THE GOLCONDA IN SALINA CANYON.

Some Gold Has Been Found, Also Black Sand—The Usual Excitement.

MANTI, July 15, 1894.

Editor Evening News:

The term of the district court here is conspicuous chiefly for its being a new thing in this neck of timber; otherwise it is something like the circus, in that more is advertised than is performed. The heavy cases, or most of them, were all over for disposition at Provo later on, albeit the business here is by no means insignificant. The good people of this vicinity have made as much of the judicial visitation as could be expected, among other things having expended over $2,000 in fitting up the old court house so that it would be not only presentable but even attractive and convenient, in which respects it is equal to any. Its principal drawback is its closeness on warm afternoons, when at times it is well-nigh overpowering. To overcome this an opening in the roof about eight feet square was cut out and a cupola ten feet high, liberal in openings at every cardinal point of the compass put on. This was of great benefit; but even with the additional ventilation which this bestowed and the openings otherwise there was seldom any superfluous air or attire to be noticed in the court room. It was the first time I ever saw a judge in the bench (and all the officials, as well as most of the audience were the hinder to his shirt sleeves; in some cases men had their vests off or unbuttoned. Everything goes by custom and the human attributes so admirable that this little departure was not noticed for long; doubtless it will take root and spread at this season of the year.

Notwithstanding that mining operations have been going on adjacent to Manti for several years, and occasionally a big "find" showing what might be with work and perseverance properly applied, I never before saw any marked degree of interest here in the hidden treasures which lie in their primeval resting places in the bowels of the great mountains hereabout. Every now and then a "military horseman" is seen wending his way out of town, southward, leading a burro or some other four-legged means of mountain freighting upon whose back is strapped provisions and implements, the destination in most cases being the new Eldorado in Salina canyon, a score of miles or thereabout southeast of here. Some of those who went out earlier have returned, and the effect of their information and exhibits is greatly at variance with what has previously been the case when big discoveries were reported, for the interest grows and spreads. It even threatens to become an excitement, and I would almost as soon think of a fever in the streets and halls of Herculaneum or Pompeii as here where all manner of blandishments garnished with "specimens" and attested by assays have all along failed to make as much as a ripple upon the surface of the social pool. And it is very certain that the people have so far lost nothing by their imperturbability, which, with honest industry, has been the means of making them independent to the finest sense of the word, even if the coin of the realm be seen only when "sent for magical purposes upward and downward" and with the dreamer away back or further ahead as the case may be.

The lodgment of the precious metal so far is a species of black sand very much like coarse gunpowder in appearance. No gold and very rarely a "color" is found in it with the eye, even when aided by a good glass. A sample of the sand sent to Salt Lake for assay, however, showed it to contain $14 to the ton. As it was not picked, since there can be no picking where there is no variation, and there are hundreds upon hundreds of it in sight, with the opposite extending toward the mesa for no one knows how far, the conclusion is irresistible that the modern Golconda must be in Salina canyon and its environs. And yet, there may be grave disappointments. Gold is the emblem as well as the embodiment of treachery and delusion. It is not, has not been and never will be an honest, reliable and beneficial as its despised sister silver, which breeds no wars, engenders no corruptions and executes no mortgages, passing from hand to hand without leaving an aching void in the palm from which it departs or increasing the itching in the one that receives it. The gold in Salina canyon is coaled, as already shown, so that the pursuit of it must remain a game of Hoodman Blind until the characteristic change alleghent. Perhaps the handful that was assayed embraces all the values pertaining to a sun square of earth, or for that matter the whole canyon, and if either proposition should be the case, just think of how much valuable time, labor and means will have been expended upon the merest ignis fatuus before the scurvy trick of which gold is so fully capable has been detected! It takes but very little of the yellow metal to make the average of mankind so crazy that they will fall like asses to a tempting, and they are ragged and starving and penniless, only telling go when their energies are so weakened that they are no longer able to hold on. The chances, however, largely favor the proposition that the county spoken of contains considerable gold, as well as many other precious metals, while coal and iron, the most useful of all the products of the mineral kingdom, abound everywhere and are little thought of.

Sanpete's future is ahead of it. I can say this much at least with perfect safety.

W. B. LOWRY, COMMONWEALER

He Was Released Today on the Petition Presented for His Pardon.

Today Acting Governor Richards granted a free pardon to W. B. Lowry, one of the commonwealers who was sentenced by Judge Smith, at Provo, to sixty days' imprisonment in the penitentiary for taking part in the recent riots at Provo. It has transpired since the trial that Lowry was not, as was believed at the time, one of the prime movers in the affair, but that he simply learned, with others, the engine of an engine train. The petition asking for the man's release was signed by Judge Smith himself, District Attorney Judd and his assistants, the attorneys for the Union Pacific and Rio Grande Western railroads, ex-District Attorney Varian, Judge Powers and many others. Lowry has been set at liberty, and thus gets off with ten days less than his sentence called for.

SEVERE CUTTING SCRAPE.

Simon D. Atwood, of St. Louis, the Victim—Supposed To Be Dying.

