SENATOR HALE ON PANAMA CANAL

Says Country Went Into the Thing Blind and Has Stumbled Along Ever Since.

EVER MORE MONEY DEMANDED

Provision in Sundry Civil Appropriation Bill Authorizes Issue of $30,000,000 Bonds Stricken Out.

Washington, March 1.—The sundry civil appropriation bill was passed by the senate just before adjournment today, with an amendment securing $40,000 for remodeling the White House office building to give additional room for the president and providing $25,000 for his traveling expenses.

Mr. Hale explained the latter provision by saying that should the president's salary be raised, the provision for traveling expenses would be stricken from the bill.

On motion of Mr. Foraker an amendment, appropriating $120,000 to pay the Roman Catholic church in Porto Rico for property in Porto Rico, was adopted.

Senator Hale opposed the adoption of an amendment offered by Mr. Frye, appropriating $200,000 for participation by the United States in the international exposition at Brussels. The amendment was rejected on a point of order.

An amendment by Senator Carter for an appropriation for the United States to participate in the exposition in Austria-Hungary, was also rejected.

The authorization for additional issue of $30,000,000 of Panama bonds was stricken out on protest of Senator Clay, who criticized the excessive cost of the canal. Senator Hale said, in this connection:

"We went into this thing in a blind way, and we have stumbled along in it ever since. The majority of the senate favored a sea level canal, but we were drawn into an approval of the lock system. Only one thing is omnipresent in this matter, and that is the constant demand for more money."

An amendment by Senator Carter was adopted, placing the control of the United States military prison at Fort Leavenworth under the board of commissioners of United States soldiers' homes, with instructions to submit annual reports on the financial affairs of the prison to the secretary of war.

The bill carriers appropriations of about $139,000,000.

Tomorrow the general deficiency bill, the last of the great supply measures, will be reported to the senate, and it is hoped it will be passed during the day.

IN THE HOUSE.

Washington, March 1.—Transacting its business amid scenes of great confusion, the house early today gave every evidence that the present Congress is closing. In his endeavor to maintain order, the speaker was constantly pounding his gavel and admonishing members to cease conversation.

The Applachian and White Mountain forest reserve bills, amended so as to apply to all states, was passed by 10 majority.

By the terms of the bill the national forest reservation commission is created to acquire the lands needed to promote or to protect the navigability of streams on whose watershed they lie. The measure will now go to conference.

The final conference reports on the army, naval, and fortifications appropriation bills were agreed to and the measures will now go to the president for signature.

A resolution designed as a concession to the insurgents in the amendment of the rules so as to provide one day each week for a call of committees, was adopted by a vote of 168 to 162.

The house almost unanimously insisted on its disagreement with the senate on the amendment to the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill raising the salaries of the president, vice president, the speaker and United States judges, and the bill for the third time went back to the conference.

THE CAUSE OF LABOR.

"Mother" Jones Hopes Gompers et al Will Go to Jail to Help Cause.

Denver, Col., March 2.—A great mass meeting of organized labor and its friends was held in the People's tabernacle last night and resolutions were adopted against the recent decision of Judge Wright of the District of Columbia sentencing the officials of the American Federation of Labor to jail for contempt. There were a number of speakers, the principal one being "Mother" Jones who is well known all over the country as an advocate of socialism and the cause of labor. She declared that Messrs. Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison ought to go to jail as an impetus to the cause.

"I do hope that the supreme court sends Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison to jail," she said. "Why shouldn't they go to jail? They are no better than the rest of us. I wish the judges would put every member of the union and its officials in jail—and then maybe their brains instead of their jaws would get to working."

She had nothing against capitalists, as individuals, she said, but it was against modern industrial conditions she was fighting.

A NEW GUN SILENCER.

Northfield, Vt., March 2.—Joseph C. Culombe, a graduate of Norwich university, says that he has perfected a gun-silencer, which rivals the Maxim device. He claims in addition that his contrivance eliminates the recoil and makes black powder practically smokeless. A demonstration was given for the Northfield Gun club recently and it was declared a success. Culombe's invention differs from Maxim's in that it is not attached to the end of the barrel, but is made a part of the gun, extending the full length of the barrel.

WHAT TO DO WITH OUR VICE PRESIDENTS

Chicago, March 1.—What to do with our vice presidents is a question which has been solved by at least one of them for himself. Adlai E. Stevenson, it was learned today, will retire from his law business and his coal mining to establish the La Salle Extension university. The La Salle Institution aims at extension along the lines which have been proved a success by the University of Wisconsin.

"My three years old boy was badly constipated, had a high fever and was in an awful condition. I gave him two doses of Foley's Orino Laxative and the next morning the fever was gone and he was entirely well. Foley's Orino Laxative saved his life." A. Wolkush, Casimer, Wis. F. J. MEN AND WOLVES.

