at the Venice interview in 1874, promised to retain unaltered.

GREAT BRITAIN.

The Eastern Difficulties.

LONDON, 23.—In the House of Commons this evening, Professor Fawcett moved that in the opinion of the House any promises of reform made by the Porte without guarantees will be fruitless, and that the Powers, in the interest of the peace of Europe, have a right to demand adequate securities for the better government of Turkey, and that the misrule which has brought such misery in Christian Turkey will continue unless the Powers obtain some such guarantees for the improved administration agreed on at the conference. Fawcett, after justifying his course in introducing the motion, drew attention to the admirable declaration made by both Lord Salisbury and Lord Derby concerning the Turkish misgovernment, and remarked that if they considered Turkey's promises of reform were futile, without guarantees three months ago, what had since occurred to make them change their minds? If after the loud talk and the expressed determination to bring the perpetrators of the Bulgarian atrocities to justice, the government was now going to shrink back into inactivity, it would constitute not only a crisis on the Eastern question, but a crisis in the history of England which future generations would look back to as a period of humiliation and discredit. It was absolutely necessary that prompt steps should be taken to obtain security to the Christians in Turkey. The Turks were distributing large supplies of arms among the very men who had perpetrated the recent massacre.

Sir Stafford Northcote, Chancellor of the Exchequer, said the government never departed from the policy of striving for a better government for the Christians in Turkey, but he could not speak out in the midst of delicate negotiations so firmly as he might at a future time. He had been struck by the injustice displayed toward Turkey during the debate. Turkey could not disarm or proceed with her reforms, nor could England ask her to disarm, whilst a war cloud was lowering on her frontier.

Fawcett notified the House of his willingness to withdraw the motion, but Northcote refused his assent.

An adjournment of the debate was moved by the liberals and rejected by a vote of 242 to 71.

The Peace Negotiations.

The Times Berlin dispatch says it is hoped that the hitch in the peace negotiations will be surmounted by Turkey declaring her readiness to begin disarming if Russia promises to follow suit immediately.

Schuyler in Difficulties.

A correspondent of the Scotsman says he regrets to hear that Eugene Schuyler, United States Consul General at Constantinople, is in difficulty with the Washington government in consequence of his published communications about the Turkish outrages.

Supposed Murder.

The Abyssinian envoy has been found drowned near Massowah. He is believed to have been murdered by Egyptians.

The National Steeple Chase.

LIVERPOOL, 23.—The grand national steeple chase was won by Austerlitz, Congress second, Liberator third. The favorite failed to get a place.

THE SUN, MOON AND STARS AS LIGHT REGULATORS.

BY DR. E. L. PLANT.

The diseases prevalent at this season, both for the young and middle aged, as well as those of mature age, require the use of herbs properly administered under the direction of a practitioner of well-known ability, who combines from Nature's own variety of shade the variegated colors produced by Nature's own sun rays.

All medicines, simply considered, are hot, cold, moist, dry, or temperate. The qualities of medicine, when understood, require to be regulated suitably to the physical condition of the patient.

Culpepper's idea of the astrological influence of the planets upon herbs is now recognized as exploded. Modern experience has taught us that herbal medicines must be used properly, in accordance with climatic surroundings, as experimentalists have discovered in the present progressive age.

As a careful herbal student and a successful practitioner, I am ready to wait upon patients at my Office in Market Row, Salt Lake City.
