GOVERNMENT WINS NOTED COAL CASE

Utah Fuel Co. Pleads Guilty, Pays Big Fine and Disgorges Lands.

ENDS CELEBRATED ACTION.

Only One More Similar Suit Awaits Disposal in United States Courts—Federal Attorneys Much Elated.

The celebrated land fraud case of the United States vs. the Utah Fuel company was brought to a conclusion late yesterday afternoon when J. F. Valle, general counsel for the Utah Fuel company, appeared in the federal court before Judge Marshall and entered a plea of guilty to the charge that his company had defrauded the government out of 1,440 acres of coal land, located in Salina canyon, Sevier county, Utah. Judge Marshall then fined the company $5,000, which was paid immediately by draft in favor of J. R. Letcher, clerk of the court.

In achieving the result now obtained great credit is due to the untiring efforts of Special Counsel Fred A. Maynard, who has worked night and day on this case in conjunction with United States Dist. Atty. H. E. Booth.

In addition to the $5,000 fine the Utah Fuel company has been required to pay to the United States $192,000 as compensation for the coal extracted from the lands, and also to deed back to the government the 1,440 acres of land in question, and to lose $14,400 which the land cost the company. The Utah Fuel company thus loses the lands and $214,400 in cash.

The sum of $192,000 was paid over to Mr. Maynard at the conclusion of the case. The drafts were upon the National Bank of Commerce of New York and made payable to Counsel J. F. Valle of the Utah Fuel company, who indorsed them over to George W. Wickersham, attorney-general of the United States.

HISTORY OF THE CASE.

The history of the case dates back some years, when a number of entrymen acquired the land, ostensibly for agricultural purposes. They later sold it to the Utah Fuel company, it is said, for $50 per acre. In the course of time it was learned that coal was being mined from these lands, and the government immediately set to work to recover the lands, alleging fraud.

On April 22, 1907, a criminal indictment was returned by the grand jury against the Utah Fuel company, Henry G. Williams, Robert Forrester, George A. Moore, William D. Fuster, Elroy N. Clark and Alexander H. Cowie. In its efforts to break the indictment, the company tried many means without effect, and the case went to the supreme court of the United States, where an adverse decision was rendered, and the company surrendered yesterday simply because there was no other alternative.

The case against all the other defendants will be dismissed as the result of the Utah Fuel company pleading guilty. The government will not prosecute these cases further, being entirely satisfied with the outcome. Included in the cases to be dismissed is that of Thomas A. Moore, who was charged with perjury in having given false testimony before the grand jury.

MAYNARD'S VIEWS.

In speaking of the case, Special Counsel Fred A. Maynard said:

"We feel that this is the greatest victory ever won in the United States by the government. True, the government has had matters before the courts in which greater sums of money were concerned, but this is a case that has been absolutely proven; the defendants have pleaded guilty, and the entire sum of $200,000 has been paid in cash. To think that the Denver & Rio Grande, the principal Gould railroad, should be forced to bow its head to the supremacy of the law, and in open court to admit its guilt in the formation of a conspiracy on the part of itself, its officers and agents to unlawfully acquire title to 1,440 acres of coal lands belonging to the United States, is simply astounding. It exhausted every means at its command in an effort to break the indictment, and, failing, tried to break the law under which the indictment was brought. It only stopped when the United States supreme court decided all points against it. It not only employed its great array of local legal talent, but imported two outside attorneys as special counsel in the persons of John M. Zane of Chicago and John M. Waldron of Denver. Finding that there was absolutely nothing left for it to do but face a jury, and knowing well the strength of the government case, it simply surrendered.

"In addition to the $5,000 fine, the fuel company restores to the United States the 1,440 acres of coal land illegally gained, pays $192,000 for the coal extracted, and forfeits the sum of $14,400 which it paid for the lands. The moral effect of the Gould system in declaring itself guilty of so flagrant a violation of Uncle Sam's laws should put a stop to future depredations of this nature.

"Shortly after the criminal indictment had been returned the government commenced five suits in equity to set aside and cancel patents to large tracts of coal lands in this state, which we claimed were fraudulently procured from the United States by dummy entrymen and dummy entrywomen. We also asked for an accounting of the coal which had been extracted from these lands.