Rev. W. J. Long Says Men Are More Savage Than Beasts.

New York, March 2.—Dr. William J. Long, characterized as the original "nature faker" by President Roosevelt, says that men are more savage than beasts. He also absolves the wolf from the charge of ferocity. Speaking before the graduates of Drew Theological seminary here yesterday, Dr. Long said:

"I have studied wolves for years and contrary to popular belief I never found a case where a human being was harmed by one. I am talking of the North American wolf. There is another foolish notion that it is the biggest and ugliest brute of the pack who is leader. That's untrue. It's always the mother who is leader, and her word goes. Animals are far less savage than men. They do not struggle with one another for food. There is no survival of the fittest among them. Unlike man, when he has a corner on food, he does not exact his last dollar of tribute. He shares unselfishly with his fellow creatures."

A RELIGIOUS AUTHOR'S STATEMENT.

Rev. Joseph H. Fesperman, Salisbury, N. C., who is the author of several books, writes: "For several years I was afflicted with kidney trouble and last winter I was suddenly stricken with a severe pain in my kidneys and was confined to bed eight days unable to get up without assistance. My urine contained a thick white sediment and I passed same frequently day and night. I commenced taking Foley's Kidney Remedy, and the pain gradually abated and finally ceased and my urine became normal. I cheerfully recommend Foley's Kidney Remedy." F. J. PRETTY KATE FOLEY BAFFLES HUGE POLICEMEN

Berkeley, Cal., March 2.—Taking refuge in a place so small that she couldn not be followed, pretty 19-year-old Kate Foley of this city defied three of the huskiest officers of the local force to serve a warrant for her arrest which they held. When the police officers invaded her home Miss Foley fled toward the attic and with a mocking laugh dared the police to follow. When they reached the attic the girl was safely esconced between the wall and a chimney in a space so small that although the police could see her and hear her taunts they were prevented from reaching her by their superior avoirdupois. The police considered smoking the girl out and the use of ammonia fumes to dislodge her, but when her father appeared and offered $500 cash bond for her appearance in court the three officers left after complimenting Miss Foley on her gameness. Miss Foley was charged with battery on the person of Mrs. J. J. Hallahan.

REAL HEAD OF THE INAUGURAL BALL

Chairman of Committee in Charge Is Thomas F. Walsh of Colorado.

REED SMOOT APPRECIATED

No Man Occupying Position in United States Senate Performed His Duties More Acceptably.

Special Correspondence.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—The real man at the head of the committee having charge of the inaugural ball is Thomas F. Walsh, now a resident of this city but for many years a miner in Colorado and the Dakotas. Thomas F. Walsh is one of the samples of self-made men for which this country is somewhat celebrated. He was born in Ireland 58 years ago and had a good education before he came to the United States when 18 years of age. He also had a good trade that of a mill wright. He was a man of ability who did not permit his lack of funds to interfere with his desire to acquire all the knowledge he could get. Being deprived of the opportunity for a higher education in a college or a university Tom Walsh started out to secure that education without the aid of professors. He made a study of geology, mineralogy, metallurgy and the location and development of ore bodies. He was not satisfied to go out with a pick and a shovel as the ordinary prospector was and take his chances of striking a pay streak but went at the development of mining propositions with the intelligence of a man of brains and the enthusiasm of a man of desire. The result was, as it will be in nine cases out of ten, where such combinations exist, that Tom Walsh made good and when he had reached the point where it was unnecessary for him to worry about where the next sack of flour and side of bacon were to come from he drifted east and established himself in Washington. He has been honored by election by a number of scientific societies and is today a member of the Washington Academy of Science, the National Geological Society and the American Association of Mining Engineers. He is a member of a half a dozen clubs and wherever he goes the glad hand of fellowship is always put out to him. It was only natural that he should be chosen to head one of the most important committees connected with the inaugural ceremonies and it is also natural to suppose that his connection with the committee having charge of the inaugural ball will result in making that one of the most brilliant affairs that Washington has ever seen.

ENTERTAINED HACK MAN.

Thomas F. Walsh is not only a man of means and a man of brains but he is one of those rare birds who do not forget the men who stood by him in the days of his trials and adversity. He has a handsome office in a building which he owns himself and the Colorado miner who happens to drift into Washington finds just as cordial a welcome from his former friend and associate if he is dressed in the toggery of the mines as he would if he were clothed in the best productions of a Fifth avenue tailor. In other words Mr. Walsh never forgets his old friends but he sometimes embarrasses them by insisting upon the acceptance of little courtesies as was the case of a man who was once wielding a pick with him out in Colorado who subsequently turned up as a hack driver in Washington. Walsh found him and forced him to go to his home which is one of the most beautiful in Washington where he entertained him as royally as he would have done the titled visitor from England or Germany.

