The increase for the quarter ending Sept. 30, 1891, over the same period of last year is $4,422.58, and for the quarter ending June 30, 1891, over the same period last year, $[illegible].

The snowstorm at Tooele is unprecedented for this time of the year. A resident of that place, who came to this city last night, stated that at noon yesterday eight inches of snow was on the ground, while at least two feet had fallen, but had melted. Fruit trees of the fruit trees, which were heavily laden, were broken down and great quantities of their product destroyed.

Shortly after midnight last night a badly cracked man appeared on the sidewalk in front of a Main street saloon and, pointing up the stairway leading to the rooms of the Western Union Telegraph office, said that he had been robbed of $25. How it was done or who were the perpetrators, he was not able able to state intelligently.

THIRD DISTRICT COURT.

The Criminal Business Commenced Before Judge Zane.

"INTOXICATED" HOUSEBREAKERS SENTENCED.

The Clute Case Is Temporarily Put On One Side.—Ben W. Driggs, Jr.'s, Bondsmen.

The place of Judge Anderson on the bench in the Third District court room was this morning taken by Chief Justice Zane, who at once proceeded with the work of the criminal calendar. Judge Anderson sat in the grand jury room, and before him was resumed the trial of the case of W. S. McCornick vs. Henry Sadler, begun yesterday, in which the plaintiff sued to recover the sum of $2500, on a claim assigned to him by a firm of local contractors, who built a house for the defendant at his request. Mr. C. S. Varian and Mr. Harris again appeared for the plaintiff; the defendant was represented by Messrs. Baldwin and Tatlock. The case was still going on this afternoon.

TOO DRUNK TO KNOW!

John Doyle, 23, who yesterday pleaded guilty to a charge of housebreaking, came up for sentence. In reply to the court, the prisoner said he had been in the city about two days only when the alleged offense was committed. He came from Pocatello, where he had worked in the Union Pacific boiler shops for about five weeks. Previous to that he had been employed in various towns. His home was at Galveston, Texas, which place he left about four years ago. He broke into the room when intoxicated, and did not know until he read an account of himself next morning what he had been arrested for. He supposed he was alone at the time. He had not the slightest recollection of anything until he awoke in the following morning at the police station.

Prosecuting Attorney Eichnor informed the court that the prisoner had got hold of several hundred dollars and a watch belonging to an inmate of the house, named Lavin. Before he had a chance of decamping, however, Mr. Lavin faced him, the two "fought" for a short time, and Lavin eventually got the prisoner down, and he was held fast until a policeofficer came upon the scene.

Judge Zane—Now don't you remember something about this.

Defendant—No, sir, that I don't.

Mr. Eichnor—When the defendant was brought to the police station, and asked by Mr. McCurdy, the desk sergeant, what he did it for, he replied, "Well, I've got to make a living somehow."

Judge Zane told the defendant that he might as well have spoken the truth, and sentenced him to two years in the penitentiary.

HE, TOO, WAS INTOXICATED

Thomas Ward, 22, who yesterday pleaded guilty to a charge of housebreaking and robbing a man named Ferrando, came up to receive judgment.

Answering the court, Ward said he was intoxicated, and did not "have his right senses" at the time. He, however, had some little recollection afterwards of what he had done. He left Pennsylvania three years ago to go to Montana, whence he came recently here. Latterly, before reaching Montana, he had been occupied as a camp cook.

United States Assistant District Attorney Stephens, answering the court, said the defendant stole four checks value about $400, $16 in cash, and a watch. The watch was found in his possession at the police station. The facts briefly were, said the prosecuting attorney, that at the time the prisoner entered the room, Mr. Ferrando, the prosecutor, was in bed. Ward took his pistol and was backing out of the door with the things he had stolen, when Ferrando made a leap and caught hold of him before he had a chance of doing anything further.

Judge Zane—This housebreaking business is becoming rather common in this city, and it is necessary to make an example of men who are caught at it. There seems to have been considerable aggravation in this case. The pistol was held by you on this man, after his watch and money had been taken. Where did he catch you?

Defendant—Well, I think just as I was going through the door.