"During the taking of the voluminous testimony it was established that over $2,000,000 worth of bonds had been sold, in good faith, to the general public throughout the world. In consideration of the whole case, and not to do an injustice to the purchasers, the attorney-general and the secretary of the interior, upon the presentation of the facts, decided to accept the offer which had been made of $192,000 in satisfaction for the coal which had been extracted from the lands named and described. This decision was reached during my recent visit to Washington. As a result of this action upon the part of the government officials, the land remains as it was before, the government not caring to go into the coal business. These lands, described in the equity suit, are not the ones described in the criminal proceedings. The Utah Fuel company retains the lands alluded to in the equity case, so that the bonds which have been sold still hold good, and the people who purchased the bonds still retain them and are not out of pocket one cent.

"Since suit was brought by the government, or, rather, since criminal proceedings were instituted under the indictment returned by the grand jury, there has been a reclassification of the lands described in the indictment, and these are now valued by the government at $100,000. The equity proceedings have been dismissed, and conviction has been gained only under the criminal proceedings. The Pleasant Valley Coal company and the Morton Trust company of New York, against both of which equity proceedings were instituted, have been dropped along with the equity suits against the Utah Fuel company, which really owns these two."

With the settlement of the Utah Fuel case and the dismissal of the other cases in connection therewith, but one coal case is left on the docket in Utah. This case is set for May 19, being the case of the United States against Don C. Robbins, Walter G. Filer, Charles M. Freed and Edwin W. Senior. The defendants were indicted January 18, 1907, under the same statute as the Utah Fuel company, the charge being the same, that of conspiring to defraud the government of coal lands.

CHARGE OF FRAUD MADE.

Lambert Paper Company Swears to Complaints Against Salesmen.

The Lambert Paper company of this city has sworn to complaints against George H. Lowe and C. J. Reynolds, representing the Novelty company of Portland, charging them with obtaining money under false pretenses. Intimations of crooked work on the part of these men came to the company a couple of weeks ago, when order for calendars sent in by these men were repudiated by the firms from whom the orders were said to have been received. Lester Lambert was immediately sent into the districts, which take in Oregon and Washington, also Wisconsin and other places east, and perhaps some territory where the fraudulent operations have not yet come to light. It is thought by Mr. Lambert that the worst is known, however, and while the total loss cannot yet be stated, Manager George C. Lambert says it will not embarrass the firm in the least. It is a comparatively small affair, said Mr. Lambert today, probably not exceeding $1,000.

The novelty company is said to have its office at Portland, where, under the name of the Morgan company, it did business with the Lambert Paper company for two years. During this time everything was very satisfactory, and those who later took over the business of the Morgan company enjoyed the same confidence as the original company until two weeks ago, when the men who have been representing the company, turned in bogus orders. Contrary to its general custom the paper company has yielded to the importunities of the novelty company for the payment of the commissions on the strength of the excellent record of the Morgan company. Its predecessor, before the orders were verified. A number of these have now been found to be fictitious, though Mr. Lambert says that several items that had not really given any orders, have confirmed the orders sent in, or given a partial order since the visit of Lester Lambert, which has the effect of lessening the loss.

THE ROUND OF THE THEATERS

PRESS CLUB SHOW TOMORROW—The sale of seats for the Press club show, "The Bungle" opened yesterday and a brisk demand has set in. Members of the cast are working day and night under the efficient direction of H. L. A. Culmer and it is generally felt that whatever degree of success they may achieve will be due largely to his efforts. Josh Davis the oriental comedian has consented to accept a part in the play and will be seen in full oriental regalia. Those who have seen Mr. Davis in Chinese parts before are aware of his ability in this particular line. The "ladies" of the cast are having a good deal of quiet enjoyment in trying on dresses and hats and other parts of the proper thing in the way of female costume, and a revelation may be looked for in the art of wearing good clothes. Kenneth C. Kerr as Ida Gress, a peroxide blond stenographer is a dream of female lovliness, while the directorie gown worn by Carl R. Williams is unprintable. Jay Johnson's creation is also slightly dizzy. While politics is the theme of the play these are handled in a manner which anyone can understand and a large attendance of ladies and children is expected at the matinee performance tomorrow. The action of the play will afford some genuine glimpses into political life as those behind the scenes see it and to many will be a liberal education along the lines of politics in general.