Tom Walsh's selection as the virtual chairman of the inaugural ball committee means that the affair will be one of the most enjoyable in the history of presidential inaugurations and it also means that the men from the back woods who happen to drift into Washington on the night of the 4th of March to take in the "show" will be just as well received and just as well treated by the gentleman who Mr. Walsh has selected to look after the floor as will be the members of the diplomatic corps who will be there in force.

REED SMOOT HAS MADE GOOD.

Six years ago the country was excited over the election of Reed Smoot an apostle of the Mormon Church to the United States senate. It was not that Mr. Smoot himself was known to be objectionable but there seemed to be an impression in some quarters at least that a man's religion could effect his patriotism. Mr. Smoot had scarcely taken his seat in the senate when a vigorous onslaught was made to deprive him of that seat. All sorts of accusations were telegraphed east from the Rocky mountain region and these accusations were backed in a measure by formal charges. These charges consisted of accusations to the effect that Mr. Smoot was pretty nearly bad and they almost asserted that he had two horns on the top of his head. For two years the investigation of the Smoot case was before the committee on privileges and elections of the senate and so bigoted were some of the reports of that committee that in spite of the fact that not a single one of the orighal charges against Mr. Smoot were proved there were found members who for reasons of policy reported in favor of unseating him.

Fortunately for the good name of the United States however, the senate decided that a man's religion and his religious affiliations have no bearing whatever upon his rights as a member of Congress and Mr. Smoot was confirmed in his seat.

ACTIVE IN THE SENATE.

As soon as he was relieved of the necessity of fighting for his political life, so to speak, Mr. Smoot settled down to the business of looking after the interests of his state and it is only fair to say that no man occupying a position in the United States senate has ever performed his duties more acceptably.

He has been particularly active in upholding the hand of Gifford Pinchot in the matter of maintenance and extension of the forest service and has accomplished much in securing for Utah and the west generally legislation which means the creating of the garden out of the former desert and he has shown throughout his career in the senate a comprehensive and intelligent grasp of all matters of legislation. No man in the senate has been more active in his duties than Reed Smoot. He has just been re-elected another term of six years and if the rocks over which he traveled during the first three or four years of his senatorial career can be avoided he will probably have a smooth and easy pathway for the next six.

SALARIES IN CONGRESS.

There has been a great deal of discussion of late as to the ability of a member of Congress to live upon the salary which he receives for his official services.

Two years ago Congress increased the salary of its members to $7,500 a year, which makes $15,000 for a term of two years. There are of course a great many members of the house who find it difficult to live on this stipend. This is especially true of those who have heavy expenses to pay at each biennial election. There are a few who have the courage to admit that they can live upon their salary and those who in the past decade will admit that they have saved any money are as scarce as the proverbial hens' teeth.

Among these, however, is Tom Cale of Alaska. Cale went into the northwestern territory, soon after the discovery of the Placer mines in the Dawson country and for 10 years he never came out and in that 10 years he seldom washed out a pan of gravel that produced enough color to pay for a meal but he was persistent and insistent. When the miners looked for a candidate for Congress in 1906, they selected Tom Cale without regard to politics.

He had only a small grub stake with which to pay his expenses, but his friends put up $1,500 to pay his campaign expenses. He was elected and he has declined to run again.

CALE SAVES $10,000.

"I am perfectly satisfied," said Tom Cale, this afternoon, "I know I am not a statesman, and I have not the making of a statesman about me. I can see nothing about this life here in Washington, and I am going back either to Alaska or my former home in Wisconsin and I shall carry with me more than $10,000 which I have saved out of my salary. By the fourth of March I shall have received from the government $15,000 salary, $3,000 in mileage and $250 stationery allowance. I have maintained my family in Wisconsin and have lived here in the utmost comfort during the two terms of Congress that I have attended and I have succeeded in putting away as I said upwards of $10,000 so as far as living expenses are concerned in the city of Washington, I have lived as well as I should have done in Wisconsin and possibly better," he said with a smile, "than I should have done in Alaska. I have had all the comforts that I desire and my family have been well provided for, but if I should have tried for re-election I might have had to spend the entire amount I have saved and perhaps been defeated. Anyway I have had all the glory there is and I am perfectly content to throw up the job and let another fellow try it for the delegate in the Congress of the United States who has the interests of his constituents at heart has nothing but trouble and disappointments ahead of him and as to the honors you could put then all in an Alaska miner's poke and then would not realize that the poke was not empty.

SPONTANEOUS HUMORIST.

