SALTAIR EXERCISES.

Formal Opening of the Resort by President Woodruff.

TRIBUTE TO THE PIONEERS.

Reference to the Great Transformation That Has Come to Utah.—Speeches and Banquet.

As announced in the NEWS last evening Saltair Beach was thrown open to the public yesterday afternoon in the midst of a multitude of people. The exercises were of a most interesting character and were greatly enjoyed by those present. After a few stirring selections by Pedersen's band, Colonel Wendell Benson, master of ceremonies, introduced Governor West, who said in substance: "I am pleased to be present on this auspicious occasion in the presence of such a throng of happy people. I am more than pleased to see such a concourse of people here to pay tribute to the genius, and enterprise which have made the building of this structure possible. Upon this platform at my right, sits President Woodruff, a wonderful man. Although eighty-six years of age and just recovering from a severe siege of sickness, he shows the earnestness of his nature by his presence here today. Less than fifty years ago solitude reigned supreme on the shores of this marvelous body of water. But the silence was broken by the brave band of pioneers who sought homes in the wilderness. Among that heroic vanguard was President Woodruff; they were not many in numbers but strong in manly vigor and determination. They have wrenched from the mountain fastnesses and the sage brush deserts, fertility and productiveness until the city and valley has an immense garden and population, prosperity and progress were the results.

The speaker also referred to the presence of Lorenzo Snow as one of the pioneers who came here the year after President Woodruff's arrival. He said also that he had attended the commencement exercise of many of the schools within the last few days, and had seen there young boys and girls who were the peers of any community in the world and whose native brilliancy and thoroughness of education would compare with the graduates of any eastern college. All this, and more, had come in less than fifty years. He was anxious to impress this lesson on the minds of the people. It was a lesson of wonderful success as the result of a no less wonderful determination.

This pavilion on which they were assembled, he said, was the greatest he had ever seen. It was a triumph of architectural genius and those whose minds had conceived it would have their names inscribed on the roll of honor by reason of the immensity of their accomplishments. Eastern people were of the opinion that we were out of civilization. It was not only a pleasure but a health resort, superior to all others. One fact he observed with gratification, that was the part the people played in making it a place of pleasure and recreation. While they were hardworking, busy and industrious they were also a great amusement people. Cheerfulness was next to Godliness and if the people wish to obey the mandate of the church with reference to frequent bathing, they could easily do so by coming to Saltair and sporting in the briny waves of the Lake. It might be asked why such a display should be made on such occasion. Why did the wearied merchant close his doors, the mechanic drop his tools and the ladies and children leave home and come to the lake? It was a tribute to the enterprise of those who had builded so wisely and well. On the cars which bore the crowd to the beach were the words "Salt Lake & Los Angeles Railroad." He hoped the name would be fully realized by the extension of the line to the coast.

After a splendidly rendered vocal selection and encore from John Henderson, Associate Justice H. W. Smith, who at short notice consented to supply the place in the program made vacant by Judge Zane's inability to be present, made an eloquent speech in which he complimented highly the building of the pavilion and railroad and said the latter would surely be extended to Los Angeles if given proper support.

Judge Goodwin said he had the utmost reverence for the word "pioneer." He wanted to see the man who projected the pavilion, also the man who put up the money that he might do him honor. Only Western men could do such things as have been accomplished under similar circumstances.

President Woodruff then arose and expressed his pleasure at being present and responding to the kind words which had been spoken. He invoked Heavenly blessings on all, and concluded his remarks by saying: "I now declare this pavilion formally opened to the public."

This ended the speech making on the second floor and President Clayton had nearly one hundred specially invited guests up three more flights of stairs into the main dome of the building where an elegant lunch was served under the personal direction of Gus Schram, proprietor of the Knutsford. At the banquet tables—which were in the form of a square—Colonel Benson acted as toastmaster. At his right sat President Clayton, his expansive face wreathed in smiles of triumph. The Press club and all of the Salt Lake papers were fully represented as was the press from most parts of the Territory.

Toasts were responded to as follows: Our Host, Nephi W. Clayton; The Press, Judge Goodwin; Saltair, F. S. Richards; Our Sister City, Frank J. Cannon of Ogden; The Bar of Utah, Associate Justice Smith; Our City, Mayor Baskin; Utah, J. L. Rawlins; The Future of Salt Lake City, Judge Colborn.

The banquet lasted two hours and after it was over an enjoyment was taken by the dancing floor where Agnes Green Thomas, in her almost inimitable style and sweet voice sang two beautiful songs for which she was warmly applauded.

Sixty-three hundred tickets were sold by the Los Angeles company and over seven thousand persons visited the beach during the day and night.

From Manchester.

David C. Lambert, building contractor, from Manchester, England, is in this city visiting relatives, and will remain here about a week. His father and the late Charles Lambert were brothers. The visitor was being shown about town today by his cousin, George C. Lambert. This is the first time the Manchester gentleman has been farther west than New York. While on his way to Salt Lake he stopped at Chicago and viewed the attractions of the World's Fair. He arrived here this morning.

A Bad Fall.

Charles Stevens, formerly a motorman in the employ of the Salt Lake City Street Railway company, met with an accident last evening which nearly cost him his life. He was riding on the rear platform of a Warm Springs car. In attempting to place the trolley to the feed wire he lost his balance and fell over backwards and struck on his head between the rails. At first it was supposed his neck was broken. He was conveyed to the Valley House in an unconscious condition. He soon after regained sensibility and was taken home in a hack.

On a Promissory Note.

In the Third district court this afternoon, Robert Harkness began proceedings against Joseph H. Barlow and Clarissa Barlow, his wife, for the sale of certain property given as security on a promissory note for $200, with interest at ten per cent per annum.

