SPANISH DISASTERS.

Two Forts Surrendered to the Cuban Insurgents.

PUERTO PRINCIPE IN DANGER.

Latest Rumors from the Seat of War Indicating that the Rebellion is Flourishing.

HAVANA, June 26.—The most serious news of Spanish disasters received here since the outbreak of the rebellion reached here this evening. The garrisons of two towns have surrendered and the places have been burned by Maximo Gomez.

Firing was heard constantly around Puerto Principe last night, and extraordinary precautions are being taken to protect that city.

Owing to the restrictions placed by the government on the transmission of telegraphic news concerning the insurrection, only the most meagre details of the disaster to the Spanish arms are available. It appears certain however, that the town of El Mataro, in the province of Puerto Principe, near the city of Puerto Principe, has surrendered to Gomez. The garrison consisted of 300 men, including 50 soldiers, under Lieutenant Romero, and they were quartered in a grass house, fortified with palisades, with loop holes for rifles. The place was also provisioned, and contained a considerable stock of ammunition.

During the unexplained absence of Lieutenant Romero, the fort was surrounded by about 1,000 insurgents, under the command of Maximo Gomez. The lieutenant surrendered the garrison against the decree of his officers who were benumbed at being compelled to capitulate without firing a shot. When the garrison was in the hands of the insurgents Maximo Gomez ordered the village of El Mataro to be burned, and after depriving Lieutenant Romero of his arms set him at liberty. The lieutenant was subsequently arrested by the authorities of Puerto Principe, and it is thought probable he will be tried by court-martial and shot the Lieutenant Romero.

The town of San Geronimo met the same fate. It was attacked by the insurgents under Maximo Gomez, and razed to the ground, after its garrison of about fifty men had surrendered.

Advices from Puerto Principe indicate that the city is infested by insurgents. The military governor of that place has issued a proclamation, forbidding any one to come into the town or go out of it, and not more than three persons are allowed to assemble in public, and, finally, no one is allowed to be on horseback in the city of Puerto Principe after nightfall.

It is rumored that Antonio Maceo has succeeded in making his way from the province of Santiago de Cuba into the province of Puerto Principe at the head of a large body of insurgents, and it may be his intention to join his force with those of Gomez and make a combined attack upon Puerto Principe. It is also rumored here that the rear guard of the insurgent forces, commanded by Gomez, had been attacked by the Spanish troops, who killed twelve of them and captured nineteen prisoners.

RUSSIAN CRIMINALS.

Escaped Siberian Convicts Arrested for Murder.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—John Kobolff has been arrested for the murder of the Weiser family at Sacramento. Last December Mr. and Mrs. Weiser were murdered in their home in Sacramento. Their skulls were crushed in with a hatchet and the house robbed. On Christmas night a Russian Russian was arrested in San Francisco, but was released the next morning. In the cell occupied by him was found a watch which had belonged to the Weisers.

The police have been searching for this Russian ever since, and have just found him. Recently the police learned that a Russian in the city claimed to know who killed the Weisers. They questioned him, and he said that Kobolff had told him that he and two other Russians had committed the crime.

Kobolff has had a remarkable history. In 1885 he arrived here with nine other Russians on the whaler Cape Horn Pigeon." Kobolff and his companions had escaped from the notorious Russian prison on Sagalahn island, off the coast of Siberia. They put to sea in a small boat, and after floating about for days, and undergoing incredible hardships, were picked up by a whaler in the North Pacific, and were brought to San Francisco. All of the men had committed crimes in Russia, and for a time it appeared as if Russia would demand their return. Nothing was done in the matter, however, and the men were allowed to go. They soon got into trouble, however. Two of them were caught entering a house for purposes of robbery, and were sent to the penitentiary. Others were arrested in various parts of the state for committing crimes, mostly robberies. Kobolff has been identified as the Sunken Rock robber, who was arrested on Christmas night, and clothing found in his possession is said to have belonged to the Weisers.