Representative J. F. Boyd of Neligh, Neb., who was defeated for re-election, is a tall ungainly individual, with none of the outward and visible signs of a statesman. He looks more like a sexton than a humorist. But the other day he was approached by a bevy of girl students from one of the many educational institutions of Washington, who wanted directions. "Can you tell us, sir," enquired the spokesgirl of the party, "the quickest way out of the Capitol?"

"The very quickest way," responded the statesman who will be out of a job on the fourth of march, "is to appeal to your constituents."

MOTTO OF SUCCESSFUL MAN.

There is a very successful business man in Washington who today is not bothered about rent or grocery bills but who at one time found it necessary to scan the bill of fare closely before ordering his breakfast.

"I account for my success in life," he said today, "to a remark made years ago by John E. Corwin of Middletown, N. Y., who came to my home town of Anderson, Ind., and married one of our best girls. Corwin took a liking to me and when I was about to start out on my own account he called me into his office and said, "The fruit which will fall from the tree without shaking is too mellow for me."

I always remembered that homely expression and when things looked blackest I did some vigorous shaking of the tree."

BUNCOMBE CLUB WILL REPLACE ANANIAS CLUB

Washington, March 1.—President-elect Taft said today that the first announcement of the make-up of his cabinet would be made March 5, when he sends the names of the men he has selected to the senate for confirmation. The cabinet, however, has been made known as each of its members has been selected.

Changes in the diplomatic corps, Mr. Taft says, will not be considered for some time to come. It is possible that several important places in the federal service may be filled and the nominations go to the senate with the cabinet. It has been predicted that William Loeb, Jr., secretary to President Roosevelt, to be collector of the Port of New York, will be one of the first appointments of Mr. Taft.

A conference with Senator Knox was had by Mr. Taft today during which the latter said many matters of importance had been considered.

The passing of the so-called Ananias club established by President Roosevelt, is one of the vehicles of pleasantry between the outgoing and incoming president. According to the story which is going the rounds, Mr. Roosevelt has accused Mr. Taft of already starting an "opposition" club—the "buncombe club." In several of his recent speeches in which criticism of the Panama canal has been dealt with unsparingly, Mr. Taft has declared that "buncombe congressmen," have been largely responsible, therefore, the president, it is said, has joked with his successor of his "Buncombe" organization.

IRISH FELLOWSHIP CLUB

Will Protest Against Display of Certain St. Patrick's Day Emblems.

Chicago, March 2.—Next Saturday the Irish Fellowship club will meet to consider vigorous protests on the part of members against the display in shops of certain St. Patrick's day emblems which they declare to be gross "travesties upon an intelligent and high strung people."

James J. Sheehy thus recounts a shopping experience of his wife:

"She was looking for some favors to decorate a table for St. Patrick's day. She visited a number of shops and was shown Teddy bears tied up in green ribbons, monkey-faced trinkets, and last but not least a lot of green pigs.

"She asked the clerk what significance they attached to these articles. "One said: "We always associate these things with St. Patrick's day, don't you?" My wife was very indignant naturally and when she told me about it I was indignant, too. I see no reason why the Irish should be represented symbolically by a pig or a baboon with a clay pipe. It's an outrage and should not be tolerated."

The General Demand

of the Well-Informed of the World has always been for a simple, pleasant and efficient liquid laxative remedy of known value; a laxative which physicians could sanction for family use because its component parts are known to them to be wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, acceptable to the system and gentle, yet prompt, in action.

In supplying that demand with its excellent combination of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, the California Fig Syrup Co. proceeds along ethical lines and relies on the merits of the laxative for its remarkable success.

That is one of many reasons why Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is given the preference by the Well-Informed. To get its beneficial effects always buy the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists. Price fifty cents a bottle.

CAN REST YOURSELF BY SAYING YOU'RE RESTED

Chicago, March 2.—"Being tired is foolish."

This the latest enunciation of Dr. Shadon Leavitt, in charge of the Immanual Baptist psychotherapy class.

"When I'm tired I tell myself that I'm rested," the instructor says, "and then I am. This universal energy reservoir we live in is always full. We have a feed pipe where we pay it out, but there's a bigger supply pipe where it will enter faster if we only think it.

"You'll find some patients who don't seem to be able to walk alone. The only way to do with them is to get them up on the edge of the nest and then push them over, just as the old bird does."

TAKEN BY WIRE TRUST.

Portland, Or., March 2.—The Pacific Steel & Wire company has ended its corporate existance and its property has passed to the American Steel & Wire company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation. The consideration of the purchase is in the neighborhood of $2,000,000. It is said that the plants and offices of the Pacific Steel & Wire company will be closed down. The company had had its main offices at San Francisco and its plants in Oakland. It was capitalized at $1,000,000.