Will Connect Tomorrow.

The street car people expect to make connection with their tracks up and down East Temple street tomorrow, so that cars will be again running through. The tracks, both curves and straight lines, at the intersection of First South and East Temple streets are an excellent piece of work, and much better and more than the former tracks. It cost the railway company $10,000 for that crossing alone, and one specially commendable feature is that the chief part of the work—all except the making of the rails—was performed by home workmen. The rails had to be imported, but the frogs, etc., were all put together here.

WITHIN OUR GATES.

Louis Lessing, who for many years past has kept entertainment for man and beast in the goodly burg of Minersville, Beaver county, was one of the incomers observable on our jagged streets today.

***

J. D. Peters of Brigham City, who figured prominently in the upper chamber of the legislature, is here again and enjoying comfortable quarters at the Moreno. George C. Whittemore of Nephi is at the same place.

H. E. Giles, of the beautiful lake city to the south, whose other name is Provo, was busy stumbling over the stone blocks and abrupted sidewalks which disfigure our landscape. He made less music than he is capable of when the circumstances are propitious.

Avoid sudden changes from dark to brilliant light; avoid the use of stimulants and drugs which affect the nervous system; a good reading when lying down or when mentally or physically exhausted; when the eyes feel tired rest them by looking at objects at long distance; pay special attention to the hygiene of the body, for that which tends to promote the general health acts beneficially upon the eye; up to forty years of age bathe the eyes twice daily with cold water; do not depend upon your own judgment in selecting spectacles; no person should avoid resting much by artificial light for gardent as in that, and avoid sitting up late at night; after 50 bathe the eyes morning and evening with water as hot that you wonder how you stand it; follow this with cold water, that will make them glow with warmth.

AMONG THE MINES.

The Restlessness in Eureka Plainly Apparent.

RED OF CHRYSOLITE DISCOVERED.

Indians Guarding a Secret.—Rich Gold Deposit.—The Iron Mines.—Notes.

Deputy Marshal Roscoe Cannon is up from Eureka. He says the feeling of restlessness there is very marked at times, and while all is reported quiet, there are mutterings of trouble the night break out at any time if the local and United States officers should relax their vigilance.

One of the many scrawls on which this feeling was exhibited by overt acts came on Wednesday evening. A good deal of stone throwing was indulged in near the mine. The officers scattered for the parties who were engaged in the reprehensible business, but were unable to find them, as in the dark they managed to avoid discovery.

A BED OF CHRYSOLITE.

Important Discovery Near Saratoga, Wyoming.

Special Dispatch to the News.

SARATOGA, WYO., June 8.—Prospectors have just discovered a bed of chrysolite in the bluffs near Saratoga. This metal is used in the manufacture of aluminum. But little of it is found in this country, the great bulk being imported from Greenland. If this new find should prove to be what is now expected, it will be the foundation of a new and important industry in this part of the country.

A VALUABLE MINE SOMEWHERE.

Indians Said to Guard a Secret from Prospectors.

Special Dispatch to the News.

SARATOGA, WYO., June 8.—Old timers in this section firmly believe in the existence of a lead and silver mine of immense richness somewhere in the hills forming the rim which encloses Pine Creek basin at the foot of Silk mountain, in the eastern part of Carbon county. It is said that the Ute and Arapahoe Indians used to come over into this section for lead and silver with which to make bullets and silver ornaments. They kept the secret well for although many have searched for the mines none have been able to find them.

Mine Notes.

M. L. Hoyt, of Boise, Idaho, has been in Salt Lake several days, holding consultations with the parties here who propose erecting a smelter in the Seven Devils country. Mr. Hoyt has started for home with the assurance that the company would send an expert into the Seven Devils in a few days.

A dispatch received in this city states that the discovery by E. C. Bartlet, in the South Fork, Fremont county, Wyoming, is of great value. Experts say there are millions of gold in sight. It is found in cement and is claimed to be the largest and richest body of this mineral ever discovered, exceeding in richness the wonderful deposits found at an early day in California. It is free milling and cheaply worked. The mill run shows over $100 a ton in gold. There is a mountain half a mile long containing this material, and miners say this mountain was once the bed of a mountain torrent.

Members of the Business Men's association have been talking a good deal of late, and have been endeavoring to have some action taken in regard to the iron mines in Southern Utah. The field has been pretty well looked over, and it is believed that if sufficient capital were invested, extensive iron mills could be made to pay from the start. The project will not be allowed to rest until something is determined one way or the other. The visit of W. E. Hubbard, president of the Chamber of Commerce, who returned from the iron mines district yesterday, indicates an interest getting in the right direction for the investment of capital.

Boise Statesman: Al Marston and Jim McAlee will have to lay up a prospecting tour on Moore's creek. Fourteen years ago Mr. Marston picked up some very rich float a few miles above Richardson's place on that creek. Other miners at different times since have discovered float of great richness in that locality, but the ledge from which it came has never been found. Some time ago E. P. Plummer had some of the float assayed and the satisfactory result was over $1700 a ton. The float shows both gold and silver and Mr. Marston is confident if he is fortunate enough to uncover the ledge he will have a bonanza.

Our Way to Kill Time.

To pass a hair through a walnut without tearing a hole seems an impossibility, but the feat has often been done. The hull of the walnut, when examined with a strong glass, is seen to have innumerable small openings, some of which lead entirely through the nut. The trick consists in using a very fine hair and an infinite amount of patience. Pass the hair into one of these minute crevices and urge it gently along. Sometimes it will appear on the other side at the first trial, but if it comes out at the hundred and first you will be very lucky.
