FIRST MARTYR OF THE CHURCH.

A Correspondent Calls Attention to an Interesting Item of History.

Editor Deseret News:

In a brief history of the Church written by the late President George A. Smith, for the People's Journal, and published in the DESERET NEWS of September 5, 1855, the historian in describing the attack on Joseph Smith the Prophet and Sidney Rigdon by a mob in Hiram, Portage county, Ohio, in 1832, refers to a little child who lost its life through being exposed to the night air at the time of the mobbing, and says: She may therefore be called the first martyr of this dispensation."

The account given of the affair is all correct, except that which mentions the sex of the little martyr. It was a little boy, and not a girl who lost his life on that dreadful night. And in order to establish this fact beyond a doubt so that future historians may not, as I have done, perpetuate the error (which perhaps was a mere typographical one in the first place), I will give the particulars as I have obtained them from Elder John R. Murdock, of heaven, and Bishop Gideon A. Mardock, of Joseph city, Sevier county, both brothers of the child who died.

On the 25th of April, 1831, in Warrensville township, Cuyahoga county, Ohio, the wife of John Murdock gave birth to twins, a boy and a girl, who were named respectively Joseph (in honor of the prophet) and Julia. The mother died six hours after their birth. The Prophet Joseph, who at that time resided at Kirtland, about 15 miles from Warrensville, heard of the circumstance, and came to visit Brother Murdock, who agreed to let the Prophet have the two little children to raise as his own, Emma, Joseph's wife, having lost a child about the same time and had no other children. In September, 1831, Joseph Smith removed with his family to Hiram, Portage county, about thirty miles from Kirtland, where he still resided in March, 1832, when he and Sidney Rigdon were dragged out of their beds in the night, tarred and feathered and nearly killed. The little boy (eleven months old) who lost his life on that occasion was in bed with the Prophet when the mob attacked the house. The twin sister (Julia) was on the night of the outrage sleep with Emma Smith, the Prophet's wife, who raised her in the Smith family; and after attaining the age of womanhood married Elisha Dodson, who was accidentally killed by the explosion of a steamboat, of which he was part owner. Subsequently she married a lawyer of the name of Middleton, with whom she lived until her death which occurred near Nauvoo, Illinois, Sept. 10, 1846, she died from cancer in the breast.

Under date of February (should read March) 22, 1832, Joseph Smith writes in his history: "Before going to Hiram to live with Father Johnson, my wife had taken two children (twins) of John Murdock to bring up; she received them when they were nine days old; they were now nearly eleven months." Referring to the mobbing on the night of March 25th (should read the 24th) the Prophet says: "During the mobbing one of the twins received a severe cold, and continued to grow worse till Friday when it died. (See Mill. Star, vol. xiv, p. 148, 151).

As the Hiram mob had no other cause for attacking the Prophet than that he was a servant of the Lord and had been preaching the Gospel with considerable success in the neighborhood, it is entirely proper that the little boy who lost his life under the circumstances here mentioned should be classed among the martyrs. Here is the following corrected item of history:

Joseph Murdock, who may be called the first martyr in this dispensation, was a son of John Murdock, and was born in Warrensville township, Cuyahoga county, Ohio, April 25th, 1831; died at Hiram, Portage county, Ohio, Friday, March 25th, 1832, from the effects of an exposure, being sick with the measles, he slept with Joseph Smith in the night between Saturday and Sunday, March 24th and 25th, 1832, when a mob attacked the house in which the family lived and dragged the Prophet out of bed, leaving the child exposed to the night air, which gave it a severe cold resulting in its death.

THE WORK IN SOUTH CAROLINA

Nine Added to the Church by Baptism in Clarendon County.

Correspondence Deseret News.

FORESTER, S. C., March 15, 1893.—O, how lovely was the morning, radiant beamed the sun above; not a cloud was visible in the firmament, the buds and flowers put forth their beauty the birds sang sweetly, and a soft west wind cooled the brow of three Mormon boys as they sauntered down the sandy road of the old San T, so familiar to the Elders of Israel who from time to time travel with satchel and umbrella in hand, calling Babylon to repentance, that the people be not partakers of her sins, as keptoken of in Revelation. It was on this lovely morning that we set out to prepare a place to baptize, or to admit foreigners into the Kingdom of God, who have been honest enough to step out from this broad road that leads so many down to destruction, and declare themselves the true seed of Israel, and say to the world, "I am a Latter-day Saint from the crown of my head to the soles of my feet, and propose to lend a helping hand to help roll this mighty work of God forth until it fills the whole earth."

This portion of the sunny South (Clarendon county) is comparatively a new field; the Gospel is something new to most of the people in this vicinity, we have met many, many friends, but as a rule they are poor. If, we've, we are taken care of; we do not suffer for food and we rest well at night, being always welcome to what the people have.