The Judge—Then he got the better of you?

Defendant—Yes, and I gave him up the pistol.

The Judge—Well, you will be sentenced to confinement in the penitentiary for three years, which is the longest term I can give you.

THE DAY FILLED.

John McGiveney and Thomas Sullivan were arraigned and pleaded not guilty to a charge of committing a burglary at the store of Messrs. Lippman & Wallenstein, clothiers, etc., on September 11th, and stealing money and various articles of wearing apparel. The trial was set for October 17th. Mr. Butterworth, by direction of the court, will defend them.

ILLEGALLY SELLING LIQUOR.

A jury having been empanneled, the special case of Jonathan Maloney, of Bountiful, who was convicted by the lower court for selling beer without a license, on July 13th, 1889, was taken up. U. S. Assistant District Attorney Stephens representing the prosecution, while Counsel Knight appeared for the appellant. The facts are familiar to our readers, the case having been mentioned in these columns on several occasions. This is the third trial. The case went to the jury at noon, when the court adjourned till 1:30.

Upon re-assembling just before two o'clock, the Judge was informed that the jury had not yet agreed, and a further recess was then taken.

THE CLUTE MATTER.

It had been arranged that the hearing of the petition for a writ of certiorari to review the recent action of the City Council in adopting the resolution reducing the valuation on real property 33 per cent, should come before Judge Anderson this morning; but the other side not having yet filed an answer, and for other reasons, the argument in the case has been postponed until tomorrow (Saturday) week, on application of Mr. Varian.

RETURNED.

The case of Wood vs. Davies was returned to Judge Sutherland to try.

ONE MORE INDICTMENT.

The grand jury came into court and presented one indictment under the laws of the Territory.

AN APPLICATION OVERRULED.

In Commissioner Greenman's court this morning, an application was made by counsel on behalf of Findlay McGregor to dissolve an attachment made recently in a case in which McGregor was sued by one Arthur Urie, for the sum of $[illegible] for services rendered. It seems that at the time the proceedings were instituted Mr. McGregor was thought to be about to leave this locality, and hence the granting of the attachment upon the defendant's personal effects. The Commissioner overruled the motion and set the hearing of the case for tomorrow.

COURT NOTES.

The criminal business of the Third District Court was begun this morning.

Judge Anderson was engaged the whole morning hearing the case of McCornick vs. Sadler, commenced yesterday. It was unfinished at the time of the noon recess.

Judge Zane had several housebreakers before him for sentence this morning. His honor commented upon the great frequency of this class of offenses in the city, and said it had become necessary to make an example of men when caught at their nefarious work. The punishment inflicted in the present cases may not be without a salutary effect.

An interesting trial will be that of Rufus Smith, the alleged slayer of a comrade at Fort Douglas, which will take place some time during the present month.

This is a busy season for the court stenographers. One of them is kept in close attendance in the grand jury room.

In this connection it may be said that something more than ordinary is looked forward to in the report from the grand jury, when that body has reached the end of their labors on the cases to come before them. If half the whispers at present floating around the courts be true, the city gambling hells and houses of ill-repute will get a scorching. More, it is said, remains behind.

A couple of housebreakers who were sentenced before Judge Zane for sentence this morning put forward quite an original plea for their transgression. The declaration was that they were "intoxicated," and one of the fellows—whom he carried conviction with it—went so far as to assure the judge that he was wholly ignorant of what he had done until in jail next morning he read an embellished sketch of his escapade through a citizen's dwelling house the previous night. Their thin protestations, of course, availed them nothing, and for the next two or three years they will be the guests of Warden Vandercook.

This afternoon Judge Zane excused all jurors in waiting until Monday morning, at 10 o'clock.

An open venire for fifteen jurors to leave, returnable forthwith, was issued this afternoon in the Third District Court.

ANOTHER ROBBERY.

A Young Butcher from Sandy Visits Franklin Avenue, With the Usual Results.

Albert Flam, a young German butcher, who came to this city from Denver last June, and who subsequently moved to Sandy, where he now resides, was pouring a tale of woe into the ears of an officer on State street this afternoon.

