Fall House Cleaning.

The New York Times gives the following hints as to how to make fall house cleaning easy. It says:

We must not have all the carpets taken up at once, and the whole house in an uproar, but only devote two days in a week to the operation, or, if more desirable, only one. For instance, take Thursday as the cleaning day, and commence with the attic. Sweep it thoroughly, first brushing down all its walls, and destroying all of the spiders' and wasps' nests that can be found. Wash the windows with weak tea, having saved all the leaves used during the week, and then boiled them for half an hour. This liquid will cleanse glass and varnished paint far better than soap-suds, as it gives them a very bright appearance. If rats and mice lurk in the attic, scatter copperas all about the corners of it, and put dishes of it filled up with water about the room. Copperas is the very best disinfectant for bath-rooms and all places that require to be kept pure, and it will also keep away all kinds of vermin. If cellars are infested with rats and mice, a liberal coat of lime wash, made yellow with copperas or sulphate of iron, will expel the disagreeable intruders, besides making the air of the cellar very pure. If the attic is cleaned one day, the next day can be given to two or more chambers, and if the nails are drawn from the carpets the night previous it expedites the work the next morning. Before the windows are washed the walls should be brushed down with a feather duster, or with a piece of white cotton cloth pinned tightly over the broom, and then it must be used carefully to sweep down every part of the wall. Let the dust subside a little, then scatter torn-up slips of wet paper or tea leaves over the floor and sweep it up, and mop it with a dampened mop. Do not let the floor become quite wet, as it takes pine boards some time to become dry. Wash the mirrors, varnished furniture, paint, and windows with the weak tea, applied as warm as possible. Use a flannel cloth for furniture and paint and newspapers for mirrors and windows, rubbing them dry with dry papers. Papers give a brightness to glass that cloth can never bestow. With a flannel wrung out in the tea wipe off the gas fixtures, chandeliers, and fancy brackets, etc., then rub them dry with chamoise-skin. Take the coarsest of white thread and draw it through the opening in the gas-burners, to remove any particles of dust that have lodged therein while they were not used. If you have two pairs of hands at work, one can wash windows while the other cleans paint, etc. A small stick wrapped in a cloth is of great assistance in cleaning the corners of windows. The spirits of ammonia is also a good cleansing medium, and a tablespoonful to a two-quart pail of weak tea or warm suds is a good proportion to use. It will take spots out of the marble slabs and mantels, and from carpets and furniture coverings. If you do not take up your carpet, you will need to have a piece of oil-cloth or drugget to lay before the windows and doors as you wash them, to keep the drops from it. When the room is as clean as hands can make it, bring in a two-quart pail of warm water in which you have dissolved two table-spoonfuls of powdered alum; wring out a piece of flannel in it and wipe over each breadth of carpet, rubbing down the way the nap runs. Wring out the cloth every few moments, as it takes up much soil, and when the water becomes dingy prepare some more. The alum will brighten the colors of green, red, yellow and brown, but be sure to wring the cloth so dry it will not wet, but only dampen, the carpet. When it is clean you will be surprised to see how much it is brightened. Leave the windows all open until it is perfectly dry.

BREVITIES.

Perry Carson. "Did you ever see the Catskill Mountains?" "No, sah; but I've seen um kill mice."

A magnificent voice for calling cows is all the young farmers of Colorado require of a wife in the way of music.

No man can read about all these burglars without a determination to have his wife sleep on the front side of the bed.

It is said that one-half the fashionable young men of Boston are picking their teeth and waiting for uncles to die and leave them some lucre.

"Professor Tyndall thinks that the world needs making over again." And we've no doubt Professor Tyndall thinks, too, that he could make of it in every respect a much better world than it is.

Opera-glasses are used in the fashionable churches of Richmond. The devout worshipers wish, doubtless, to read their titles clear to mansions in the skies, and take a glimpse en passant of the heavenly blue eyes, noses, new bonnets, and things.—Chicago Times.

An Aberdeen preacher recently commented in the following complimentary way upon the conversational value of men and women: "There is the same difference between their tongues as between one goes ten times as fast and the other signifies ten times as much."

While Northern woolen mills are stopped, those of Georgia are increasing the number of looms and reaping dividends. Columbus has 35,000 spindles, 60 woolen and 870 cotton looms, all built in less than seven years by a city which lost 60,000 bales of cotton, worth fifteen million dollars, and millions of other property.

A Toledo girl was to be married. She went with the bridal party to the door of the church, when all at once the fair bride took to her heels and started off down Cherry street with bridal vail, orange blossoms and white drapery generally flapping in the morning wind. The groom was struck dumb at this sudden departure, but did not follow. This was the situation at last accounts, and no person can be found who will offer an explanation.—Cleveland Plaindealer.

In Paris the dealers in refreshments have had a congress to agree on the important reform of reducing from six to five the number of pieces of sugar served with a cup of coffee. Formerly they served six pieces with each cup: the customer put three pieces in his coffee; two in his pocket, and left one on his saucer out of respect for public opinion. Now that only five are served, he puts three in the coffee, still leaves one out of a sense of public decency—and only puts one in the pocket.