Simon D. Atwood, a tramp painter who arrived in Salt Lake from Logan this forenoon and who claims St. Louis as his residence, was terribly cut by a man at the Lowlivile house late this afternoon while engaged in a quarrel.

His supposed assailant was William Stewart, also a stranger. Stewart was placed under arrest as was also Matt Lawrence and Harry Dean.

Atwood was removed to Dr. Kjos' office in the Union block where it was found that his throat was cut almost from ear to ear, while the body was covered with gashes. His deposition was taken at present time. His recovery is doubtful.

PHYSICAL CULTURE.

Miss Babcock Speaks of It This Afternoon to the Summer School.

The teachers of the Summer school were treated to an interesting talk this afternoon upon the subject "The Relation of Physical Culture to the Public Schools."

In the treatment of this important subject Miss Babcock said: Heretofore the subject of physical culture has not been considered as the importance demands. The proper position in sitting and standing is of great import. The body maintained in an erect position gives the play to the internal organs; particularly to the organs of digestion and circulation. The stooped type is found the majority of times to exhibit the manifestations of curvature of the shoulder, the depression of the chest, and to a prominent outward position of the skin. Unless the full organism is properly exercised the brain and extremities do not get the proper amount of blood and the system suffers as a consequence. Brain work is a physical function—a physical development, that should go hand in hand with other parts of the body. The mind grows as the physical part is exercised. Many of the diseases of the present day, such as sleeplessness, insomniacness, consumption, etc., are traceable to the sedentarism. Out of a list of 30,000 children in the high and grammar schools of Europe, forty per cent have been found to be hemiplegic. In the primary department of the public school system, the proportion is much less, thus showing the tendency of school life to aggravate this disease. In the high school at Heidelberg, 100 per cent of the students are afflicted with myopia. The diseases named are traceable to bad posture, imperfect ventilation and light, incective print in text books, etc. The speaker stated that out of sixty measurements taken at the School of Physical Culture, eight have spinal curvature. Some cases of curvature come with the birth of the person, but nearly all cases are induced in school life.

The physical education of the future must not be of a passive nature. The work to be done must be corrective as well as educational. Many of the eastern schools and colleges are making physical culture a part of the requirement to enter those institutions. In the past, much has been required to spend five or six hours broadly, with no thought as to physical education. This unfortunate condition of things must give way to a more advanced and philosophical method—the true one in education. A little time was then given to stating the best time for physical exercises, and of briefly outlining the best systems of the present.

This evening, at 8 o'clock, Dr. Kinsinger will speak on the art room of the University upon the subject, "What is Physical Education?"

The Twenty-first Quorum of Elders will meet in the Nineteenth Ward meeting house this (Monday) evening at 8 o'clock.

In most of the provinces of Sweden there are wide tracts that are cultivated the combined extent of which is considered as fully as large as the land at present cultivated. As a matter of fact, during the present century, much land has been reclaimed, and to a proof of this it may be added that the extent of arable land has increased from 6½ million acres to about 8 million, or more than quadrupled, during the past 35 years.

OGDEN.

OGDEN, UTAH, JULY 16, 1894.

THE STRIKE OFF

At Ogden, and All is Peaceful as Before.

From all appearances here at present the strikers are daily losing ground and many of them are becoming tired of their situation. The strike here is apparently off.

Since the departure of the S. P. for the west on Friday last an entirely new scene is to be witnessed at the depot. All is quiet and there is but one company of soldiers now at the place. The mail and baggage and even the waiting rooms which were crowded before are now comparatively empty and the tracks are no longer blocked with cars. The S. P. can and now send a train west until one arrives, owing to the lack of cars of which a few days ago the yards were full. The only passenger train which has arrived from the West in fifteen days was one conveying Capt. Knapp yesterday morning with but one car and an engine, but it is expected that another will arrive some time this evening.

While the car inspector was on his rounds in the yard Saturday night he discovered that the hose connecting the air brakes on forty car cars was cut in such a manner as to have to be replaced. Just when the hose was cut cannot be said as the cars have been standing in the yards for some time without the air brakes being operated, but it is supposed to have been done before the arrival of the troops, as ever since strict guard has been maintained on all railroad property.

All trains on the Union Pacific and Rio Grande Western are boiled and arriving and departing on time and it is expected that in the course of a few days the Southern Pacific will take its place among them instead of having the word "cancelled" in its place. The railroad officials say they are receiving more applications for work than they know what to do with and further say that all men being hired by them are competent. The strike is all here whether Debs agrees or not.

Will Come Together.

After much talk by Peppers, the California minors pugilist, and long consideration on the part of Williams, of Utah, it has been arranged for them to meet in the ring at the Wonderland Theatre on Wednesday night next.

"Bob" Thompson will appear in the ring on the same night with "Billy" Smith, whom he agreed to sling in six rounds or notes. This go will undoubtedly be an interesting one.

Notes.

Le Clerq, alias Arnold De Claire and wife will have a hearing before Commissioner Tarpey this afternoon.