He said he came to town yesterday and determined to have a "good time" last night. Among other unsavory places he visited was a saloon on Franklin avenue. He became intoxicated and fell asleep, he says, in one of the wine rooms in the rear of the building. While slumbering, he felt some one, who he now avers was the bartender, tugging away at his pockets. He aroused himself and resisted as best he could in his almost helpless condition. He was, however, soon overpowered and ejected into the street, where he remained all night.

As a result of his experience he mourns the loss of $125 in gold and a small amount of silver.

He informed the officers, but they replied that under the circumstances they could not assist him.

High Council.

An extra session of the High Council of the Salt Lake Stake of Zion will be held tomorrow (Saturday), at 7:30 p.m. Members of the Council and others having business to present before them are requested to take note of this.

J. D. Spencer,
Clerk of Council.

Amusements.

The Keene company closed its engagement at the Salt Lake Theatre last evening with Richard III. Mr. Keene took the leading role. There was a very good house, in fact, the best of the engagement. The performance was well received, Mr. Keene, of course, coming off with the topmost laurels.

The advance sale of the Home Dramatic Club began this morning. The first production, "The Wages of Sin," will be given at the matinee tomorrow and repeated at the evening performance tomorrow night.

Sardou's "Cleopatra" will be given Wednesday and Thursday and Saturday matinee by the Fanny Davenport company. "Fedora" will be the attraction Friday, and the present season is unlikely to present anything of greater dramatic interest. "Fedora" is generally conceded to be the greatest theatrical sensation, and in this play Miss Davenport has probably scored the greatest popular success of her life. The sale of seats for the engagement begins at the box office Tuesday, October 6th. There is a slight advance in prices, but that is not to be wondered at, when it is remembered that Miss Davenport paid $20,000 for the American rights to "Fedora," and spent nearly as much in giving the piece its proper equipment. Saturday Sardou's "La Tosca."

A large number of white and colored supernumeraries are required to take part in Miss Davenport's productions, and particulars will be found in a Theatre advertisement in our columns.

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

B. W. Driggs, Jun., Arrested on a Complaint Alleging Forgery.—He Waives Examination and Is Held to Answer.

Yesterday Alexander Johnson appeared before Commissioner Greenman and swore out a complaint, charging Ben W. Driggs, Jun., with forgery. The warrant was placed in the hands of Deputy Marshals W. L. Goodsell and C. D. Goodsell.

The officers proceeded to Driggs' house, on Capitol Hill. They found him at home, and informed him of the nature of their errand. He manifested no uneasiness nor unwillingness to be placed under arrest. However, he asked permission to go upstairs, to get his overcoat, and see his wife, who he said was quite ill. The officers consented and Driggs went upstairs. He did not return, and after waiting some time one of the officers ascended the stairs. On entering a room on the second floor he found a window open, and on the ground leading from it on the outside footprints were plainly visible. The officers followed the trail. Driggs, who concealed himself in a hunted and far from his house, after a little time came out and surrendered. He was taken to the marshal's office, and later on was released on his own recognizance.

Driggs was seen this forenoon in the marshal's office, by a News reporter. It appears, from his statement, that Alexander Johnson, who was a friend or close acquaintance of Mr. Driggs, bought some real estate for $2000. He paid $1000 in cash, and spoke to Driggs about raising the remainder. The latter, who had already conducted business for Dr. Park, thought that a loan of $1000 might be obtained from that gentleman on proper security. A note for the amount was duly made out. Johnson signed it and so did Driggs. The note was taken away by Johnson, so Driggs states, and after a little while was returned with Judge Hoge's signature on the back of it.

Dr. Park accepted the note on the strength of Hoge's endorsement, and the money was paid to Johnson. This occurred eighteen months or two years ago. In May last the note became due, and when presented to Hoge for settlement, that gentleman pronounced his signature a forgery. Driggs claims that this was the first he heard or knew of the forgery. He does not charge Johnson with signing Hoge's name, but he says that it was signed while the note was in Johnson's custody.