HARDIN NOMINATED.

The Candidate is Pronounced Free Silver Man.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 26.—On reassembling at 7:30 p. m., statary measures occupied almost an hour. When the Spanish General Cassius M. Clay was presented by George C. Leonhart, for the nomination for governor, J. R. Breckinridge, the eloquent brother of W. C. Breckinridge, presented the name of P. Walt Hardin.

Previous to the convention reassembling the hall was flooded with badges, urging the convention to nominate either J. D. Hines, W. J. Stone or A. S. Berry, and leading them as candidates who were not bound to any ring, clique or faction, who had not been targeted by association with former "silverdollar" administrations, and who would and would stand upon a Democratic platform." This nudge was denounced by all the nominating speeches, and was regarded as aimed at Hardin.

There being only two active candidates, a confusion was created on the first ballot, and the vote was watched with more close attention as it demanded further order.

There were 579 votes necessary to nomination 441. As the ballot progressed several months and scattering in the for J. C. Noland, and the three mountaineers from Lee county voted for Henry Watterson. Black Creek county voted solidly for General Buckner, but the mountain counties could steal the well-lined ranks of Hardin and Clay.

Before the counties were all called, it was evident the nominal Hardin was nominated, and the Hardin men cheered as the last counties responded with "Hardin for Hardin." Before the result of the ballot was announced the Clay men moved that the nomination of General Hardin be made unanimous, and it was carried with a great hurrah. The result of the ballot was announced as follows: Hardin, 456; Clay, 225; Stone 18, Watterson, 8.

Messrs. Henry Burnett, J. R. Harris and J. R. Breckinridge were appointed to escort General Hardin to the hall. Meanwhile General Cassius M. Clay was called to the stage. He pledged vigorous support to the ticket. He recited the financial question has been brought into the canvass, which should have been on state issues and good money, said he was sure the financial question was made the leading issue, he took his stand for sound money, and stuck to it. He congratulated the convention on the platform and endorsement of Cleveland and Carlisle, and said if the convention had adopted a plank for free silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 he would have had to withdraw as a candidate and could not have accepted the nomination if it had been proffered him.

When the committee escorted General Hardin to the hall there were the wildest scenes and shouting. General Hardin accepted the nomination in an eloquent appeal for harmony, without referring to any issues of the contest. He spoke very briefly.

Memorials were then presented for free silver at Sandy Hook, and made his remarks against Clay on that score. He was not, however, objectionable to the many sound money delegates, and especially after he had Judge Bickner, the temporary chairman, adopt a compromise plan in the organization of the convention.

P. Walt Hardin was born June 3, 1842, in Adair county, Kentucky. The Hardin family came to Kentucky about 1784, and the most prominent of them settled in Washington county.

General P. Walt Hardin received his education in the schools of Adair county. He read law with his father, and was admitted to the bar in 1865. In 1869 he was nominated by the Democratic state convention and was elected in 1869, and again in 1871. In 1891 he was a candidate for Governor, and after a splendid contest was defeated by the Hon. John Leathers. As an orator he has few equals, and as a speaker in the state. His first work in the Buckner-Bradley campaign of 1887 was greater than all the leaders put together.

DA GAMA SUICIDES.

Career of the Famous Brazilian Rebel Ended.

BUENOS AYRES, June 26.—The insurgents under command of Admiral Da Gama in the province of Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil, have been defeated. Admiral Da Gama, finding himself overpowered, committed suicide. General Thayores assumed command of the rebels.

Saldanha Da Gama was born in Rio de Janeiro, and was a descendant from a noble Portugese family, the most illustrious of whose members was the celebrated Vasco da Gama. Some of the family now hold high office in the Portugese royal court. Among the dames of honor to the Countess J. de Saldanha da Gama and the Countess E. Telles da Gama.

Da Gama was one of the ablest and most influential officers of the Brazilian navy. He was held in the highest esteem by Dom Pedro, the Brazilian emperor, and was always a strong monarchist.