ORPHEUM—One of the best programs the Orpheum has presented in Salt Lake is seen this week at the Orpheum, including even the kinodrome, whose reproduction of the recent inaugural scenes at Washington is little short of marvelous. When one can sit in a comfortable seat in a cosy, well-warmed auditorium and see the literal scenes enacted miles and weeks away, from the surging, shivering throngs, marching army, and moving carriages down to the swirling snow flakes, and sleet splashed pools in the streets of the national metropolis, one begins to realize that the one-time termed visionaries, the "looking backwards," are coming to their own in the realization of marvels which when first hinted at seemed the vaporings of insanity. From that wonderful mechanical "show" to the department of psychics, Israel Zangwill's play, the "Novel," "Never Land," is a far cry. This sketch, in reality a piece of melodrama but for the delicate, psychological, Zangwillian touch is intense from beginning to end, and has besides the advantage of thoroughly good actors to bring out its points. The real play is the dream or vision of a past momentous episode in the life of a woman, titled, wealthy and surrounded by all the safeguards of her position. Near the end of this life of satiate worldly experience there comes back to her the tragic hour which brought about the vital happenings in her life, and it is in this scene that the actors have chance for expression. Helen Grantley, the duchess and erstwhile wife of a plodding and humble bushman, is a most charming actress, and the two men with her, James M. Colville and Harry Hilliard, give excellent support.

Leo Filler, the Russian boy violinist, wins the hearts of his audience with his masterly conditions of difficult musical pieces as well as the interpretation of spirit in the lighter ones, and Flo Adler, that always popular vaudeville star, and her clever little "stock company," are as delightful as ever. Geo. Austin Moore is one of the best story tellers and character song interpreters that the Orpheum has seen, and always will be welcome. W. E. Whittle, the English ventriloquist, gives a wonderful performance with his marionettes, the athletes are excellent, and the negro sketch sufficiently humorous and well done.

This afternoon a local musical skit with words by Thomas Patterson and music by Prof. J. J. McClellan, is to be tried out. The sketch is entitled "Lexa" and a number of special features are introduced, including the Mogul Indian snake dance.

COLONIAL — Soberly considered, Willard Mack seems to fit into the roll of Svengali in "Trilby" better than in any other part he has played during the time the splendid stock organization has been in this city. He rises almost superbly in the third act, and the severe requirements of the role are all met more than half way by the actor. His portrayal of the character was masterly throughout the evening. As Trilby, Miss Mary Hall, who leaves the company this week, by the way, scores an artistic success that leaves nothing to be desired. In the scene showing her the finished opera singer, under the peculiar spell of Svengali, in the foyer of the Cirque de Bashibazouck, Miss Hall shows herself to be an actress of high rank and one who will be missed when she leaves. Among the women of the play, Anna Cleveland easily takes second place. As Mme. Vinard her work was at all times good. Her first appearance in Hortense last week held promise for good work and she entirely fulfilled this promise. Mr. Alcine as the Rev. Thos. Bagot sustained a part calling for clever character work. He was well cast, indeed, and his acting was pleasing to the most critical. Baldwin, Clement and Rennie, the latter as Little Bilee, were three bright places in the evening's bill. Mr. Rennie was afforded more opportunities than the others of the rio of artists in the Latin Quartier, and he seized every one and delighted his audience with his work. Taffy and Sandy, however, were excellently cast. The Gecko of Mr. Davis was about the average of the company and, as he has done in all other parts assigned to him, he acquitted himself with the ease of the talented artist. For the other members of the cast there were few situations demanding talent of high order, but of the players there was none who did not fit into the piece and acquit himself with credit. The play is perhaps the best offering in which the Mack company has appeared.

The audience was not large, even for Monday night. It was appreciative to a high degree and seemed to be one easily played to by the company. The orchestra is unusually good, Prof. Coop being at the piano. The play is to be seen during the remainder of the week with matinees today, Thursday and Saturday.

GRAND—Entertainment varied in character and thoroughly enjoyable is furnished at the Grand this week. "At Cripple Creek," which is said to be Hal Reid's best play, is one of the most melo-drumatic and thrilling billed at that house in many a day. An average sized audience downstairs and a jam in the galleries applauded vociferously each of the four acts last evening. The company as a whole is good, with here and there one considerably better than most of the others. Thomas Pawley, in the role of Joe Mayfield, "one of nature's noblemen," played the part well, and of the women, Florence Craig, as "Dynamite Ann," and Mayme Arington, as Maggie Mason, "pride of the Creek," divided honors. Little Helen coming next for mention. In each of the acts and between curtains specialties were given by the Clayson family of four, in instrumental and vocal selections, and by Inez, Ada and Little Helen, three girl singers of considerably more than ordinary ability.