The case seems complicated. Johnson, of course, claims the contrary. So it is only by a judicial investigation that the truth of the matter can be obtained. Mr. Driggs states, however, that his reason for fleeing from the officers was not the result of a consciousness of guilt, but because he thought if he kept the affair from his wife's knowledge for a few days it could be settled. Mrs. Driggs is in very feeble health, and he feared that the report of his arrest would prove a dangerous shock to her.

Driggs, remained under the watchful eye of a deputy United States marshal in Marshal Parsons' office until 11:30 this morning, when he went before Commissioner Norrell—Commissioner Greenman, before whom the complaint was sworn out, being otherwise engaged—waived examination, and gave bonds in the sum of $2,500 to appear before the grand jury when called upon. Mr. Driggs was then allowed to go free. His bondsmen are Bishop A. G. Driggs, of Sugar House ward, and Mr. Charles Wilkin, of this city.

Fair Notes.

All entries in the fine art department coming in after today will not be catalogued, as it will require the entire interim until the Fair opens to print the catalogue.

Mr. Dwyer, who is engaged in fixing the electric light wires for the fine art exhibit, met with an accident yesterday by falling from a ladder, but fortunately was not seriously hurt.

William H. Richards, of Sugar House Ward, offers a special premium of $5 for the second best stallion, one year old and under two, of standard trotters, division 2; also $10 for the second best carriage horse, four years old and up, division 9.

Mr. Vincent, manager of the Studebaker Bros., having heard complaint from several would-be competitors for the special premium offered by his firm, viz., an all steel self binder, valued at $175, for the best "all purpose" team, the complaint being in that the term "all purpose" has decided to change the offer to read as follows: "For the best Utah bred team for general farm purposes."

The Ogden band leader, Mr. W. Emmett, was in town yesterday making arrangements for the coming contest to take place at the fair and also for the engagements of the band in this city for the coming week. The band is an exceptionally good one and Salt Lake will have to look after her laurels. No entries in the band contest will be allowed after Saturday night at 6 o'clock.

The art exhibit will far surpass its predecessors. Already as many pictures as were entered last year are secured and a number of celebrated artists who have not hitherto shown their work at our annual fairs have been induced to exhibit. The arrangements for lighting by electric incandescent lights, with galvanized iron reflectors, after the manner of Eastern art exhibitions, is having much to do with favorable thought by the artists. There will also be an elaborate display of hand-painted china, both by artists and amateurs, the special offer by Mrs. Jennings having stimulated the latter to earnest exertion.

BURGLARS CAPTURED

After One of Them had Entered a Lady's Sleeping Chamber.

Between two and three o'clock this morning, a lady who lodges in the Jenkins block, at the corner of Second South and State streets was aroused from her sleep by an unusual sound in her room. Looking towards the foot of her bed she observed a burglar standing with her dress in his hand. The lady did what most women would have done under similar circumstances—cried loudly for help—and the fellow made a bolt from the door and scampered down stairs where he was confronted by night watchman Stearns, who commanded him to surrender. The burglar, however, being a desperate character refused and drawing a revolver started into a run. Mr. Stearns immediately gave chase and fired a number of shots at the retreating robber, who in turn fired two shots at his pursuer. Officer Curran was attracted to the scene of the disturbance and the two officers finally captured their man and lodged him in jail, where he awaits arraignment on a charge of burglary. He gave his name as Daniel St. Clair.

Sergeant Donovan this morning arrested a youth named Bernard Jennings on suspicion of being an accomplice of St. Clair's. He, too, languishes in jail awaiting a hearing.

Both men are well known in criminal circles and are desperate characters.

Justice Jottings.

A. Harris is registered on the police docket on the double charge of drunkenness and disturbing the peace.

Nelson Sloan is under arrest for assault and battery and using abusive language.

Mike Crawley, Washington Cook, P. J. Hollowood and Ed. Hoel, a fireman, were adjudged guilty of drunkenness, and were fined in the usual sum.

Mining Exchange.

Following are the quotations of the Mining Exchange made today:

NAMES.	High-est.	Low-est.	Closing. Bid.	Closing. Ask.
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

SALES OF STOCK.