Surplus Instead of Deficit.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 26.—For the first time in many months the treasury receipts for the current month will exceed the expenditures. Today the treasury balance stands for the month above a surplus instead of a deficit, and as the expenditures are usually light towards the end of the month, it is regarded as certain that the surplus will continue to grow from now until July 1st.

The treasury is $46,623,211 behind in the matter of receipts and expenditures for the current fiscal year, and in the intervening days between now and July 1st, it is not unlikely that more than a million of this deficiency will be made up, so that the year's balance sheets probably will show that the expenditures for the year were about $45,000,000 more than the receipts.

A Determined Squaw.

WICHITA, Kan., June 26.—Kanadia, a Kickapoo squaw, took a shotgun today and held up the contractor of the Choctaw railway in Oklahoma, and for a time it appeared as if Russia would demand their return. Nothing was done in the matter, however, and the men were allowed to go. They soon got into trouble, however. Two of them were caught entering a house for purposes of robbery, and were sent to the penitentiary. Others were arrested in various parts of the state for committing crimes, mostly robberies. Killed by City Marshal.

SOUTH ENID, Okla., June 26.—H. W. Patterson, register of the United States land office at this place, was shot and instantly killed this evening by City Marshal Williams, who had first been shot and mortally wounded by Patterson. Williams testifies that Patterson also fired two shots at J. L. Isenberg, editor of the Daily Wave. One shot took effect at the outer edge of the left eye. Isenberg's injuries are slight.

The difficulty was between Isenberg and Patterson, and was occasioned by an article in this evening's Wave, criticising Patterson. They met at about 7 o'clock, when angry words ensued, immediately followed by blows. Patterson drew his revolver and began shooting at Isenberg, when Williams ran in to stop the affray. Patterson then fired at Williams, the ball passing through his right lung, when Williams fired, the ball striking Patterson in the forehead. Patterson leaves a widow and three little girls, while Williams leaves a widow and one child.

There is great excitement in the city.

Hon. W. H. Patterson was a resident of Macon, Ga., before receiving his appointment here, and since coming to the territory has been one of the most popular Democratic appointees within its borders.

Williams recently shot and killed two men here, and his reputation for nerve is one too.

Isenberg is an old newspaper man, having published papers in Concordia, Kansas and Ft. Leavenworth. The fact was developed late tonight that before Patterson began shooting at Isenberg the latter had drawn a knife and made a lunge at the register.

ENGLAND'S RUNNING QUESTION.

Protests Against Changes in the Currency System.

LONDON, June 27.—The Times, in its financial article, says that of the stock exchanges in the following cities, 48 members in Manchester, 38 in Liverpool, 11 in Leeds, 44 in Edinburgh, 30 in Glasgow and 23 in Dublin, have signed a memorial to the chancellor of the exchequer, protesting against any change in the currency system, and pointing out that a decrease ago one hundred classes of securities, including forty classes of gold bonds of American railroads were officially quoted on the stock exchange, while now the quotations for the country are limited to twenty-eight classes, and for gold bonds has decreased to ninteen classes, this cling conclusive evidence that the investors distrust the currency security.

The Standard says that Baron Halsbury has been appointed Lord Chancellor in succession to Lord Herschell, and that Austen Chamberlain, the Hon. Joseph Chamberlain's son, will probably be under secretary of the treasury.

The Times says Lord Salisbury offered the chancellorship of the exchequer to Mr. Goschen, but he preferred the admiralty office. "It is noteworthy," says the Times, "that Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, who has been chosen for chancellor of the exchequer, is the man most capably fitted."

Four Irish sympathizers have donated £20,000 to the anti-Parnellites for an election fund.

The cause of the distresses of Messrs. Balfour and Chamberlain, on accepting office, reproached the government for not dissolving Parliament instead of resigning. Mr. Chamberlain, in his address, said: "The unionist leaders have absolutely agreed that the bill projects for constitutional change are a question of the legislature, which formed the single proposals of the two last administrations shall be laid aside. The unionists will certainly pledge themselves to a measure of constructive social reform, and at the same time will maintain the full efficiency of the defensive resources of the empire."