SPECIAL PRIZES FOR GUARDSMEN

Signal Corps and Band Make Such Showing of Excellency Additional Awards Made.

FIRST BATTERY HEADS LIST.

Ogden and Manti Infantry Companies Show Up All Others in Their Arm —Result Pleases Commander.

Winners of the prizes offered by a member of the governor's staff for excellence shown by various organizations of the National Guard of Utah were announced last night by General E. D. Wedgwood as follows:

First Battery, first prize $50
Company B, second prize $30
Company F, third prize $20
Band, special prize $25

The necessity for awarding special prizes to the signal corps and band arose from the excellence shown by these organizations and because their drills and duties are so different from those of the other organizations that comparisons to be fair were impossible.

In Circular, No. 4, Adjutant General Wedgwood says regarding the awards:

"Mayor James M. Arrasmith, Fifteenth infantry, inspecting officer reports that owing to the fact that the drill of the signal corps and band is so limited in scope, he is unable to make a fair comparison between these organizations and the other branches of the service. He commends both of these organizations for general all around excellence and decides that among the other organizations the battery at Salt Lake stands at the head, Company B at Ogden, second, and Company F, at Manti, third. In accordance with his findings the prizes mentioned in G. O. 5, c. s. these headquarters, will be awarded by General Orders shortly to be issued as follows:

First prize to battery, at Salt Lake.
Second prize to Company B at Ogden.
Third prize to Company F at Manti.

A special prize of $25 each will be awarded to the signal corps and band by reason of their all around excellence and efficiency."

GREAT STRIDES FORWARD.

The great strides made toward an ideal showing since General Wedgwood assumed direct administration control of the National Guard of Utah is shown by the following statement in the circular above referred to:

1905—Strength 289; per cent present; officers 84, enlisted men 57.
1907—Strength 342; per cent present, officers 93; enlisted men, 66.
1908—Strength 367; per cent present; officers 94.4; enlisted men, 74.9
1909—Strength 402; per cent present; officers 92.68, enlisted men, 85.59.

The general results of the showing made before the government inspector are far higher than ever before in the history of the guard. In the circular before referred to, General Wedgwood says:

"The general result of the recent inspection is very gratifying to the commander-in-chief and is a credit to the state. The guard as a whole showed more cohesion, interest and efficiency than at any previous inspection, at least within the last three years and the officers and men of the respective commands are to be congratulated upon the results attained.

DATES CONFLICT SO CHANGE IS IN ORDER

G. A. R. Officials and Promoters of National Irrigation Congress Get Busy on the Proposition.

To obviate an untoward situation which would operate to the disadvantage of two events, both of national importance, special correspondence is now being carried on between the executive officers of the forty-third national encampment of the Grand Aarmy encampment, to be held in this city, Aug. 9-14 of the present year, and the officers of the seventeenth annual session of the National Irrigation congress, scheduled to occur at Spokane, Wash., on the same dates.

The chief conflict in dates between the two organizations is that on Aug. 11, the date upon which President Taft, Commander-in-Chief Nevius, and the governors of every state in the Union will review the grand parade of the grizzled veterans of the late war, had been chosen by the irrigation congress as its "governors' day," and in case something cannot be done a most unpleasant situation will be the result.

The dates for the two events, it is understood, were selected at about the same time, in the early part of December last. The committees for both organizations met in different cities almost simultaneously, and arrived at the conclusion to have the same dates at about the same time. The schedules then made out were not announced at once, and now, when the conflict is discovered, all arrangements for both events are well under way. With the view of arriving at an understanding on the matter, Governor Spry, who is first vice chairman of the executive committee of the encampment, and Col. F. M. Sizrett, executive director, and Fisher Harris, secretary, have all addressed letters to R. Insinger, chairman of the executive committee of the board of control for the irrigation congress, asking that the "Governor's day," adopted by the congress, be changed to the latter part of the week, in August, in which the date for reviewing the parade has been fixed. This would be the only feasible way out of the difficulty, as President Taft and many of the governors west of the Mississippi river have indicated their intention of being present to review the parade, while they could go from here to Spokane, which is not far distant, after parade day, in time to be in attendance at the Spokane congress by Friday or Saturday, thus enabling the president and governors to visit both functions.

Mr. Harris said this morning that from replies received by him in reference to the situation, he was assured that Mr. Insinger would do what he could to have the change made to conform to the arrangement named.