[illegible]

In response to letters sent out by the Exchange, calling for mineral exhibits for the Territorial Fair, it is found that miners in all the districts are taking great interest, and a good display is confidently looked for.

Mr. J. C. Reynolds, of Stockton, has been authorized by the Tooele county miners to receive the exhibit here, but that gentleman believes the present unfavorable weather will interfere with the arrangement.

LATEST TELEGRAMS.

The Guatemala Sensation.

Boston, Oct. 2.—A City of Mexico dispatch says: The revolutionists in Guatemala finally succeeded, Wednesday, in drawing Barillas' army into a fight and the government troops were badly used up, retreating to Guatemala City, forty miles away from the scene of fight. There was great rejoicing in the city when the news reached there of the defeat of the government troops.

President Ezeta declares that Guatemala is ripe for the plan of consolidating all Central America in one republic, and he will not lose the opportunity of bringing about this result.

Gold Coming.

London, Oct. 2.—Bullion to the amount of £[illegible] were withdrawn from the Bank of England today for shipment to the United States.

Samoa News.

Apia, Samoa, Sept. 16.—A native son of the Island of Manono has been trying for some time to upset the present government, and a few weeks ago, some chiefs who expressed their intention of going to Malietoa to join the government had their houses pulled down and their plantations destroyed, by order of the other chiefs. As soon as the news of the outrage was received here, the president of the municipal council, Baron Von Senft, who is also adviser to the king, together with the United vice consul Black went to Manono on the United States steamer "Iroquois" and arrested and imprisoned the chiefs.

The people of Manono at first threatened to rebel, but afterwards returned to the islands promising to obey the government. There is no further trouble.

Mataafa Malietoa is still at Malie with about 300 followers and is addressed and treated as a king. He is keeping the country in a state of unrest. A story is circulated that the United States would help in the event of war, and this has had the effect of keeping a number of dissatisfied chiefs about him.

Consul General Sewall had written to Mataafa that he should not think of being king, and that he would forfeit the good will of the United States, if he persisted. This letter had a good effect on the natives.

Chief Justice Cederkrantz gives great dissatisfaction here. He cannot conduct a supreme court case of transact ordinary government business. The president of the council has lost the confidence of the King and the government. He is not content with being the adviser of the president, but attempted to become a dictator. He tried to force old German silver marks in at par after the government had decided against it, threatening that Germany would be very angry if her money were not accepted. The municipal council is completely under the president's thumb. He has sent all funds to the bank at Sydney and it is believed he has deposited the money in his own name.

The Chinese Question in Europe.

Berlin, Oct. 2.—The brisk exchange of telegrams between the European capitals continues with a view of reinforcing the European squadrons in Chinese waters, and affording a better protection to the European colonists.

Two Different Views.

London, Oct. 2.—The Vienna correspondent of the Times says the attempt on the Emperor is not regarded as a serious effort to take his life. The Standard's Vienna correspondent thinks the miscreants had not time to carry out their diabolical plan.

Bankers Fail.

Boston, Oct. 2.—A. B. Turner & Brothers, bankers, have failed.

The firm has been in business only about two years. Recent heavy speculations are thought to be the direct cause of their embarrassment.

A Disastrous Fire.

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 2.—The most dangerous fire that has visited this city for years, broke out last night in the planing mill on Taylor's wharf, near the Cunard wharfs. It spread rapidly, and by two o'clock this morning the whole block from John Chisholm's on the south to the north side of Hamilton's wharf on the north, almost adjoining the Cunard wharfs, was destroyed.

A Lost Ship Heard From.

Apia, Samoa, Oct. 2.—The "Penmanie" reported lost with all on board some months ago, has been heard from. She was wrecked on the Marshall group, May 4th, but all hands escaped.

For the Chicago Fair.

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 2.—A movement is now on foot which will be backed by the government and cities of the province to make a display at the Columbian exposition at Chicago.

On the Lookout for an Absconder.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—The detectives here are on the lookout for Alex. Standiford, the absconding banker at Christman, Ills. Inquiry here has developed the fact that for the past two years, heavy speculation on the board of trade has been going on through the Christman bank, with varying success. The bankers pretended that the trading orders sent by them were given in behalf of the syndicate of depositors in the Christman bank, but the suspicion is that Standiford, themselves, were the real traders. Their dealings were heavy amounting sometimes to about a million bushels of grain per day.