The national liberal federation's manifesto says that home rule is the foremost principle to be pushed, and there are also resolutions in favor of disestablishment, the Welsh church disestablishment bill, the Irish land bill, the one man and one vote bill, the local veto bill (local option bill), the mines and workshop bill, and sweeping reforms for dwellers in towns and country are demanded in the interest of the whole nation.

Perhaps the most important feature of all in the manifesto is the insistence that the policy formulated in the new program shall be preserved until it is established beyond all question that where the two houses of parliament come in conflict the will of the representative chamber shall prevail.

Alleged Defaulters.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—Two sensational cases which have never had publicity, although they have been in the United States circuit court for the past three years, were brought to light today. The suits contain allegations of embezzlement against two of the most prominent residents of this city who ever held Federal positions, each of whom is said to be short in his accounts with the government. Criminal proceedings have not been instituted, but suits have been commenced to recover the amount of the shortages from the respective officials.

These alleged defaulters are William J. Bryan, who was postmaster in San Francisco during President Cleveland's first term, and John Quinn, who was internal revenue collector under President Harrison.

The charge made by the government against Bryan is that he received $9,000 into his possession which he neglected to turn into the United States treasury.

There are two separate actions against Quinn. One is for the misappropriation of $3,750.50 and the other for $2,095.65. The complaint also states that Quinn "did not well and faithfully perform the duties of his office and did not pay over moneys that came into his hands as such collector. He received moneys and did not honestly pay over sums due the government." Quinn is also charged with willful neglect of his duties.

Testimony Against Dr. Seaman.

DUXBURY, Mass., June 26.—Colonel Bain Lane continues his testimony today in the trial of Dr. Seaman, who is charged with Emily Hall's death. Lane told a startling story about Miss Hall's death and burial. He said the doctor gave the corpse the name of Myrtle Cook and her address as Popinole avenue, which he remarked would do as well as any other. Dr. Seaman afterwards signed Emily Hall's name to a money order and dressed in her clothes and signed it as a witness. Rev. William Pease of St. Clair identified letters sent from England to Mrs. Lane regarding the care of Emily Hall as being in the handwriting of Rev. Jonathan Hall, who is brother-in-law of Pease.

Commencement Exercises.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 26.—The class of '95 at Harvard was graduated today. Shortly before 10 o'clock President Eliot, with his fellow overseers, faculty and their officers, Governor Greenhalge and staff and the Ancient Lancers, together with the alumni and their guests, escorted the senior class to the Sanders Theater, where the orations of the day were delivered and the degrees conferred. The class numbers nearly 400, there being 365 degrees conferred.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 26.—The commencement exercises of Yale university were held yesterday. The principal event was the announcement of the honorary degrees and scholarships and fellowships.

Sixteen Killed.

SPOKANE, Wash., June 26.—All day long excitement have been arriving in this city, and excitement over the killing of Deputy Sheriff Cudes by the desperado Alfred Simms grows more intense. Hundreds of excited individuals gather on the street corners to discuss the matter, and in a few minutes the crowd had swelled to several hundred. Half a dozen posses are now out hunting for the murderer. Sixteen men are wrought up over the affair that there is liable to be a bloody battle should they come across any of the gang who make Rocky Ford their rendezvous.

Right Arm Paralyzed!

Saved from St. Vitus Dance.

"Our daughter, Blanche, now fifteen years of age, had been terribly afflicted with nervousness, and had lost the entire use of her right arm. We heard of St. Vitus dance, and tried the best physicians, with no benefit. She has taken three bottles of Dr. Miles' Nervine and has gained 15 pounds. Her nervousness and sympathetic fits, Vitus dance are entirely gone, and she sleeps soundly, regularly, and has recovered complete use of her arm, her appetite is splendid."