Col. Sizrett this morning received information that Commander-in-Chief Henry M. Nevius of the Grand Army would be in Utah on April 25. From here Commander Nevius will go to Los Angeles to attend the state encampment of the department of California, and would return to Utah in time to be in attendance at the Utah encampment to be held in G. A. R. hall in this city April 29.

STRENGTH AND ENDURANCE.

Are factors of the greatest success.

No person can do full justice to himself without them.

In no season of the year are they more easily exhausted than in the spring.

WILL APPOINT JUDGE.

Juvenile Court Commission Meets This Afternoon for That Purpose.

The juvenile court commission will meet late this afternoon to organize and decide upon the appointment of a secretary of the commission and a judge of the Salt Lake juvenile court. The commission consists of Gov. William Spry, State Supt. of Schools A. C. Nelson and Atty.-Gen. A. R. Barnes. It is probable that Judge Gowans will be made secretary of the commission, which is the most important position under the law. The secretary has control over the organization of the courts throughout the state.

There are several applicants for the position of judge of the Salt Lake court. Atty. M. A. Breeden, former attorney-general, appears to have been favorably considered. Judge Gowans is also a strong candidate for reappointment, and J. Fred Anderson has been highly recommended for the position.

UNIVERSITY NEWS

Yesterday's issue of the Chronicle contained a very interesting letter from Frank E. Holman, '08, now at Oxford university. Mr. Holman is the latest Rhodes scholarship man from Utah. His letter was an exposition on the daily life of a student at Oxford.

Friday the university will entertain the officers of the Federation of Women's clubs, who will hold their meeting in the faculty room. After the meeting a special luncheon will be served to the party, about 20 in number.

The sophomore reception held yesterday afternoon was a delightful affair. A large number of students were present and several prominent club women were up from the city.

The Scribblers' club will hold its regular meeting this evening at the A. F. House. Papers will be read by Clarence Gates, Evans Houtz and Will Nuttall.

The Girls' Gym club has announced a barn dance for Friday afternoon. These matinee dances given by the Gym club have become a favorite feature with the students, being most informal and enjoyable affairs. The barn dance Friday will be something special and is being looked forward to with great expectancy by the pleasure loving people of the college.

THE JENSEN CREAMERY AT POCATELLO.

A modern creamery at Pocatello has just been completed by the Jensen Creamery Co., of Salt Lake City. The new plant will secure its business from a radius of 200 miles; and as it minimum capacity of 10,000 pounds of butter can by the addition of more machinery be increased to 30,000 pounds, there is no doubt that all dairy products in the district will find ready sale. The plant has a cold storage with a capacity of ten car loads, in which all fresh butter and eggs will be stored. The receiving room machinery is the invention of the president W. F. Jensen, and deserves special praise. In this room the farmers butter fat is sampled, weighed, sterilized, cooled by refrigeration, pasturized and cooled a second time, leaving the receiving room in a pure state and flowing thru to the churn room into refiners where it is given the proper flavor. Here refrigeration again takes place before churning begins.

The plant runs by electricity and connected by a spur with the railroad, is modern in every respect. Cash will be paid at all times for butter, eggs and poultry—a boon to the whole neighborhood.

SOOTHING OIL CURES THE SKIN

Tender Skins of Children Soothed by a Mild Liquid Compound.

Have you ever tried a few drops of an oil of wintergreen compound for skin trouble? It seems to be about the only safe and sure cure for eczema, salt rheum, tetter, ringworm and kindred diseases.

The liquid is so mild that it is used with wonderful soothing effect on the tender skins of infants.

To prove efficacious, the oil of wintergreen must be mixed with thymol and glycerine, as in the Prescription of Dr. D. D. Dennis, the eminent skin specialist. The compound is known as D. D. D. Prescription. Used with D. D. D. Soap it appears to be infallible.

A. J. Brand, 1123 Joliet St., New Orleans, La., writes:

"About five years ago when my daughter was about three months old she had eczema very badly. Her neck was one solid mass of sores, and we tried everything possible to relieve her, but to no purpose. The doctor we called said that he could cure her, but that it would take at least two years to do so, and on account of her age we surely thought that her pain would kill her. We began using D. D. D. Prescription and after using two bottles she was as well and happy a child as you can see and with no mark or scar on her skin.

"My youngest daughter, now two years old, started the same way with a sore neck about six months ago. We did not lose any time in applying D. D. D., and it needed only a few applications to heal her neck. I also use D. D. D. after shaving with beneficial results."

Drop in at our store and we will tell you more about curing eczema with D. D. D. Prescription.