The Yield of this Year's Harvest.

Paris, Oct. 2.—The official estimate of the yield of the harvest for 1891 is as follows: Wheat 81,000,000 hectolitres (hectolitre 2¾ bushels); mixed grain, 3,032,000 hectolitres; rye, 21,152,000 hectolitres.

Heavy Snow in Montana.

Red Lodge, Mont., Oct. 2.—It has been snowing and drifting incessantly for the past 48 hours, and now there are three feet of snow on the level. Business is practically at a standstill.

Gould's Condition.

New York, Oct. 2.—Inquiry at the office of Jay Gould this morning elicited the information that he had sent word that he is feeling first rate. The fact that George Gould left for the shooting box in the Catskills indicates that Gould's condition is not considered serious by his family.

Civil War and a Hurricane.

San Francisco, Oct. 2.—Advices by the steamship "Monowai" say that the island of Tanna has been visited by a hurricane and devastated by a civil war.

Fierce fighting was going on and two villages were wiped out of existence. In the midst of the fighting came a fearful hurricane.

The German ship "J. W. Gildemeister" was wrecked in Doubtless Bay. The cutter "Hilda" was driven ashore and a canoe containing nineteen natives was lost.

The Geranium Saved Her Life.

The father and brother of a dear little woman died of consumption, and the family believed she would soon follow them with the same dread disease. She had a friend who believed the invalid had inherited her mother's stronger constitution and if she could only be aroused and the idea banished from her mind that she would soon die she might be a well woman. Arguments were in vain, and, as the friend was going away for years, she gave a geranium to the dear little woman, with the request that she would take care of it, and also that she would work out in the garden through the spring and summer two hours a day. "I might as well do it," said the invalid, "for I shall not live but a few weeks or months at the longest."

Very feeble were her first attempts at gardening, and she would often say on coming in, "I shall die now, anyway." But the next day found her out again. The geranium was cared for, and gradually other plants were added. She became very much interested in gardening, and her mind was taken up in reading and in caring for her flowers. In the winter a bay window was full of blooming plants. It is now three years since she began this new era, and it has worked wonders. She is a healthy, happy woman now and says that "women stay in the house too much, are afraid of their clothes, and the tight lacing makes a short breath, and then they say, 'We are not strong enough to work in a garden.'" Shut up the pill boxes and throw away the bottles. Breathe the fresh air and take your medicine at the end of a light hoe handle, and see if you don't save doctor's bills.—Vick's Magazine.

Swindles on the Easily Deluded.

The class of lawyers who used to gather a revenue from the deluded "heirs" to imaginary estates in England seem to have been turning their attention to New York city as a more profitable field. The old colonial grants of land and ancient transfers by leases and otherwise enable them to raise a cloud of dust over the title to property which has become of vast value, and to lead the supposed heirs of owners of a hundred years ago to imagine that they can recover many millions if they will assess themselves for legal expenses.

The claimants of the Edwards estate dream of $200,000,000 or so on lower Broadway, and a western person lays claim to a modest $100,000,000 on the Harlem flats, these being only samples of the preposterous claims which the lawyers who pocket the assessments encourage.

It is sad to think of the eager hopes that are excited, the constantly disappointed expectations and the wretchedness that are caused by this class of pestiferous lawyers who look for flaws in ancient titles out of which they derive a revenue by the mere process of exciting the cupidity of heirs whose real claims, if any ever existed, were long ago cut off by adverse possession.—New York Epoch.

Curious Aberration.

A good woman at Bar le Duc was standing over her fire the other day, holding her prayer book in one hand and in the other a large piece of bacon, which she intended putting into the pan before going to mass. Absentmindedly she threw in the prayer book and walked off with the bacon under her arm, and did not perceive her mistake until she was about to enter the church, when a dog, allured by the smell, seized the bacon and ran away with it.—Omnibus Illustre.

Much Needed Sympathy.