After dinner we made our way down the San T, to the place prepared for the baptising. The people are coming from all directions to witness this great event, the initiation of nine souls into the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. At 1:30 p. m. our number had reached 300 people. Being requested to give us their attention, after singing, prayer was offered by Elder Wright. Brother J. H. Schwanewicki, of Gentile Valley, stated that he trusted the people had come out with an honest heart to witness this event, and that he hoped those desiring baptism had fully repented of their sins. If not, their case was as was that of Simon the Sorcerer, when he thought the gift of the Holy Ghost could be purchased with money, etc. Elder A. M. Wright was the next speaker and in a few words he told those who had come out for baptism that if they felt as though they could not stand up under the persecutions that would be heaped upon them from now on, to stay out of the water entirely. Brother D. M. Wallace in brief showed to an able manner the blessings that would follow the true believer, etc. He then stepped down into the clear, running stream, and the work began. We had the honor of baptizing a man 84 years old, with his youngest child, "one baby," 18 years, another 78. These old people have been exceedingly kind to we Elders since our stay in this county, as the case with all the people. Brother Wallace remained in the pool until all were baptized.

After this we struck out for Davis station, a distance of twelve miles, where Elders J. H. Schwanewicki and David Sims of Mt. Ararat met an appointment. We all had a glorious time, as is always the case when we meet the Elders. Brothers Wallace and Wright occupied the pulpit.

Our territory here is limited, but there is an increasing demand for missionaries from the surrounding whites. The cry is like that from Macedonia, "Come over and help us." To the young men in Zion we say, give heed to the inspirings you receive from time to time and your sons will come where you can be happy and contend as the Elders of South Carolina are.

Your brother in the cause of truth,

H. M. WRIGHT.

St. Joseph Stake Conference.

The quarterly conference of the St. Joseph Stake at Zion, at Atlanta, convened at Pima, March 12th. At the forenoon services interesting and instructive remarks were made by Elder R. Roberts, recently from the north. He spoke of the growth of Zion, and how we were spreading over the walls of Utah into the different states and territories, after which the Bishops reported the various wards to be in a prosperous condition.

Elder Roberts during the afternoon spoke of the early existence of consciousness, and impressed on the minds of the listening Saints their importance.

Elder C. Layton spoke of our future wants and felt thankful that things were so prosperous was so in the land. At the beginning of the services on March 12th, the general authorities of the church and Stake were presented before the people and unanimously sustained, after which a full and complete statistical report of the various wards was read.

Elder George A. Hall reported the condition of his quorum, and exhorted the people the necessity of sustaining the church and.

Elder P. C. Merrill bore a strong testimony to the truth of the latter-day work, and Elder Wm. M. Johnson pointed out the duties of the Latter-day Saints.

In the afternoon, after listening to a full report of the Sunday schools, Elder Roberts was given the rest of the afternoon. He touched upon many interesting subjects in regard to the Priesthood, explaining the duties of elders. What a queer cause is religion.

Representative Breckinridge of Kentucky, still believes that he has a mission as the administration candidate, to be Speaker of the House, and he sees an opportunity to ascertain whether a new member has committed himself on the subject. Mr. Breckinridge is either the victim of a delusion or the possessor of knowledge denied to every one else, for it has been generally accepted by the public since Mr. Cleveland's memorable visit to New York, last winter, that the next Speaker's name would be Crisp.

There is a well defined rumor floating around town to the effect that President Cleveland wants the Senate to adjourn, and that he is holding back a big pile of appointments because he does not care just at this time to take the chances of having a Kilgore made some of them by senators of his own party. Meanwhile the Senate certainly gives no indication of being in the slightest hurry to go away, but it set upon the few nominations that have been already sent in. In fact at this writing the senate is apparently more concerned over the few officers nominated with the Senate, some of whom will be changed, than anything else.

For some years it has been customary in making certain appointments under the government to give weight to the recommendations of organized labor, but Secretary Carlisle has informed the president of a prominent labor organization that the custom would be abrogated in the treasury department, which will have a good deal to do with politicians, as long as he remains at its head.

The committee appointed by both houses of the last Congress to investigate the methods of doing business in the executive departments, with a view to a reduction in the cost of the taxpayers, will organize this week. The committee has a promising field to work, and it is said by several prominent members of the house that if the committee would at least put its members would at least put its business the result is bound to be highly beneficial. Two years are to be devoted to the investigation and business experts are to be employed by the committee.

United States senators seemed to be thoroughly alive to the advantages accruing to the fortunate quarter from an additional county, if it be fairly judge by the number of them who have signified their intention to the committee of which they are chairmen. The chances in contributions and in spite of the terrible example of the past it may become a dilemma. It will never be seriously considered in the county, which will be the case if the law, merely prohibiting the appointment to a subordinate position by any official of any member of his immediate family.

President Cleveland is understood to be of the opinion that it will be a waste of time to send commissioners to the proposed monometallic conference in May, but the Senate proposes trying a little moral suasion on the subject, for now is the time for choice is at hand.
